MR. TOLSTRUP EXPLAINS WHY His Wife Adopted Christian Science Treatment Only After Physicians' Aid Had Failed.

OMAHA, April 30.—To the Editor of The Bee: In justice to myself and Christian Science, I wish to have published the following correction of an article headed "Psychical Remedies Fail," which appeared in the Bee of April 25, and was an account widely departing from the facts connected with my wife's death and last illness. The misstatements in the article are these:

1. That about a year ago my wife became an enthusiastic convert to the Christian Science faith. 2. That her health was excellent. 3. That her own treatment failed to show any result and that neighboring "demonstrators" were then called in. 4. That Dr. Eskildsen was summoned a few hours before her death.

My wife had been in delicate health during the entire time of our married life, a period extending over about ten years; through that time had been subject to pneumonic and pleuritic affections, had required frequent attention from doctors and had required the use of medicine. Consumption was hereditary in her family. For three years before her death she had been more than ordinarily sick and had taken medicine, more or less, all of the time.

From the latter part of September to the 20th of December last year, she was under the constant care of an excellent physician, our family doctor, and steadily grew worse. I understood from the doctor, I myself believed, and I gathered from what my wife said that she thought that medicine was doing her no good and that her case was hopeless. Her stomach, however, retained medicine and she finally refused to take any more.

About the middle of December a friend, who had been healed under Christian Science treatment, called upon her and recommended Christian Science. Together we considered the recommendation, finally concluded to try the science treatment and on December 26 I called upon a Christian Science healer and asked that she visit my wife at our house and do what could be done to help her.

Under the care of the science treatment brought her relief from suffering and a peace of mind which remained constant to the last. About two weeks before she passed away I tried to prevail upon her to again try the doctors, but she refused, saying they could do her no good; that she would not take any more medicine.

I do not deem myself open to the imputation of criminal negligence, because after all other remedies had for years been tried and had failed, I, in accordance with her wish, secured for her a remedy which came as highly recommended as did Christian Science. Though I am not a Christian Scientist, and because I do not understand how the cure was effected, I am not prepared to say that the science treatment brought her relief from suffering and a peace of mind which remained constant to the last.

ANOTHER CASE OF SMALLPOX

William Buford, a Colored Carpet Cleaner, is Stricken with the Disease.

The health officials located another case of smallpox Monday afternoon at 2515 Cuming street, the patient being William Buford, a colored carpet cleaner. Buford declared that he contracted the malady by distributing the formated germs in some dusty carpet, but the officials have a theory that the infection came from the barber shop in the Third ward in which three other negroes were exposed. Buford, as well as his wife, made vigorous objection to his removal to the pest house, but as there are eight other inmates in the house the health authorities will insist upon his isolation.

The health officers are still making use of the five dilapidated election booths as a pest house, two additional booths having been taken to the county hospital grounds last week. The advisory board has completed the repairs on the newly purchased hospital on West Center street, but all further proceedings are delayed by an injunction. Two proposals have been received from persons desirous of becoming tenants of the hospital property and a special meeting of the board will be called to consider their offers.

The man was removed from his home and taken to the new county pest house after dark Monday evening by the city authorities.
