Neighbors of the Suffering Wife Say that the Appeal for Visiting of a Broken Heart.

Fettered by manacles and guarded by two deputy sheriffs, Elmer Woodcock, convicted burglar, was led from the county jail yesterday to his ailing home in the river bottoms, where his wife is critically ill.

Woodcock and Harry Shelly were arrested last December on the charge of stealing a clock and a quantity of silverware from a "Union Pacific" freight car. They broke open the car door, so the testimony disclosed, and constituted burglary. Otherwise, the theft would have been no greater crime than petty larceny.

LITIGATION IS NOT LIKELY

Commissioners Think They Have Something to Offer for Maintenance of City Prisoners.

BENT ON TAKING HIS LIFE

A. R. Gladly, a Painter, Endeavors to Commit Suicide by Stabbing.

HE IS NOW IN PRECARIOUS CONDITION

Had Cut His Throat, Severed the Vein in His Wrist and Made Three Ghastly Abdominal Wounds.

Under the impression that he had mortally wounded himself, A. R. Gladly, would-be suicide, lay down in a patch of weeds on the fringe near Forty-second and Howard streets, dipped a stem of joint grass in the blood that gushed from his wrist and wrote the following in a small pocket account book.

I am sick and out of work. I was K. L. Lusk at Burlington, Ia., and a stranger here. Nifty Henry Anders of Burlington. He is a boot and shoe man and will have my remains shipped there.

Then the writer rolled over upon his stomach, pillow his forehead upon his arm and resigned himself to die.

It was lying thus, dazed and weak from loss of blood, that the police found him a few minutes later. He was lifted tenderly into the ambulance and the driver was instructed to proceed as carefully as possible so as not to start the sounds bleeding.

With a horse-cyrie he thrust a hand down his throat in a desperate attempt to shut off his breath.

From this point on until the ambulance stopped at the Presbyterian hospital, where a doctor was summoned, Gladly's condition had all they could do to restrain his mad efforts to destroy himself.

His condition at present is precarious. The physicians have not made a thorough examination of his wounds and are unable to say whether or not he will recover.

About 9:30 yesterday persons in the vicinity of Forty-second and Farnam streets were startled to see a man sauntering along the middle of the road with his throat cut.

From a wound just above the rim of his collar blood spouted in an intermittent stream, the gusher incident with his heartbeats, but he seemed oblivious to this circumstance.

He was engaged in completing the work of self-destruction. With a dull pocket-knife he cut, nonchalantly at his left wrist, endeavoring to sever an artery.

Among those who saw him thus engaged were R. L. Edwards, 142 North Thirty-second street, and A. Lammann, 1505 North Twenty-first street.

He advanced with his gruesome journey a large crowd gathered from the sparsely settled neighborhood and watched him, not daring to interfere, as they believed him mad.

"Once he stopped cutting at his wrist," said one, "and examined the edge of his knife. It didn't seem to suit him, he stepped over and whetted it on his shoe. Then he crossed one leg over the knee of the other, stood on one foot and honed the blade on the sole of his shoe, and when he moved on again a pool of blood marked the spot where he had stood. The last I saw of him he was trying to stab himself in the region of the bowels; then I turned away, sick at heart."

Others, attracted by the ghastly spectacle, watched him until he left the road and lay down in a clump of weeds.

In the meantime several persons had called on the police station by telephone and given a description of the man, his name, his features, Inspector Seybold is well known to the old citizens of Omaha, and especially in postoffice circles.

For several years he was inspector with headquarters at the office of the postoffice inspector from the service and went into the insurance business in California. When the first inspector of the Havana district died, at the solicitation of General Rathbone, Mr. Seybold was appointed to the position.

Mr. Q. S. Wright, inspector at this place, who has seen service in Cuba, is acquainted personally with almost every person who has so far figured in the investigation.

Speaking of the matter Mr. Scott said: "I do not think these irregularities would have occurred if General Rathbone had followed the system in vogue in this country. The whole thing is a case of imposture."

He who takes charge of the investigation of these cases is Inspector Seybold, who has been in the service since 1887, and has been in the service since 1887, and has been in the service since 1887.

