face of the community. You cannot do this with a mayor who sits back, simply holding the reins in check so as to prevent the taxation of his property for another penny.

"I have been around in this city many times soliciting contributions to public enterprises and I think I have collected hundreds of thousands of dollars for such purposes. For the Transmississippi Exposition I solicited and secured not less than $200,000 of the subscriptions paid into that enterprise, but I have never known of Mr. Poppleton getting out anywhere to solicit and I have never known him to sign for anything to aid any great enterprise—well, yes, he did sign for $100 for the Greater American Exposition and then he made the exhibition managers give him ten season passes to compensate him for the munificent donation and then he compelled them to pay $1,000 in taxes for the use of the ground they were embellishing at the expense of the public (applause).

"You have heard a great deal about the terrible crime alleged to have been perpetrated by Mr. Moore. Now my friend Webster here, who is the president of the constitutional convention (applause)—will attest that that instrument was framed and adopted twenty-five years ago. Within those twenty-five years the first instance where a man who had not been elected or even voted for for an office attempted to wrest that office and usurp it from the man who occupied it, by a majority vote of the people, on the flimsy ground of default was that of Frank E. Moore. I assert that not less than 1,000 men have gone into office in this state in the same condition that Frank E. Moore occupied when he went into office, but nobody ever had the impudence to come in and claim a place for which they had not been elected on that flimsy ground.

"We all know the story; it has become mouldy; it has been reiterated scores of times for years, and when it is pulled down, what does it show? When Frank E. Moore went into the office of the clerk of the district court, in 1855 he assumed an office where three judges were running the courts in Douglas county and a few years later seven judges were running the courts. When he went in he did not have over seven clerks in his office and in a short time he increased the force of clerks to forty. And during that terrible time, when thousands of homes were foreclosed in this community, when thousands upon thousands of suits were pending—(Cheering and applause lasting several minutes here interrupted the speaker, occasioned by the entrance of Mayor Moore.)

"I have seen upon thousands of cases were pending there and had to be handled by this man. He had the supervision of the business, but it was necessary to entrust it largely to the care of subordinates, paid out of the fees of the office. He had to pay all of the clerical help out of his income. He had necessarily to leave matters in a chaotic state more or less. In due course of time when he went out of the office there was an unbalanced account between himself and the county of Douglas. He claimed something like $15,000 or $20,000 due him and the county of Douglas had counter claims for something like $10,000 or $12,000, and that matter up to this date is not yet fully adjusted. Yet there is no doubt whatever today that in the final settlement, as I have been assured by those who had necessarily to leave matters in a chaotic state more or less, he was compelled to pay to Frank E. Moore at least $5,000 or $6,000 balance. (Applause.)

Ready to Pay It.

"Just as the balance was struck on a Saturday, just before he entered the office of mayor, he was notified that the clerks who had been checking up the accounts had found a difference of $1,815 and some odd cents due the county. The very next day Mayor Moore paid that amount to George Helmrod, treasurer of Douglas county. But subsequently after he had taken his seat as mayor it was discovered that he owed $79,322 more and that $79,322 constitutes the great crime of which he is being accused all this time by the opposition—$79,322.

"Does any man in this house believe that Frank E. Moore wanted to steal $79,322? 'Cries of 'No.' 'Not 'No.' He was ready to pay it any time and able to pay it any time. But the fact was that he did not know that such a balance had been struck. He had paid all that the clerks had figured was due to the county at that time. That is the explanation here, because he has insisted the contrary and he has insisted that he had no responsibility made against him. That is all it amounts to.

"Now we have been told that Frank E. Moore should not be voted for for mayor of Omaha and it has been repeated and reiterated here, because he has insulted the loyal Legion and because he had told a story so offensive that General Manderson had to resign him in the meeting of the loyal Legion. Now tomorrow we are going to print General Manderson's positive contradiction of that story. Loud cheers and cries of 'Good boy.' Over his own signature General Manderson denounces it and denounces the cowardly way in which this man is sandbagged by what is called a 'compensation' man who is ashamed to sign his own name and dares not face the man whom he has stigmatized and branded. This reprimand was never delivered and the world were never spoken. General Manderson says that and he says more. He says he himself and all those that are companions of the loyal Legion and are loyal republicans will vote for Frank E. Moore (applause).

"I do not propose to discuss the national issue, but in the main the question now before us is simply this: Shall the citizens of Omaha endorse a man who has given us a true and honest administration of municipal affairs for the last three years or

"I do not believe that the great body of our citizens who are in favor of municipal ownership will be so easily misled by the water works question here beyond one point and that is, that Mr. Poppleton has so far failed to answer any of the questions propounded to him as regards the method by which he would get the works in the shortest possible time. And one thing that he has not been able to explain—why he changed the ordinance that was first drawn up by the city attorney and submitted to the council for the purchase of these works in accordance with the recommendation of Frank E. Moore and put in it that part of all of the $2,000,000 of bonds to be voted for may be used for the purchase of land?

