Effect of Treaties

Under treaties made the changed conditions and began the development which has resulted in almost unlimited trade and foreign intercourse with many parts of the great empire. It was not until 1853 that the ministers of foreign governments were permitted to visit the emperor in person until 1873, while it remained for the year 1893 to witness the first reception to the wives of foreign ministers by the empress. Slowly, but surely, the Mongolian race is yielding to the influence of the outer world and other nations should have been content to wait the process of evolution that was working its way through the heart of this old civilization.

WYOMING CROP CONDITIONS

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 18.—(Special.)—Weather and crop conditions improved during the last week. Cooler weather has been general about the 14th. Practically no rain fell for several weeks until the 15th, when showers were general over a greater portion of the state, materially relieving the drought conditions which prevailed. The dry weather of the last six weeks dried up the ranges very rapidly and over many portions of the state they have been materially shortened. Over most of the state the feed is fast to good. Reports of the injury to the ranges and crops have been received from Laramie, Converse, Sheridan and Big Horn counties on account of the swarms of grasshoppers. Haying is general and a fair crop will be secured. Alfalfa is being harvested. In the Lander valley a fine crop is being secured, but in the Star valley in Uinta county the dry weather and frosts have shortened the crop. Grain is doing fairly well, but the report is general that it is heading short. Streams are getting low and irrigation and stock water is getting scarce in many places.
