This match differed from recent contests of this order, Insemuch as it was to all intents and purposes "on the level." Rocher gained the first fall in twenty-four minutes and twenty-five seconds by a half Nelson hold. The Dane secured the next fall. which proved to be the last, by a front body hold and throw. Roeber was unable to come to the center at the call of time after a ten-minute intermission and Olsen, therefore, was given the match.

Olsen looked big enough to eat Roeber-Bob Fitzsimmons was one of Roeber's seconds. The men shook hands at 9:50 o'clock, Oisen appeared to be very nervous. The Dane secured a wrist hold, which Roeber broke in twenty seconds. " Both then secured wrist locks, but neither held on for more than a minute. Roeber finally got a strangle and with a back lock threw him to the floor on all fours. Then Roeber tried to get a half Nelson, but failed, as the big fellow sprang to his feet. After some fiddling Rocher dropped to the mat purposely. Olsen secured a three-quarter Nelson on Rocher, but Ernest broke away from it by spinning Roeber then floored his man and attempted a baif Nelson, which was broken after a fig. Moonright won, intrada second, Berfew seconds' work, and both men struggled to their feet. Roeber's arms encircled Olsen's waist and the Scandinavian, in his Hooker third. Exertions Cause Blood to Flow. Rocber's efforts to maintain his hold caused the blood to rush to his bead and his eyes to bulge from their sockets. The Dane's nose bled profusely because of his exertions.

After each mixup Olsen presented both arms in a confident manner, as if inviting attack. He grappled the German with a two-arm neck lock, which Roeber spun out Immediately after followed a sensation. Roeber obtained an arm and neck hold, which pinned Olsen with right shoulder and hip to the floor. There seemed to be no escape for the big fellow, as Roeber, still maintaining his hold, repeatedly jumped a foot into the air, landing each time on the Dane's body and left shoulder with terrific force. Olsen broke the hold, only to fall a victim on the other side, Roeber securing a half Nelson, which slowly, but surely, forced has the bigger man to succumb and Roeber gained the first fall in twenty minutes, twenty-four seconds.

Roeber left the ring for a rubdown during a ten-minute intermission, but Olsen remained in the ring and was attended to there by his seconds.

Second Round Opens.

Opening the second round, the preliminary

The Dane came right back and after grappling the German with a front body hold, back to the floor with great force. The Dane then fell on top of his man with his full weight and, having the right shoulder seconds when Roeber should succumb. The referee tapped Olsen on the back, signifying that the Dane had gained a fall. Time. tourteen minutes, thirty seconds.

Roeber Weeps Over the Result. Roeber lay on his back and had to be carried in a limp condition to his corner. where two doctors were summoned to attend to the German, who seemed to be infured severely. Roeber claimed to have sustained a fractured rib on the right side. The doctors who examined him said that he might be internally injured, but that no ribs were broken. They refused to permit him to continue the bout. Olsen was thereupon declared the winner, while Roeber sat in his corner crying like a child.

Bob Fitzsimmons then jumped into the ring and, while admitting Roeber's defeat, challenged the Dane on behalf of Roeber

Receiver for a Jockey Club.

ST. PAUL. March 21.—A petition was filed this afternoon in the district court, asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Twin City Jockey club. The petitioner is L. I. Scott, the well known theatrical manager, who was a judgment creditor of the club to the extent of $4,500. Execution on the judgment was unsatisfied, no assets being discoverable. The Twin City Jockey club was organized in 1889, beginning its active career at that time. It leased the race track from the State Agricultural society, built a grandstand and proceeded to make improvements at a cost of upward of $75,000. The capital stock amounts to $100,000. The judgments against the club amount to about $22,000. A state law against poolselling and bookmaking caused the abandonment of racing after a few seasons. Receiver for a Jockey Club.
