NEW YORK, July 15 .- (Special Telegram.)-Henry Clews, head of the banking house of Henry Clews & Co., writes of the situation in Wall street:

The stock market has developed considerable etrength in spots and, as a whole, is stronger than a week ago. Two of the most influential factors in the market have been the developments in the Chinese sitbeen in the next election will be sound money. Other issues, such as imperialism, trusts, etc., will be made to serve election-trusts, etc., will be made to serve election-trusts purposes; but, as time wears down the minor points of discussion, the free silver or sound money cause rises in importance. This is not to be regretted. On the contrary, the squarer the issue on this matter the more surely will American sanity assert itself, and the prospects of a great sound money victory this fail are infinitely greater than four years ago. It is only necessary to recall the state of apprehension that existed in July and August, 1806, just before the Bryan meeting in Madison Square garden, to realize the great improvement in political conditions that has taken place during the last four years. Sectionalism is dead and the sound money issue is to be welcomed, for the struggle will help to clear our financial horizon, and in all probability pave the way for a modern, schentific and elastic bank currency, the want of which will again be felt as soon as we enter periods of excessive stringency of ease in the money markets.

New Birth for China.

Affairs in China are still greatly confused. The worst that was feared seems to have happened. Until the present dynasty is removed and China is given a clean and capable government the future must be problematical. That is now the task before the great powers, and it augurs well that so little friction has thus far developed on a subject regarding which there has been for years such intense international lealousy. China is now passing through the throes of a new birth. When these are over the world will witness an "opening" such as never before experienced, that of Japan sinking into insignificance because of the enormous population and resources of China. The opening of China means more to the United States than to any other nation. No people is so favorably situated for supplying the wants which western civilization will create in China. The opening of China means more to the United States than to any other nation. No people is so favorably situated for st.pplying the wants which western civilization will create in China. Railroads and electrical devices will come first; food products will follow after; yet these will be but a beginning of the development of a greater commerce that will flow out through our Pacific coast cities from our established industries in the eastern states and the new industries of the west and south. American industry, in due time, will benefit from the resurrection of China far beyond what it yet realizes; and as for American capital, that is likely to be as enterprising in seeking new openings as English, German or Russian when a stable and liberal government is established.

The representations to his government of the chinese minister at Washington have undoubtedly contributed in no small degree to an improvement of the situation in some to an improvement of the situation in some parts of the empire. The initiative taken to an improvement of the situation in some parts of the empire. The initiative taken by the United States government in issuing a declaration disavowing a state of war has been received favorably by the other great powers and concurred in. Complications in European politics are thus made more remote, and a feeling of concord has been established in the common cause of restoring order. restoring order.

What Affected Stocks.

Stocks have been chiefly influenced by special considerations. Some of the grangers have been eachedly influenced by special considerations. Some of the grangers have been weakened by decreased earnings, by the large diminution of the spring wheat crop, and also by the expected moderation of trade activity in certain sections. The downward tendency of the iron trade, which promises to continue, has had a depressing effect, not only upon the industrials, but also upon some of the relicenshing of the control of the control of the control of the control of the country. The southern roads are holding their own in spite of a short cotton crop, because of the general state of prosperity prevailing in the south. The lessened yield of cotton in 1895-180 is of about 50 per cent in price, while the development of industry in the south, espejially in cotton manufacturing and Iron, has done wonders in lifting that section out of the sough of despond. Dividend Rumors Potent.

At the moment the market seems to be under control of dividend rumors and a few strong leaders who are advancing their favorites. There is excellent support to some securities and prices may easily be carried higher should no accident intervene. The power of concerted action by the big holders should not be underrated; yet there is more risk than usual just now in carrying on a prolonged buil movement at this juncture. The market will be particularly exposed for some weeks to come to shocks from either international or domestic politics, and any rash bull operations may be brought to a sudden termination. There are both good and bad features in the situation—more of each than usual—so that the difficulty of calculating future movements is much greater than a year ago when the tide of prosperity was all one way. Now there are conflicting currents and more care in avoiding treacherous eddies will be necessary than usual.

Values have shown a decided disposition to improve in the face of light transactions, which appear to demonstrate the inherent strength of the general business lines has lately been viewed in a rather too pessimistic way by many people. The enormous demand of the last two years inevitably resulted in an overproduction, which must await gradual consumption, hence the shading in prices and the slacking off in sales, but the fact remains that the great mass of the people are upon a larger income basis; wage scales still rule materially higher than for many previous years, and hence a very large purchasing power still remains to stimulate business. This fact alone should be enough to confound the alarmists. More favorable weather conditions in both wheat and cotton growing districts have caused a more hopeful feeling and bild fair to result in a better crop showing. Affairs in South Africa are progressing slowly but surely toward a cessation of hostifities. When this shall have been accomplished the material increase in gold receipts at London cannot fail to benefit the gene

BERLIN, July 15 .- After the heavy deine in bourse values that marked the previous week a moderate recovery set in last week, which continued until Thursday week, which continued until Indreday. Friday and Saturday, however, witnessed a reaction, the decline being considerable. In the case of coal and iron shares this amounted to about six points. Chinese loans gained several points at the outset of the week, but lost somewhat at the end. The bourse closed very dull, the Suspense over the Chinese situation causing a waiting attitude among operators. Even a reduction of the Heichsbank rate failed to affect the bourse.

At the meeting of the Reichsbank central committee last Friday President Koch announced that the state of the bank continued to improve, discounts and loans showing further contraction, while some 12,000,000 marks in gold had been received since July 7. He asserted that the bank's reserve already amounted to 29,000,000 marks reserve already amounted to 29,000,000 marks.

Money is now remarkably easy, the private rate being nearly as low as the lowest figures touched last year. This condition has caused an increase in capital for flotalities and more than 13,000 marks in the way of new industrials have been advertised in Berlin during the last three days. The total new issues for the first six months of the year reached 90,000,000 marks for the corresponding period of 189. Reports from the iron industry are becoming less and less favorable. Sliesia has been doing an unusually light new business in pig iron. Westphalia, where many China orders have been placed during the last few years, complain that the finished goods are not now taken up. Smilar complaints come from Solingen. Remscheid. Altona and Iseriohn. The rolling mills and steel works in Westphalia complain that new orders have greatly slowed up. It has always been the custom to choose the chairman of the county central committee at a nominating convention. The chairman of the democratic central committee of Union county who called the convention that was recognized at the state convention was elected at the convention that was called simply to nominate delegates to the Chamberlain convention. The populist newspaper men had some to the con-vention asking for nothing but the appointment of A. Sherin, editor of the Watertown Times, as secretary of the state central committee. The selection of the chairman and the secretary of the committee was postponed until after the conventions had adjourned and all the business of nominating the ticket concluded. At the meeting called to make these postponed appointments, when the newspaper men began to urge their claims, one of the prominent candidates told them plainly that the appointing was the business of the candidates and of the central committee and that they could success fully accomplish it without assistance. The other candidates sustaining this position, the press association held an indignation meeting and decided to say no more about the secretaryship, but to appoint a committee to draw up resolutions to which all could agree and which should be sent to each of the candidates and to each member of the central committee. The resolutions were to protest against the treatment they had received and to practically contain a bill of rights. That they will be strong is assured by the fact that Mr. Sherer was appointed chairman of the committee to draw them, with authority to choose his associ-