WILL FILE REVISED BRIEF

City Attorney Connell Disclaims Any Wish to Criticize the Supreme Court.

NEITHER WAS DISRESPECT INTENDED

Objectionable Portions of the Document Will Be Eliminated and It Will Be Presented When Court Re-convenes.

The legal department of the city will not accept as a serious blow the striking from the supreme court files Wednesday of the brief and police commissioner's brief.

City Attorney Connell will make a motion as soon as the court reconvenes for the purpose of filing a new brief, or more properly, the old one, with the objectionable portions eliminated. The new document will contain no personal allusions and will be what the city attorney has called an "absolutely cold-blooded legal presentation."

"I am unable to understand," said Mr. Connell, "how the court could have construed the contents of the brief as in the least degree reflecting upon its dignity. The objectionable matter was evidently contained, however, in the extracts published in The Bee yesterday, as they were the only portions relating to abstract legal propositions. The matter quoted, however, is entirely a criticism of the opposing counsel and not of the court. It is a historical review of the facts, showing the disqualification of Judge Holcomb because of his direct concern in the case and asking him not to sit in judgment. In view of his published statement of views at the time his board was displaced the point was made that he would no more rule his own appointees out of office than a father would kick his offspring out of his own home."

He respectfully submitted that the portions of the brief which seemed to have been objectionable to the court were wholly directed against the contents of the opposing counsel and in order that our language in that regard might not be construed as reflecting upon Judge Holcomb the following clause was added: "To his honor, Judge Holcomb, the foregoing statement imparts no discredit; for he has not yet, as judge attempted to vindicate the course he pursued or to sanction the actions he performed as a governor; nor are we willing that it shall be assumed that he will do so."

"This latter clause, which is published in the World-Herald version yesterday," added Mr. Connell, "while it appeared in full in The Bee. The most dangerous falsehood is a truth half stated."

In view of the fact that the court construed the portions of the brief as disrespectful the document will be re-published and presented at once. The plea of the respondents will be based wholly on the ground of "res adjudicata" and that the case was settled once and for all by the former ruling of the supreme court. We are confident that this argument cannot be answered by the opposing counsel, for the supreme tribunal can only affirm or reverse.

These pianos are considered to be at the top of the list in regard to elegance of finish, tone, durability and workmanship. We have just received some new ones in these pianos either in hand-made ones, Ambaire, Rosewood or Mahogany veneers, which are the finest that have ever been produced. The tone of these pianos is musically perfect, being full and sympathetic and of remarkable sustaining quality. The action is responsive, certain and devoid of any frictional defects. They are made in four or five different and convenient sizes and designs and we have some of these to show you. If you want a first-class piano there is nothing that we can recommend to your consideration more than a Kranich & Bach piano—as there is absolutely nothing which is essentially characteristic of the highest grade of pianos lacking in them. We invite your inspection.

Inspector Scott Reopens Golden Harvest of Peddlers' License Fees.

The passage of the peddlers' ordinance this week has brought the harvest time for the state inspectors.

The market when the first vegetable wagon appears at 5:30 a. m. and gathers in tribute until the last turnip has been sold. Owing to the confused condition of the statutes the peddlers had escaped altogether up to this time the payment of license fees.

The berries arrived in such quantities and at such low rates that peddlers saw a profit of 12.5 per cent (twenty-four boxes) by selling them at 10 cents per box. The vendors could not afford therefore to lose their regular customers, and such a prospect of profit in sight are rapidly paying up.

The inspector announces that every peddler found without a number and receipt by next week will be arrested without ceremony.

With regard to the implied rebate administered by the council Tuesday night, Inspector Scott says that the office hours now in force in his department are the same as have been maintained for ten years. He regards the notice to appear more regularly at his office as a pleasure on the part of the council. It is imperative, he says, that he shall be on the street a large portion of the time if his duties are to be faithfully carried out.

To Gain a Good Reputation. "The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you desire to appear." That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can always be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take. This has given it a good reputation wherever it has become known and accounts for its great popularity.
