

BESSEY MAKES HIS REPORT

Acting Chancellor of State University Gives Account of His Stewardship.

SOME IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS MADE

Board of Regents in Session and Today Will in All Probability Choose a New Chancellor.

LINCOLN, April 10.—(Special.)—The regular April meeting of the Board of Regents of the State University was begun at 10 o'clock this afternoon. The session today was devoted to the consideration of the report of Acting Chancellor Bessey, which contained quite a number of important recommendations relative to the administration of the institution. The selection of a chancellor will be considered at tomorrow's meeting.

The following, in substance, is the report of Acting Chancellor Bessey: "To the Regents of the University of Nebraska: Gentlemen—I herewith present my report as acting chancellor of the university.

"As this meeting is primarily a financial one I will bring before you now only those additional matters which require early action, since you will need all the time at your command to make such adjustment of the funds as will enable the university to continue through the next year without too great embarrassment. We must face the fact that here is a great business institution, in many ways like a manufacturing establishment, in which the parts are mutually dependent, and in which the success of the whole depends upon the regular and steady work of each part. It is unfortunately necessary for us to economize very severely for the coming year, but in distributing the burden of our excessive economy, you must do so in such manner as will still provide for the efficient activity of every part.

"I regret to have to announce that Mrs. Emma Parks Wilson, an alumna of this university, who has served very acceptably for two years as dean of women, feels that she must withdraw from the work. Accordingly she has placed her resignation in my hands, to take effect at the closing of the present collegiate year. In accepting her resignation I trust that you will express your high appreciation of the sacrifice which she has made, very unwillingly, in order to help this university to give more care to its young women.

Death of Military Officer.

"With the return of so many of the soldiers it must soon be possible for us to have again the services of a military officer or commandant of the University battalion. Will you pass a formal order asking for an early detail of an officer from active service, and authorize me to take steps to secure favorable action by the War department?"

Reference is made to the excellent work done by Doctor Ellwood as lecturer on sociology, and a recommendation is made that he should be continued with an advanced title. A similar recommendation is made in regard to the work of Dr. Wilson, who has given instruction in Semitic languages with great success.

"I take great pleasure in announcing that Prof. Harry Pratt Judson, dean of faculties of arts, literature and science, and head professor of political science in the University of Chicago, has been selected to be commencement orator for this year. I ask your ratification of this selection and that you appropriate $100 for his services.

"The question of giving certificates to those who follow the work in agriculture, horticulture, mechanical arts and domestic science, referred by you to the industrial faculty, was passed upon favorably by the faculty, in accordance with the committee report which was before you in your February meeting. I now recommend that you authorize the faculty of each school to make the necessary regulations in regard to time and manner of granting such certificates, with such other details as may be necessary, and to report the same to the chancellor's office for approval.

Agricultural Education.

"The committee appointed by you in your December meeting, consisting of the professors of agriculture, animal husbandry and horticulture, to investigate the needs of agricultural education in the university, has made a full report, which is transmitted herewith. The committee assigns two reasons why agricultural instruction has not been more popular in the university. First, the university has not advanced in agriculture as far as it should have, and second, the instruction given during the past few years in the high school.

"The lack of adequate equipment and instructors in agricultural subjects in the university. Accordingly the following recommendations are made: "That the present three-year course in the School of Agriculture be developed as follows: Early in the addition of domestic science, a number of hours in agriculture, horticulture, dairying, veterinary medicine and animal husbandry, and a course in Latin in the third year, and eventually to add a fourth year.

"That the next legislature be asked to provide for permanent improvements on the farm, as follows: Purchase of a new building, sewage plant, up-keep and repairs, feed grinder and cutter, steam heat for old building, a new horse and sheep barn, mechanical shops, greenhouses, buildings for domestic animals, and dairy equipment aggregating $75,000.

"That dairying be differentiated from agriculture and an instructor appointed for agriculture and an instructor in veterinary medicine be appointed under the command of that course in the university and School of Agriculture.

"That instructors be appointed in agriculture, horticulture and animal husbandry.

"That the animal pathologist and the bacteriologist be appointed to each given a vote in the senate.

"That heads of university departments have charge of instruction in the School of Agriculture.

"That adequate illustrative material for the School of Agriculture be provided.

Industrial College.

"The faculty recommends the adoption of more flexible conditions for admission, requiring, as before, 25 points for admission, of which English (4 points), mathematics (2 points), geometry (3 points), chemistry (1 point), physics (1 point) are specifically required (12 points in all), while in the required language (French, German, Latin, Greek, 4 points), and natural science (botany or zoology, 1 point) options are allowed. The remaining eleven points may be offered in combinations of language, historical, manual training, physical science, natural science, trigonometry, mechanical drawing, physiology, geography, civics and political economy. As this plan has already met with the approval of many of the schoolmen in Nebraska and has been adopted in many of the foremost universities, I recommend its adoption.

"The faculty makes no essential change in the groups of study in the university, requiring 125 credit hours of work for graduation in all cases, and making drill and physical training required subjects without credit. You are referred to the full report for the details.

