Both the lawyers and the real estate men are practicing for the contest and both claim a victory now. The real estate men assert that J. J. Fitzerald can throw a "grape vine" curve, while the attorneys say that Lambert can throw a ball through six inches of hard

Judge Ben S. Baker and Harry Kelly will umpire the game and it is rumored that bullet-proof coats have been ordered for each. The players will drive from South Omaha to the Vinton street park in a tally-ho coach donated by Buck Keith. The mascots will be carried in a separate wagon.

Here is a revised schedule of the players and positions;

Equalize Taxes Today.

The city council will meet as a board of equalization this afternoon to listen to arguments on complaints of the 1900 assessment. This will be the last meeting of the board on the assessment. A few claims have already been adjusted and action will doubtless be taken on the balance at today's meeting. As the county commissioners will have nothing to do but accept the figures laid down by the commissioners. The low valuation returned is deprecated, as the city needs the money. A high levy will be the result. With the debts on hand and the increase in operating expenses a levy of possibly 60 mills may have to be made.

Checking Census Enumerators.

President Flynn of the Commercial club stated yesterday afternoon that Major Wheeler had a number of sepcial agents iere checking up the census returns. The Commercial club made an effort to get in the name of every person missed by the enumerators and every name sent in by the club An appropriation has been made by the has been verified.
