The injunction dissolved by Justice Andrews was to restrain temporarily the members of Cigarmakers' International union No. 144 from interfering with the business of the plaintiffs, S. Levy & Co. It went further than any previous restraining order in prohibiting the payment of strike benefits or of moneys to the strikers, on the ground that such payments were made to foment the strike and encourage its continuance.

Justice Andrews says the temporary injunction was granted properly on the papers before Judge Freedman, but that the defendants have met the allegatione, which were largely on information and belief, with specific denials of the majerial allegations by the different individuals referred to in pathy be sent to General Wade Hampton cannot be continued. The allegations of the plaintiffs of threats of intimidation, the justice says, are not borne out on all the papers presented.

With regard to the payment of ctrike moneys, the justice finds the plaintiffs have not proved the alleged purpose of the payment. The plaintiffs said the moneys were paid to keep up the strike and injure the plaintiffs. Justice Andrews finds that the moneys were not paid to interfere with or injure the business of the plaintiffs, but that the moneys were paid to the strikers to support them and their families pending the strike, for which an injunction will not
