

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

While Hunting on Cut Off Lake Ralph Redman is Fatally Wounded.

DRAGS TOWARD HIM A LOADED SHOTGUN

Weapon is Discharged and He Receives the Charge Full in the Face—Falls from the Boat Dead.

Ralph Redman, 19 years old, accidentally shot himself at 10 o'clock yesterday morning while hunting on Cut Off lake. He reached forward, seized a towing pole which lay across the seat of the boat, and as he dragged it toward him, the hammer caught and the left barrel of the hammer was discharged. He received the charge in the face. The shock caused him to stagger and he fell from the boat.

His companion grasped the dying boy by the hair as he arose in the water and held his head just above the surface. With his right hand he then manipulated one of the cars and towed the body to shore. Emil Larson, custodian of the boats, was called to assist in dragging the body upon the platform. By this time life was quite extinct.

The dead boy is the son of George A. Redman, a live stock dealer living at 629 South Twenty-ninth avenue.

Early in the morning four boys set out from town to go duck hunting on Cut Off lake. The party comprised, besides Redman and Arnold, Arthur Welsh, 16 years old, son of L. A. Welsh of the hammer bureau, and Howard Blackburn, 14 years old, son of Attorney T. W. Blackburn. Arriving at the lake, at the foot of Ames avenue, they divided into pairs. Welsh and Blackburn secured a boat first and pushed out. Redman and Arnold had some trouble in choosing a launch and in this interval the party became separated. By the time the second pair had selected a boat the first was well out upon the lake and had passed out of sight around a miniature peninsula.

Redman and Arnold threw their hunting paraphernalia into the skiff. This included two double-barreled breech-loading shotguns, a quantity of shells, two pairs of waders and some decoy ducks.

How it Happened. Young Arnold seated himself in the stern of the boat and took the oars. Redman occupied the short bench at the bow and sat facing his companion. Arnold had taken but a few strokes when Redman spoke to him:

"Is your gun loaded and cocked?" he asked.

"No," Arnold answered, "It's loaded, but not cocked."

Redman's piece was lying across the middle seat of the boat, the stock resting upon the bottom, the muzzle pointing upward at a slant of about forty-five degrees. As Arnold ceased speaking Redman arose from his seat, leaned forward, took hold of the barrel of his gun and dragged it toward him. The hammers caught on the bench. There was a loud report. Redman staggered and fell from the boat into the water. He sank immediately. Upon the surface of the lake, marking the spot where he went down, the water was colored a livid red.

A few seconds later the body arose. Arnold grasped it by the hair, held the head and face above the surface and then with his free hand managed to work the boat back to shore.

Bothies Arnold the only eyewitness of the tragedy was a 6-year-old boy, Albert Hanson, who was standing on the shore. He corroborates the foregoing account.

The police department and coroner were notified by telephone. Sergeant Hudson and Chief Hejlskov went to the scene, and soon after their arrival the coroner's wagon came and took the body to Coroner Swanson's undertaking rooms. A brother of Redman who works in Cudahy's packing house in South Omaha was notified of the accident.

Face frightfully disfigured. The face of the dead boy is frightfully disfigured. The charge entered at the left of the nose, a little below the eye, and the bone beneath the flesh is caved in. As the muzzle of the gun was probably not more than eighteen inches from his face at the time of the accident the hair and eyebrows are singed and the flesh is pitted by the powder.

An examination of the shotgun shows that both hammers descended upon the shells, as the caps of both shells are indented. The shell in the right barrel, however, failed to explode. Upon both hammers is paint rubbed from the seat across which the gun was dragged, and in the bottom of the boat was found a splinter torn from the bench by the gun hammers.

The dead boy was a student at the Farnam school and was considered by his teachers very bright and promising. His companion had been his friend since early boyhood.

The parents of the dead boy called at the coroner's office to view the remains. Asked if they desired an inquest they replied that they did not, as they had every reason to believe the affair was purely accidental. The funeral will be early next week.

Dangerous counterfeit bill. A dangerous counterfeit $10 certificate is reported by the government secret service department. The bill purports to be of the series of 1901, check letter A, plate number 72; J. Fount Tillman, register; D. N. Morrison, treasurer; size of Hendrick's small scalloped vermilion seal; answers description of counterfeit certificate reported November 15, 1898, except the portrait of Andrew D. and C. in "D." below the portrait of Hendrick's has been omitted. Imprint of the bureau of engraving and printing has been omitted from the left end of the back of the note; the "10" is upside down in the words, "This certificate is receivable for customs, taxes and all public dues," in the name at the top and of the number of the note, while the "10" in the word "certificate" in the small panel at the upper right back of note looks like an "12."