"We have ventured upon land speculations before and we have spent a good deal more for land for public use than is good for the taxpayers. We have paid $1,000 an acre for thousands of acres of parking lands now good enough for corn patches, and we are not ready to spend a million or more for land.

The Proposition.

"The bond proposition as it now reads is this: 'Shall the city of Omaha issue $2,000,000 of bonds for the purchase of the water works plant or for the building of another plant or for land?' What does 'or for land' mean? Are we to plunge into a gigantic land speculation? Are we to buy Mr. Poppleton's bluff tract, which he is willing to sell us at a good, round figure, or are we to invest a million in land from Seymour park up here to Florence? For one I do not believe that the intelligent taxpayer will be dragged into such a scheme.

"I have always been in favor of municipal ownership and have talked it before Mr. Poppleton was out of his pants. (Laughter.) I have talked it for twenty odd years. But I do not believe in municipal ownership that we cannot enter into intelligently and that cannot be discussed without partisan prejudice or passion.

"We must go about this business in accordance with law and in accordance with good business judgment, and when we do we will acquire these properties and probably accomplish a good thing for the city of Omaha. But when Mr. Poppleton attempts to ride into office, as I said before, on the back of a water works hobby, when it is attempted to make this man mayor because he is in favor of the purchase of the water works in a harem-scram sort of way, whether you can buy cheap or dear, and when he cannot explain what we are to do with the bonds when voted I fall to see why we should endorse him for mayor of Omaha.

"And now before closing I desire to appeal to you to go to the polls on next Tuesday and vote the whole republican ticket. I vote it because it represents the party of progress, the party of prosperity. It is not the party of promises that cannot be redeemed, like the democratic party, but it is a party that has redeemed every promise it has ever made. I thank you." (Applause.)

A lust and encore were sung by Prof.

Adolf Edgren and wife, and after a short address by Simon Trostler of the Ninth ward Hon. John L. Webster came forward, amid wild cheering and a storm of enthusiastic hand-clapping. When order was restored Mr. Webster's remarks for some time in factious vein, his theme being the personal interests of the speakers.

Webster's Address.

"When I saw the printed program of this meeting," said he, with an air of suppressed indignation, "I thought of that passage in scripture which says: 'Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity and peace.' When I spoke to Mr. Rosewater about it it was agreed that he should speak in German and that I should speak in the Swedish language, so that neither would know what the other was talking about."

This witticism won rounds of laughter and Mr. Webster proceeded to call attention to the present of reform on the part of the opposition to the republican ticket. He declared in emphatic terms that he had no confidence in so-called reform campaigns. He remembered that in the campaign of a year ago last fall he had promised to give George Shields to reform the morals of the city of Omaha and put an end to the operations of Tom Dennison. Last fall they appealed to the voters and declared that if the republicans would support the ticket they would give Rosewater out of politics. As a result of that election we have what may be called a democratic courthouse, but Mr. Rosewater is still running his paper, with an occasional vote for the republican ticket in the World-Herald that Tom Dennison is still running his policy game.

"I don't believe the stories about Moore's," said Mr. Webster, "but if I believed every one of them I would advise all you republicans to vote the republican ticket rather than put a democrat in office. Who ever heard of a democrat reforming anything?"

Mr. Webster referred with unfeigned contempt to the mongrel nature of the opposition ticket, declaring that when he voted for it he was voting for a ticket of misrepresentatives. He pointed out vividly the great importance of carrying this election for the effect it will certainly have upon that of next fall. He urged republicans to remember that the members of their party who were elected from this state to the party dues in Douglas county, and added impressively, referring to the candidates on the present city ticket, "and I verily believe that their election or their defeat betokens the result next fall. He showed what advantages would accrue to the democrats in the event of the election of the present city government, and demanded of republicans to know if they are zealous for republican domination in this state and for the reelection of President McKinley. He demanded to know whether or not they wanted two popularly elected men to control the city government, and demanded of republicans to know if they are zealous for republican domination in this state and for the reelection of President McKinley. FUSION MEETING AT BOYD'S

Candidate Poppleton and Several Other Talkers Address a Fair-Sized Audience.

The fusion mass meeting in Boyd's theater Saturday night was well attended, but the house would have accommodated comfortably at least 500 more. Only one box was occupied.

