Philadelphia Ready to Receive National Convention Crowd.

INTEREST CENTERS IN SENATOR HANNA

Politicians on Ground Are Anxious to Learn His Views on Vice Presidency, for Which Long's Boom Has Been Started.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.-With all the work preliminary to the entertainment of the republican convention and its attendant throngs practically accomplished Philadelphia is now awaiting its visitors. From the big convention hall down to the smallest detail those charged with the responsibility feel that they have the situation well in hand and the completeness of the preparations seems to justify the belief. As yet the hospitality of the city is by no means taxed. There have been very few arrivals what is known as the Warmouth faction. today and the lobby crowds at the hotels are composed principally of those persons interested in the contests with which the national committee is wrestling on the with badges, buttons and souvenirs made their appearance in scattering flights today and decorations are beginning to appear sporadically. The great mass of delegates are not expected to arrive until Saturday

Chairman Hanna is the center of interest and is much sought after for interviews in the hope that he will give some indication of his choice for vice president. He in several papers his statements are of a general character. Chairman Hanna has been seldom in the committee room and apparently avoids taking part in the deliberations of the committee so far as the on the question of state delegates. There contests are concerned. Mr. Fessend n was a triangular controversy, one delegaof Vermont presided over the committee tion headed by E. T. Wimberley claiming all day, even during the brief periods when position on account of the regularity of Senator Hanna was present.

As to the vice presidency, while it was the topmost topic, members of the committee and others here seem to be at sea. Nearly every prominent republican who says anything about it remarks "that the the committee for the Lily Whites, had field is still open and the best man will scarcely begun to speak when Mr. Payne, win," which is taken to indicate that no remarking on the importance of the case one has been accepted by those managing the affairs of the party.

Their Compromise.

New York Tribune: "I stopped over in Nevada on my way east," said William Percival of San Francisco, at the Hoffman house yesterday, "to look after some mining interests I have there, and at Carson Cliz a man told me a capital story. A mining strike had been made in a nearby portion of the state which turned out to be of such promise that a respectable camp soon sprang up around it. The two principal mine owners were respectively an Irishman and a Jew, and as a delicate compliment to these leading citizens the rest of the miners left it to them to bestow a mane upon the new camp. The two had many conferences, but could not reach an agreement, for the Irishman stood out for a name taken from the Emerald isle, while the Jew was for one that would be suggestive of the chosen people. The rest of the Jew was for one that would be suggestive of the chosen people. The rest of the miners finally became restless and threatened to name the camp themselves if an end was not put to the delay, and this led the pair to compromise and name the new camp Tipperisalem. Rather a neat and suggestive name, don't you think?"