PAT HAVEY RAISES A SIEGE

Incident in Police Circles that Suspends the Recent Striving Events in South Africa.

For thirty minutes Saturday morning Mrs. L. H. Marvin of 1819 Izard street was in a state of siege. In the street car-pool house at Nineteenth and Izard she played the part of Lady Smith, while her irate husband without essayed the role of General Joubert. She dared not come out lest he assault her. He took an impregnable position upon the curbstone commanding both exits, seated himself upon a koojy in the form of a water jug and lit a cigar. A moment before he had chased her from home, she ran down the street as fast as she could, he following, and the siege continued until she took refuge in the power house, where he dared not follow.

But in laying his plan of campaign the husband had neglected to issue an order to cut the telephone wire. The beleaguered force was quick to take advantage of this. She called up Desk Sergeant Havey, the General Roberts of the engagement, and asked for reinforcements.

The patrol wagon was dispatched to the scene and the siege was raised by arresting Marvin and taking him to the station.

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

The big republican rally at Woodman hall Friday night is already bearing good results," said H. A. Carpenter, manager of the republican campaign yesterday. "As has been noted in The Bee the principles of the party and the idea of reform in municipal affairs were the leading themes of the various speakers and on account of the present condition of affairs residents generally are looking to the republican party for relief."

Continuing, Mr. Carpenter said that during the day quite a number of democrats, members of the Democratic Municipal club and others not members of any club called at the headquarters in the Murphy block and expressed themselves as willing to not only vote the republican ticket, but to work for the candidates.

Through the addresses of the different speakers attention has been forcibly called to the extremely rotten condition of the police, garbage and street departments. The promise of Candidate Kelly to make a cleaning out in these departments caused, in a great measure, the turning of democrats to the republican ticket.

Henceforth it has been customary for candidates for mayor to get out on the hustler for the strength of their personal popularity, and the candidate whose barrel held the most usually won. The republican nominee for mayor, A. R. Kelly, has established a precedent in his majority content that should secure for him the confidence and endorsement of every taxpayer and resident of the city.

In speaking of this attitude of Mr. Kelly Editor Dennett of the Sun said last evening: "Never before has a candidate for mayor in this city submitted to the voters a full and complete declaration of principles, which he as mayor would enforce and maintain."

One of the important planks of this platform reads as follows: "The city of South Omaha shall be governed in the interest of all its citizens without class distinction. No favors should be granted the rich that are withheld from the poor. The welfare of the people is, and of right ought to be, paramount to personal interests."

Continuing, Mr. Dennett said that the principle enunciated in the foregoing paragraph is an important one, and its enforcement in the management of the affairs of the city means that the humblest of South Omaha's citizens will receive proper and just consideration in all matters.

Mr. Kelly has pledged that if elected he will secure for the taxpayers the strictest economy in the matter of current expenses and this is a matter which is very much sought after by the residents at the present time.

Other members on the ticket have made similar pledges and their standing in the community is evidence enough that these promises will be fulfilled.

Frank Koutsky, the candidate for city treasurer, has been a business man here for years, and has hosts of friends who believe him to be strictly honest. The same may be said of Nela Nelson, candidate for city clerk, and also of the nominees for councilmen and Board of Education.

Today the republicans will hold meetings as follows: Danish meeting, at Frank's hall, 2 p. m.; Polish, at Rex hall, Thirty-third and L streets, 4 p. m.; Bohemians, at Koutsky's hall, 7:30 p. m.

Local speakers will deliver addresses at all these meetings and a number of candidates will be present for the purpose of making a few remarks and getting acquainted.

Commencing on Monday meetings will be held in all parts of the city every night, and on Monday nights another rally will be held at Modern Woodman hall.

Dewey Naval Parade. The Dewey naval parade was the grandest, the greatest demonstration of honor on the face of the earth in honor of any man or people. At this parade the Hudson river was filled for seven miles with 1,515 vessels, including some of Uncle Sam's most important engines of war. It reproduced true to life for the first time in the west at Blum's hall by South Omaha enterprise.

