CLEFT IN POPULIST RANKS

Machine Leaders' Roughshod Methods Bring Party to Grief.

MID-ROADERS ARE FORCED TO WALK OUT

Stormy Scenes Occur in Which Parliamentary Usage is Thrown to the Winds—Elected Delegates Are Shut Out.

The populist party of Douglas county succeeded in splitting itself into two vindictive factions Saturday afternoon, devoting something like eight hours of time, a great deal of vituperation and profanity and enough belligerent enmity to storm a Boer laager to the process of vivisection. It took, however, the united strength of the populist officeholders, aided by Walter Moore, Harry Miller and other democratic machine leaders who were there in person, to drive the fusion chariot roughshod over law and parliamentary usage to the point of shutting out elected delegates and forcing the mid-roaders to walk out. Ever since the meeting of the populist national committee at Lincoln, which resulted in the calling of two national conventions, one at Sioux Falls and the other at Cincinnati, the fusionists and middle-of-the-roaders have been actively canvassing local populists for support. Dr. Clem Deaver, as the representative of the Cincinnati middle-of-the-road contingent, has made a wrong fight to bring the Douglas county populists into line for old-line populism as distinguished from the modern fusion propaganda, and when the returns came in from the primaries Saturday night it was believed that he had won out. He had, however, the entire fusion machine to combat, an enemy ready to resort to any means to hold the populists in line as assistant democrats. It was a fight between populists for principle and the army of plotters and officeholders in state house and court house. When the convention was called to order by Chairman Kenney of the populist county committee at 2 p. m. in Peter Cooper headquarters representation was present from every ward of Omaha and South Omaha and from six or eight country precincts. Cohen Enters a Protest. Prior to the reading of the call Herman Cohen protested against South Omaha having five delegates for each ward as usual and George Raworth of South Omaha reported that the change in representation had been effected through the action of the committee from South Omaha. The controversy was referred to the committee on credentials. Before the convention got in working order it became apparent that there were contests in the First and Sixth wards, where the fusionists had succeeded in having their delegations counted. To counteract this, Elmer Thomas, on the payroll as deputy county attorney, had drawn up and filed without signatures contests against the Deaver delegations from the Seventh and Eighth wards. The contesting delegations from the First and Sixth wards were in the audience. For temporary chairman Elmer Thomas, who led the officeholders' brigade, nominated Victor Wilson, secretary of the State Irrigation board. He was interrupted by A. G. Gale, a member of the Deaver delegation from the Sixth ward, who declared that Wilson was simply present as an alternate and that his delegation was contested. Wilson justified his participation on the ground that he was an alternate on both tickets and that both had absented. Michael McGuire nominated L. V. Guey as one who represented no scheme or faction. A vote was ordered by call of the roll. When the First ward was called, attention was directed to the fact that there was a contest in that ward, but the fusion delegation was voted for Wilson, and when the Sixth was reached both delegations insisted on voting. Secretary Moresarty counted both votes on his tally list. The utmost disorder prevailed all through the roll call, which required fully an hour. Vituperation flew fast and furious and numerous personal encounters were narrowly averted. An appeal was taken from the ruling of the chair on the right of the respective delegations to vote. A viva voce vote showed the house about equally divided and the Deaverites demanded a roll call on the appeal. The chair declared he would hold the decision of the chair sustained, which announcement was greeted by mingled cheers and groans and shouts of derision. Secretary Moresarty without counting in the nine Deaver votes from the Sixth ward at length declared the vote 57-1-3 for Wilson and 55-2-3 for Guey. Wilson Wins an Axe. Chairman Kenney declared Wilson elected and the latter came forward carrying a short-handled axe, which he subsequently used as a gavel. It was not an idle demonstration, for once or twice it really seemed as if he would have to use it in self-defense and in spite of it on two or three subsequent occasions late delegates to the number of half a dozen stood within his reach heaping upon him the most opprobrious epithets known to the populist tongue. While the uproar over the vote was at its height Secretary Moresarty discovered that the latter had not counted the votes from the Sixth ward and attempted to bring about a change, but Wilson held his ground, while fistic demonstrations and heated controversies were in progress in a dozen parts of the hall. L. J. Quinby, just appointed to a $100 a month job in the district court clerk's office, as a representative of the fusionists, and E. F. Moresarty for the mid-roaders, were nominated for secretary. The contesting delegates were again ruled out after another half hour of confusion and the vote gave the place to Quinby by a vote of 78 to 53, while Moresarty was made assistant secretary. A committee on credentials, comprising Elmer Thomas, Herman Cohen, L. V. Guey, Mr.

