Deposed Secretary of the Populist County Committee Hard to Down.

HOLDS A PAIR OF SNAP CONVENTIONS

Nine Men Proceed to Nominate a Pull County and Congressional Ticket, Name Committees and All That.

When the mid-road populists sought to depose E. F. Morearty as secretary of their county committee and repudiate his action in calling a county convention, they were unwittingly stirring up a hornets' nest within their ranks. Morearty was deposed that all delegates to the mid-road mate convention at Grand Island should be recogmized as delegates to the county convention and that the committeemen from the rerpective presidets should select enough other names to fill out the representation of the respective precincts. Morearty issued his call authorizing the committeemen to select the delegations without regard to the claims of the delegates to the state convention under the resolution. Therefore it was that the county committee decapitated Morearty and recalled the call which he had issued for a county convention. on Suturday, setting it upon a later date.

Meantime, however, the mid- oat populist congressional committee called its congressional convention for Saturday at 2 o'clock, the call therefor being issued by George W. Raworth, chairman, and James M. Taylor, secretary. A few days since, owing to the protest pending before the secretary of state against allowing the party nominees a piace upon the official ballot. Chairman Raworth and Secretary Taylor published notice of a postponement of the convention until a later date.

Yesterday afternoon Chairman Raworth usual afternoon gathering and some because they had not been informed of the postponement of the convention. After having loitered there over an hour they all started over to state headquarters in the Hamge block. At the foot of the stairway leading to the Peter Cooper club rooms they noticed E. F. Morearty, August Cline, Thomas Alken, H. R. Newcomb and two or three other men in consultation. After they had gone about half a block someone suggested that it would be a wise idea to watch and ascertain what the loltering group meant to do, and Michael McGuire, who is custodian of the club rooms, started back to do so. Just as he started back he saw the crowd go upstairs. He hastened forward, but in spite of his utmost speed he found when he arrived that they had organized a pretended congressional convention with E. F. Morearty in the chair and H. R. Newcomb Cline as their candidate for congress. The true-blue mid-roaders contend that there were but nine men in the convention, four of whom were Morearty, Cline, Aiken and Newcomb, while the other five were strangers who have never been identified with populist affairs.

After disposing of the congressional nomination the nine men constituting the convention organized themselves into a county convention and August Cline read from a prepared list the following nominations, which were endorsed unanimously by his eight confreres:

Swanson and Charles Johnson. For representatives: Michael McGuire, N. H. Church, Charles Henning, Henry R. Newcomb, Louis J. Ihm. Samuel Cogan. Wiley Beckett, John O'Neill and W. R.

For county attorney: E. F. Morearty. For county commissioner, First district:

Thomas E. Atken. A congressional committee was appointed comprising E. F. Morearty, C. J. Saunders. H. R. Newcomb of Omaha, Charles Carpenter of Washington county, and Richard

In fact, it was one of the most harmonious conventions recorded among populists, who usually devote about four to six hours in the transaction of five minutes' business. TRAVELING MEN FOR M'KINLEY

Knights of the Road Organize to Make Sure of Continuance of Present Republican Prosperity.

An enthusiastic meeting of Omaha traveling men, avowedly interested in maintaining the existing commercial prosperity of the country under republican business and financial policies, was held last night in the rooms of the republican state committee at the Her Grand. About forty participated, with every evidence of earnest zeal for the continuance of that presperity.

The meeting was pursuant to one held at the same place a week ago, and was for the purpose of effecting a permanent organizaas secretary and had nominated August tion of the Omaha division of the Nebraska McKinley and Roosevelt Traveling Men's club. This was accomplished by the election of the following officers:

President, J. L. Houston; vice president H. W. Curtis; secretary, J. M. Buck; treasurer, J. Beckman; executive board, J. L. Houston, Charles E. Close, J. Harberg, I. C. Knotts, John Purciple, C. H. George and F. F. Osborne.

Twenty-five names of active traveling men resident in Omaha were added to the list, making the total membership to date over lowness of the democratic pretense.

DEADWOOD AND LEAD ARE SPIRITED RIVALS

Latter City is Replacing Frame Buildings Wiped Out by Fire with Brick Blocks-Public Works Under Way.

"The Black Hills never were in such a prosperous condition as at present. current wages for miners in Lead is $100 per month. All the mines are running full time and the mills have more business than they can care for. Two thousand tons of rock that is thrown out of the mills passes through the streets of Lead every day," said City Engineer Andrew Rosewater, who has just returned from Lead, S. D., where he was called to consult with other engineers concerning a new system of sewerage. Deadwood and Lead are located but four miles apart and are bitter rivals, but Mr. Rosewater says that Lead seems to have the better of the fight. It has grown to be a city of 8,000 people. The frame buildings destroyed by the fire which almost wiped away the little mining city are being replaced by substantial brick blocks and the metropolis of the Black Hills is assuming metropolitan airs. Lead is 500 feet higher than Deadwood and is reached by two railroads. Most of the miners in Lead own their own homes and are very different from the rough class that has made Deadwood no orious. Enough rock of the sort that is treated is in sight to keep the mills busy for fifty years at the rate they are now running. This makes the town more substantial than the average mining camp and has prompted extensive improvements. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, who owns a controlling interest in the famous building.