We kindly solicit your patronage of home enterprises and guarantee satisfaction. To those who are not satisfied and feel that they have not received their money's worth they over after having seen this great demonstration we will cheerfully refund their money.

Matinee at 2:30 p. m. and evening show at 8 p. m. each day until March 31. Do not miss seeing this great entertainment. Children, 15 cents. Adults, 25 cents.

Big Warehouse Talked Of. The grading of O street is nearly completed and it is understood that a number of property owners during the coming summer. Rumor has it that the Culver Buggy company will erect a good-sized warehouse at Twenty-fifth and O streets in order to secure a storage room for a large stock of farm implements and vehicles.

Time for Withdrawals Expires. The time has expired for any alteration in the three tickets nominated and now no changes can be made in the official ballots. With the exception of the office of police judge the three tickets will stand in full as nominated. Both the democrats and republicans declined to nominate any one for the office of police judge. The labor ticket made a nomination, but the candidate withdrew and another name was substituted.

Official ballots will show the republicans at the head, the democrats next and the united labor party third. The assignment of places on the official ballot goes by the vote cast at the last general election. Last fall the democrats fused with the independents and the free silver republicans, but with no fusion this spring the vote is divided, thus placing the republicans at the head of the ticket.

It was reported on the streets yesterday afternoon that Ballard, the labor candidate, contemplated withdrawing and rumor further had it that the central committee of the united labor party had been in preparation to place a man named Harte on the ticket in place of Ballard. As the time for making such changes has passed, according to the present election laws, no changes will be made. The copy of the official ballots will be sent to the printer at once.

It is expected that sample ballots will be out in a day or so.

Will Support the Republican Ticket. "I understand that there are papers abroad purporting that I have signed endorsing a certain candidate for mayor of our city," said F. H. Cressley yesterday. "I have never in any manner mixed in politics nor have I ever signed such papers to my knowledge. Being a republican, I have advocated the election of the entire republican ticket, and I believe in every citizen exercising his right for choice at the coming election."

Miss Cassie Riley has returned from a trip to Chicago. J. A. Cavers is confined to his home with a severe cold. The bank clearings continue to show a gratifying increase.

Horse sales at the stock yards last week were very successful. Mrs. C. E. Eoff, 2465 N street, was reported quite sick last week. W. B. Taylor is traveling in the west looking after business interests.

The union labor party will hold a rally at Koutsky's hall this afternoon. Last night the Order of the Eastern Star initiated a number of candidates. The report that Mayor Ennor will resign is not given any credence.

Many republicans predict that the ticket will be elected from top to bottom. Republicans say that R. A. Carpenter is making a first-class campaign manager. An excellent portrait of A. R. Kelly is published in the illustrated Bee today.

Dr. H. P. Helms of Glenwood, is the guest of Judge and Mrs. W. S. Babcock. Rev. Joel A. Warner of Creston, Neb., is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Wheeler.

The work of placing the slate roof on the new Episcopal church is nearly completed. A special song service is announced for the Presbyterians at the church at 8 o'clock. The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shrigley was reported some better yesterday.

W. H. Overton, secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, is still quite sick. The platform adopted by the republicans seems to catch the popular idea at this time.

The usual services will be held at the First Methodist Episcopal church today by Pastor Johnson. J. N. Snyder, who has been at the Methodist hospital for the last two weeks, is slowly improving.

Candidates were filing affidavits of nomination expenses with the city clerk and county clerk yesterday. Ralph Sage, one of the pioneer residents of the city, celebrated his 84th birthday of his home, Friday night.

Some startling statements of democratic marionette will be made at the republican meeting to be held this week. "Man's sin is the subject of Rev. Irving Johnson's sermon at the Episcopal church at 11 o'clock today.

The Methodist church will meet with Mrs. C. C. Howe, 3811 Missouri avenue. The Epworth society of the First Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. Denna Alberry, contained a fine window glass at Melcher's drug store.

ing. In years past the designing and painting has been done by Signor Luigi Gregori, a celebrated Roman artist, and his skill doubtless will be in evidence in this year's address. This bit of decorated silk is prized as highly as the medal.

