There were several theater parties, while in the boxes were noticed: Mrs. Taylor, Miss Taylor, ex-Governor Boyd, Mr. Joseph Elizabeth Allen, Miss Allen, Miss Swensberg, Mr. Charles Young, Mr. Linsley Sherwood, Mr. and Mrs. Will Rector, Miss. Kitchen, Miss Dickinson, Miss Montgomery of Council Bluffs, Mrs. McCord, Mr. Frank Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson of Council Bluffs, Mr. and Mrs. Lomax, Mr. Coffman. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rogers, Miss Kirkendall, Mr. and Mrs. Coles, Miss Burr of Lincoln, Mr. Paxton, Dr. Lyman, Fred White, Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Hartman.

Debut of Miss Barker. Between the hours of 3 and 6 on Thursday the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. George sisting. Barker at Thirty-seventh and Jones streets was filled with several hundred guests, the occasion being a reception at which Mrs Barker formally introduced her daughter, Miss Mary, to Omaha society.

In spite of the threatening weather few of those invited failed to be present at the event, which has been eagerly looked forand the great quantity of these sweet offerings was but another evidence of Miss Barker's popularity.

The house was a veritable fairy land, flowers everywhere. In the hall smilax and red roses were used, while the morning room was artistically decorated with palms. The library was a perfect bower, with its festoons of smilax and bridal wreaths and bunches of Marguerites.

In the salon parlor Mrs. Barker and Miss Barker received their guests before a bank dressed in her wedding dress, while Miss Barker were a dainty white organdie with lace trimmings and carried a large boquet of lilles of the valley.

Bridal wreath was also used in the conservatory, where punch was served during the afternoon by Mrs. Kirkendall, Mrs. Watand Neilie McShape ful bunches banked the mantel and were arranged about the room.

A basket nearly two feet in length, filled the scene the appearance of a fairy dance, with pink carnations, was used as a centerpiece on the table, which, with its cut glass, was the object of universal admiration Here Mesdames Cudahy, Barker, Lininger and Pritchett poured chocolate and tea, assisted by Mesdames Guiou, Coles, Heller, Misses Towie, Elizabeth Allen and Taylor.

Mrs. Barker and Miss Barker were assisted in receiving by Mesdames C. W. Martin, Cumming, Joseph Barker, W. O. Taylor, A. S. Carter and Metcalf.

Militia Companies I ntertain.

The May party given by the Thurston Rifles at their club Wednesday evening was one of the most enjoyable in the company's social history. Though there were 150 couples present, the hall did not seem crowded at any time owing to the tact and skill with which the reception committee distributed and entertained the guests.

The drill hall was decorated with flags and palms. From the center pole were looped streamers of the company colorscrimson, old gold and dark blue the ends of which were dropped later to form the ribbons with which eight little girls wound and unwound the May pole in the graceful figures of that pretty dance.

The company's room had lost much of the military aspect given it by its rack of guns and other suggestions of war and, with its profuse decoration of palms and flowers. made a most restful retreat for those who wished to "set out" a waltz or stroll between dances. Here groups of beautifully drossed young women and the soldier boys talked and laughed—only as they stopped daughter.