McArdle and R. P. Cross, was appointed. Another committee was appointed on resolutions, comprising L. J. Peabody, M. J. O'Connell, H. F. McIntosh, A. W. Tidd and John Taylor. An hour was then spent in reiteration at short range and without restraint, as a resolution was taken pending reports of the credentials committee. When it returned Deputy County Attorney Elmer Thomas reported that the committee had decided to seat the delegates from the Sixth and First wards whose election was shown on the tally list. He said that the contests of the Seventh and Eighth wards had been withdrawn, as it was not desired to push them. L. V. Guey submitted a minority report, showing that some fourteen persons had voted in the Sixth ward known to be Democrats or Republicans, by which vote alone the fusion delegation was elected, while in the First ward the right to vote had been refused populists. He said the contests against the Seventh and Eighth ward delegations, to which he had signed his name, showed that they were all part of a plugged up scheme, both of them being in the same handwriting, of Deputy County Attorney Elmer Thomas. Many Fists Are Shaken. M. J. O'Connell and a dozen other late individuals tortured the fetid atmosphere of the limited apartment with demonstrations of wrath, at times several of them trying to be heard at once, while the chairman's battle-belted thunderous tattoo upon Moresarty's unprotected desk. When it came to a vote on the minority report the Deaverites again demanded that if the delegates whose seats were contested were allowed to vote, the contestants be permitted that privilege also. Chairman Wilson at first declared that those whose seats were contested would not vote on their own rights to seats, but Elmer Thomas declared that the chair had previously held otherwise, and Wilson changed accordingly and permitted the fusion delegates to vote for their own seats. The vote stood 73 against the minority report and 56 for it. The majority report was then adopted and the temporary organization made permanent. The anti-fusionists showed signs of indignation at these force methods but bided a while longer. The committee on resolutions reported a platform favoring fusion on Bryan and Caldwell at the Sioux Falls convention. Allen Root asked if Judge Caldwell is a populist. George Raworth responded that he is in fact a silver republican. L. J. Quinby declared that whatever might be his politics he had endeavored himself to organize labor by his decisions. E. F. Moresarty denounced the action of the convention in committing the support of populists to two men neither of whom is a populist. Dr. Peabody said he had held the impression that Caldwell is a populist, but said rather than create indignity he would withdraw his name. There was a storm of protest and it was not withdrawn. H. F. McIntosh said that it is simply a question whether it shall be Bryan or McKinley and imperialism and that every delegate present must realize that fact. Cheers and Hisses Mingle. J. B. Osborne declared that the imperialism of the democratic party disfranchises more men than there are inhabitants in the Philippines and nothing more imperialistic had ever been witnessed than the manner in which the recent national committee meeting at Lincoln had been manipulated. His reference to Senator Allen's participation in that work was greeted, with cheers, groans and hisses. The Sioux Falls convention is to be merely a democratic show and no one will be nominated with Bryan for vice president except a democrat. It will not be Caldwell. The report of the platform committee was adopted. E. F. Cross submitted a resolution an-dorsing John O. Yeiser for governor and authorizing him to select the delegates to the state nominating convention. This was opposed by a number, attention being directed to the fact that it was not mentioned in the call, but after Yeiser had declared that unless he could be trusted in this he did not want the nomination it prevailed by a vote of 72 to 15. In the course of his remarks he said that he had refused to mix in the pending fight and mentioned the fact that Elmer Thomas is a candidate for the nomination for attorney general. Silas Robbins received a vote of endorsement for a position in the tax commissioner's office. Elmer Thomas moved that a committee of seven be appointed to name the delegation to the state convention and that no man be sent who is not in favor of the Sioux Falls convention. E. F. Moresarty declared that he was not going to be bound by the action of the convention and