The first recipient of the medal was the late John Gilmory Shea, the distinguished historian and author, who was, perhaps, better versed in the Indian dialects than any other American scholar. The list of medalists includes Patrick Keeley of New York, famous as a church architect; Miss Aliza Allen Starr of Chicago, artist and lecturer; General John Newton, soldier, scientist and engineer; P. V. Hickey of New York, editor of the Catholic Review; Mrs. Anna Hanson, noted writer of religious fiction; William J. Omaha of Chicago, an influential layman; Daniel Dougherty, the famous orator; Henry F. Brownson, son of the distinguished philosopher, Orrestes A. Brownson; Patrick Donoghue, pastor of the Boston Pilot and Donoghue's Magazine, and Thomas Francis Egan, writer and lecturer, now professor in Notre Dame.

The following births and deaths were reported at the office of the Board of Health yesterday: Births—James H. Adams, 15 South Twenty-fifth, boy; Reuben Moore, 115 Jackson, girl; John Nelson, 303 Webster, girl; Edna Blackburn, 164 South Twenty-third, girl; Frank Hellborn, 1313 South Twelfth, girl; Axtain Levi, 55 North Sixteenth, boy; Nela Peterson, 236 South Seventeenth, boy.

Deaths—Harvey R. Schuster, Windsor hotel, 22 years. WORLD-HERALD IS "TAKEN IN" Nibbles on College Boy Frank and Gets Thirstily "Stung"—Thrilling Story.

Newsbys who emerged from the circulation department of the World-Herald yesterday afternoon were instructed to cry: "All about the mysterious disappearance! Bloody streaks! Looks like murder!" At least the boys uttered words to that effect and it is supposed they were acting under instructions.

The "bloody streaks" to which reference was made were told about in a story from Lincoln published in the World-Herald to the effect that Reuben Sampson, a student at the State university, had suddenly disappeared and that there was evidence of a fight. It was stated that he had $200 in his person and that a survey of his sleeping apartments showed the bed clothing to be saturated with blood and that great gobs of gore bespattered the floor. Search for Sampson revealed him not, so the story ran.

It was a well written tale, thrilling to a high degree, and would have been important if true. But Reuben Sampson read the World-Herald in Omaha yesterday afternoon and said somebody was mistaken. "I have not been injured by any one. I have not lost any money, and I have not mysteriously disappeared," said Mr. Sampson to a reporter for The Bee. "If so much crimson fluid was found in my room somebody else must have spilled it after I left, for I have suffered no blood-letting. I simply came to Omaha on a business trip and there is no mystery about it. If my classmates have put up a job on the World-Herald it is no fault of mine."

YOU are as tired in the morning as you are at night. You do not know what it is to have sweet, refreshing sleep. You have an appetite, yet your food seems to do you no good. Your mind does not respond quickly and your memory fails you. You lack energy, the eyes droop, the head is tired and heavy. You want to do many things, yet do no one thing satisfactorily.

That's Overwork

"Last July my oldest daughter was taken sick, and I was on my feet, it seemed to me, night and day for weeks taking care of her. I had no other help than that which my husband gave me, and by the time daughter began to mend I was down sick myself. I was discouraged, and did not care much whether I lived or died. My husband got me a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and its effects were magical. Two bottles of this medicine put me on my feet and made a well woman of me."—JANE M. BROWN, Bentonport, Iowa, Jan. 19, 1900.

"In 1898 my daughter, after graduating, was taken down with nervous debility. She had no strength, no appetite; could not sleep, and doctors did not seem to do her any good. At last, by the advice of a friend, I gave her Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking two bottles of this medicine there was a decided improvement. We followed up this treatment for two months, and my daughter quickly recovered her health."—MRS. OLLIE HELMSICK, Gardiner, Ore., Dec. 29, 1899.

YOUR muscles are flabby and flat. Your shoulders stoop. You are weak, listless, and tired. You are too cold or too warm; short of breath. You are like an engine that needs more fuel. You are one day sick and one day well; yet one day's good work brings three days' weariness. You feel old and ready to drop all the time.

That's Starved Blood

For Biliouness, take Ayer's Pills. Take them with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; one aids the other.

That's Nervous Prostration

"During last year I was suffering with nervous prostration. For weeks I grew weak, became thin, could not sleep, had no appetite, and was in a wretched condition. After taking several kinds of medicines without result, I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla with more than pleasing results. My appetite returned, I slept soundly, my strength and weight increased, and now I am well and strong without the slightest trace of my old trouble. Indeed, I would hardly believe it possible for medicine to bring about such a change in any person."—CLARA MEALY, Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass., December 24, 1899.

All druggists sell Ayer's Sarsaparilla. $1.00 a bottle.