The speaker devoted considerable time to discussing national issues and conditions. He pointed out the improved industrial and business conditions under the republican administration and the importance of supporting the policies of the president. He spoke at length and with great enthusiasm of the presidential policy in relation to the Philippines, which he said with his own fondness upon the question of expansion and demanded to know if the policies of the administration did not appeal to republicans for their votes.

He said that he had discussed the question of the retention of the Philippines at the request of members of the league. That question can never be settled until it is settled right, and it can never be settled right except by a republican president and a republican congress. To all in that settlement Nebraska must send to Washington two republican senators.

"If you believe that the American flag should not be hauled down in the Philippines vote the republican ticket and let it be blown to the winds by the republicans. Omaha are united for the support of the administration of President McKinley."

In explaining the absence of Rev. O. W. Ostrom Chairman Johnson called attention to the number of prominent Swedish-Americans upon the platform as a refutation of the statement that that gentleman would not be willing to appear among the supporters of Mayor Moore, and read the following letter:

"When I came into this hall," said he, "and saw this large audience and the magnificent hall surrounded by the prominent factors of the republican party, I said to myself: 'Praise God, from Whom all blessings flow! The millennium is come at last!' If there is anything at all in the forecasting of the results of an election the republicans will win the next day. (A voice: 'That is no dream.') This campaign, thank God, has been short and sweet. If it had lasted any longer the enemy would have run out of mud and I don't know what the World-Herald would have done with the mud. But, gentlemen, sell us at a good, round figure, or are we to invest a million in land from Seymour park up here to Florence? For one I do not believe that the intelligent taxpayer will be dragged into such a scheme.

could have given to a Gould or a Vanderbilt." The mayor's remarks were hailed with cries of "that's right," "you're all right," and other expressions of approval. The meeting closed with the singing of "Columbia" and a parody on "A Hot Time" written in honor of Mayor Moore and sung by the Swedish sextet.

JOINT REPUBLICAN MEETING

North Omaha Improvement Club Has Come Out for Frank E. Moore to a Man.

The republicans of the Fifth and Sixth wards held a joint meeting Saturday night at the hall of the North Omaha Improvement club, corner of Ames avenue and Twenty-fourth street, which was one of the largest gatherings held in northern part of the city during the campaign.

The feature was an address on behalf of the North Omaha Improvement club by J. J. Smith, former president of the organization, delivered at the request of the club at its last regular meeting. Mr. Smith told of the organization of the club on a nonpartisan basis for the improvement of North Omaha and of the work it has accomplished in the short time of its organization. He said that while the club was not organized for political purposes the members had tacitly resolved to stand by the men for city offices who had stood by the club and had shown that they had the interests of the city at heart, and that under this tacit agreement every member of the club, regardless of politics, had resolved to vote for Frank E. Moore.

The speaker then compared the action of the rival candidates. "Often," said he, "I have had occasion, with others, to visit the mayor in the interests of the north side and never have we failed to meet a pleasant reception, and we have always got what we want after. On the other hand, here is Mr. Poppleton, who has never shown any public interest in the north side, which has been his home for years. He had an opportunity some time ago in the matter of locating a park on the Bluff tract, but so far from contributing anything for the improvement of the north side he would not even set a price on the land so that it could be purchased. The North Omaha Improvement club is for Frank E. Moore."

G. S. Benava made a strong plea for the whole republican ticket and said that every republican who scratched the head of the ticket would regret it forever if his candidate landed the democratic candidate in office. Isaac Hassell briefly recalled the work of building the city of Omaha and of the part taken in the work by the republican party, which should be permitted to follow to completion the work started by it, in the purchase of the waterworks and the development of the other city improvements.

During the evening music was supplied by the Daves' quartet. Other speakers were N. C. Pratt, I. G. Harig, C. H. Grant, W. H. Elbourn, D. H. Christie and J. S. Cooley.

NO GENERAL STRIKE IN SIGHT

Effort Will Be Made to Convince Machinists' Trouble to Its Present Limits.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Until the strike of the union machinists in Chicago shall begin to show results one way or the other, it is solved to support the machine to the end, but will not be ordered out unless conditions demand it.

A meeting of the executive committee of the machinists' union was held today to map out a plan of campaign. A number of small firms not affiliated with the Manufacturers' association signed the union scale during the day and the men were told to report for work. So far, however, there are no signs of yielding by the Manufacturers' association.

Trouble at the Deering Harvester works, which was expected to involve several hundred of the employes, has not so far materialized. According to the Deering officials not over twenty machinists have quitted work. As showing the effect of the existing labor troubles in Chicago on building operations of all kinds the figures of the monthly total of building permits issued today is interesting. It shows a total of but $181,300, compared with $855,280 a year ago.

Senate Confirms Nominations. WASHINGTON, March 3.—The senate confirmed the following nominations today: C. E. McChesney as Sioux Falls, S.
