

OMAHA ITS NATURAL MARKET

City Should Have Intimate Commercial Relations with South Dakota.

IS NOT GETTING ITS SHARE OF TRADE NOW

Proposed Line Between Omaha and Yankton Base with the Cordial Endorsement of Representative Business Men.

Judge Bartlett Tripp and Harry Eller, the committee from Yankton to discuss the building of direct railway connection between that city and Omaha, were met at the Commercial club at lunch yesterday by a gathering of representative citizens, including Messrs. W. H. Pickett, E. E. Bruce, F. F. Kirkendall, Rosewater, F. W. Killogg, Euclid Martin, W. S. Wright, J. S. White, H. J. Penfold, R. C. Peters, M. C. Peters, R. F. Hodgins, J. H. Dumont, C. D. Thompson, A. L. Reed, A. Hoppe, George W. Linsinger, E. M. Anderson, F. E. Sandborn, John Steel and others.

Trend of Commerce is Changing.

Judge Tripp directed attention to the changing trend of commerce and pointed out the vast importance of Omaha early securing a hold upon the trade of this vast central section as a basis of supply for the inevitable commerce with the Orient that must follow the opening of the great Inter-oceanic canal. This country is not only creating a market in the Orient, but an appetite, not one-hundredth part of which can be supplied by the western slopes of the United States. He desired to know if Omaha, with the resources at hand in the matter, the vast resources of this section, in the form of stock and agricultural products, find their way to Sioux City and Chicago. Yankton has always entertained the most kindly feelings for Omaha. The committee had come merely to present the conditions and confer with Omaha to ascertain if possible what could be done, and if Omaha, with its wealth, could not take the initiative.

Present Owner of Rights Vouched For

Harry Eller of Yankton said that he was connected for years with Mr. Pierce, who had built so much of the Norfolk line as has been constructed, and had been interested in it ever since. It was built on English capital obtained by fraud and Mr. Pierce is now a fugitive from justice. One of the contractors, a Mr. Graham of Ohio, had enforced a lien of about $15,000 and secured all the rights of the road in the hope that he may some day recoup himself by securing the building of the line.

OMAHA BREWING CO. SOLVENT.

Receiver is Asked for the Nebraska Brewing Association.

In its report of the court proceedings yesterday the receiver stated that a receiver has been asked for the Omaha Brewing company, when it should have been stated the concern for which a receivership was requested was the Nebraska Brewing association. The error was due to the wrong construction of a technical court term. There is no connection between the two concerns. It is admitted that the affairs of the Omaha Brewing association are solidly solvent.