called upon all who felt as he did to withdraw. John Tierney moved that the wards and precincts select their delegates, but subsequently withdrew the motion just as George Raworth declared that the South Omaha delegates were not going to stay with the convention and help elect delegates to a democratic convention. This was the signal for a general withdrawal of the Deaver row, which split the convention about evenly. List of the Delegates. A committee of seven, comprising M. J. O'Connell, Peter Kiewitz, J. B. Jones, T. G. Kellogg, E. E. Thomas, W. A. Whisman and Allen Root then selected the following delegates to the convention at Lincoln tomorrow: Victor Wilson, George Magney, E. E. Thomas, at large; John Barnett, E. Stult, Dave Rowden, M. J. O'Connell, Charles Pospisil, M. Cavanaugh, Willis J. Kory, Ryan, P. Quinlan, E. J. Anderson, Ralph Hall, John Hollenback, Henry Kruse, William Whisman, Allen Root, Frank Crawford, Joseph Miller, George Scarr, George Evans, James Randolph. As all of the South Omaha contingent had gone out with the anti-fusionists the committee selected Charles Curtis, Judge Fowler, G. W. Woodley and Silas Robbins and appointed a committee comprising Victor Wilson, Herman Cohen and Joseph Anderson to fill out the representation from that city. Upon the suggestion of Herman Cohen that Secretary Charles Curtis be elected, the committee had gone out with the other crowd his place was declared vacant and L. J. Quinby elected to succeed him. In the same way Dr. Clem Deaver and Cornforth in the Eighth ward were supplanted by George Magney and W. J. Welshans. August Cline in the Ninth by James McLeod, Raworth and Beckett from South Omaha by Charles Curtis and Dan Way and in the Third ward L. V. Guey, Michael McGuire and N. H. Church by F. S. Horton, Alfred Jones and Richard Cady. The convention then adjourned at 8:29 p. m. Anti-Fusion Convention. The middle-of-the-road delegates marched through the streets to the hall in the Fuller block at the corner of Fourteenth and Douglas streets. An organization was effected by the election of G. W. Raworth of South Omaha as chairman, Ed Miller secretary and V. D. Lilly assistant secretary. A committee on credentials reported that delegates were present from the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth wards of Omaha and all the wards of South Omaha, also recommending the seating of the contesting delegations from the First and Sixth wards. The report was adopted without objection. From the committee on resolutions came the following report, which was adopted by a unanimous vote: Resolved, That the people's independent party of Douglas county, Nebraska, in convention assembled, reaffirms the declaration of principles enunciated in the Omaha platform of 1892; and be it further Resolved, That under any and all circumstances we will refuse to support any candidate for office who does not accept these principles. Resolved, That the delegates from this convention to the state convention are hereby instructed to use every honorable means to have the Nebraska state convention of the people's party select delegates to the Cincinnati convention, the only legal convention to be held in the year 1900 by the people's party of the United States, and be it further Resolved, That we endorse the provisions hereof and call for the national convention providing that officeholders shall not sit as delegates in people's party conventions, and be it further Resolved, That we denounce the halting methods adopted by democrats masquerading as populists. After considerable fierce speaking, in which the other faction was roundly denounced, the following list of delegates to the state convention was read and adopted: Joseph Kuss, James R. Catarrh Among Children. How It May Be Safely Cured. Do Not Permit a Cold in the Head to Become Chronic.

Nearly all children have nasal catarrh. Some are born with it, while with others it is the result of an enlargement of the adenoid glands when they are five or six years of age. Catarrh manifests itself with the swelling of the nose, giving the child a "nasal twang of speech"; the eyes become red and watery; breath is bad, and sleep is disturbed; not being able to breathe freely, in some cases the affection extends into the throat, causing frequent attacks of sore throat. It is dangerous to let such symptoms develop into a chronic state and when they are first detected it is best to give the little one a simple and harmless remedy two or three times a day and attend to getting a remedy such as Gaius' Catarrh Tablets.