"Literature, Science and Arts. This faculty also recommends the adoption of more flexible conditions of admission, of which English (4 points), language (2 points), algebra (2 points), geometry (2 points), and history (2 points) are specifically required (12 points in all), the remaining eleven points to be made up of the combination selected from Greek, Latin, German, French, history, physical science, natural science, advanced algebra, trigonometry, physiology, geography, civics and political

BURKET TO BE RENOMINATED

First District Congressman Will Be Named to Succeed Himself.

CONVENTION MEETS THURSDAY EVENING

Something of a Contest is Expected Over the Choice of District Delegates to the National Convention.

LINCOLN, April 10.—(Special.)—The First district republican convention for the nomination of a congressman and the selection of two delegates to the national convention will be held in this city next Thursday evening. There is no opposition to the re-nomination of E. J. Burket for congress, but there will probably be a strong fight between the several men who aspire to represent the First District in the national convention. The republican county has instructed for L. W. Billingsley, but an effort may be made by the other counties in the district to secure both delegates. It being argued that a congressman from two successive terms is enough for this district. Several counties have endorsed E. A. Tucker of Richardson and Case county is supposed to stand solid for George W. Spurlock of Plattsmouth.

Nearly every county in the First district has instructed for E. J. Burket, who is now serving in congress, and his later re-nomination Thursday evening is a foregone conclusion. Unfortunately Congressman Burket will be unable to attend the convention. He had arranged to pair his vote with Congressman Tucker, but this has broken the agreement and on account of the importance of his vote Mr. Burket will remain in Washington.

May Day Celebration.

Arrangements are being made by the merchants of Lincoln for a May day celebration, to consist chiefly of a flag parade and the unveiling of the Spanish cannon recently loaned the city by the War department. A committee comprised of several prominent members of the Union-Commercial club has been appointed to make all necessary arrangements for the celebration and, with the cooperation of the merchants and citizens, they hope to make the proposed affair a big success. The republican state convention will be held in this city May 2, the day following the May day celebration, and the railroads have granted a reduced rate for both events.

High School Inspector.

Reference is made to the good work done by the inspector of high schools, who has been very busy throughout the year up to the present time. His inspection of the schools of each week out in the state, and frequently has remained over Sunday in order to save the expense of returning. This has enabled him to visit many schools, usually from four to five each week. Attention is called to the fact that the work done by the inspector in the field should be thoroughly committed and studied in the office and a recommendation is made looking to the more complete carrying on of this office work. Reference is made to the work of the registrar's office, which is commended; and also to the new office of publisher, which is proving its usefulness.

Farmers' Institutes.

"From the superintendent's report it is learned that fifty-one institutes were held during the winter, and it is estimated that from 25,000 to 30,000 people were reached. The cost of the institutes was $1,533.15, divided as follows: Superintendent's salary $500.00 Office help, printing, stationery and supplies 18.75 Railroad fare 37.48 Per diem for lecturers outside 400.00 Expense for all lecturers on the road 401.92 Expense for demonstrators 45.00 Expense for stereopticon lantern 110.00 Total $1,533.15

"Thirty-eight men were sent out by the superintendent. The regular institute feature consisted of four of the experiment station staff and eight other men and women. In addition several university professors assisted in the work by giving evening lectures. Dr. Peters, who is aided by the superintendent to be one of the most successful institute workers, attended twenty institutes. The superintendent asks that a larger sum be set aside for the coming year for this work. In regard to the institute force, he says:

"We do not need more men, but more intelligent men. In order that the grade of work may be raised, most of our speakers should be successful farmers who have large business interests which they have built up from meager beginnings through improved methods and business insight. We must give the incentive to command the time and thought of the best men. These men should not be retired farmers, but men who have made their competence upon the farm and are still in the business they advocate. The man who speaks from an institute platform should thoroughly believe that the farm is a good place to live, a good place to retire to and a good place to die. No other men will be largely successful unless it be in the discussion of a few technical subjects.

"He says further: 'It seems to be essential that some rather graphic and spectacular feature be connected with the institute program. We need both men and features which should be attractive. In fact, all speakers should be strong enough to hold the attention of the audience. We have been showing the stereopticon lantern this year, showing experiment station views to good advantage. This lantern feature is attractive and furnishes diversion to the audience. It is the best possible means of advancing the institute program. Instructive lessons can also be given through contrast of different views. We need more and better farm views. A farmer said to me recently: 'I have learned more about the experiment station and School of Agriculture from one hour in the field than I could learn from seven years' residence in the state and an attendance at three previous farmers' institutes.'"

"In the present state of development I would limit the institute to a few lines of work, namely: Meat production, dairy farming, forage crops, horticulture, some home subject and agricultural education. The education of the farmers' sons and daughters should be given some place, but should be incidental to the question of better farming and more economical production, which is itself an effort at agricultural education."

"He recommends the publication of an institute annual, written by practical and successful farmers and carefully edited by a man with scientific knowledge. In case such publication is not feasible at present, he recommends the publication of educational bulletins written by members of the station, staff with the thought that they might be useful in the School of Agriculture as well as for the farming public.

The remainder of the report deals largely with the financial aspects of the university, touching upon such topics as the proper assignment of funds, incidental fee, the use of library and departmental funds, tuition fees, the assignment of funds in the experiment station, etc.
