

SCANNELL STAYS IN HIS SEE

Little Credence is Given to Reported Removal to Illinois.

DIOCESE OF CHICAGO HAS THE FIRST CLAIM

Local Clergy Believe it More Probable that Bishop Scannell's Charge Will Be Raised to Dignity of Archbishopric See.

The report of appointment of Bishop Scannell to a see to be created near Chicago, given publicity in a Chicago paper Sunday, is taken with a large grain of salt by those clergymen of the Omaha diocese believed to be cognate of the fact.

For some time there has been a rumor current in Chicago that the bishop of Omaha was to be made the successor of Archbishop Feehan, whose age and continued ill health cause his friends to fear an early demise. For several years he has had an auxiliary bishop who has had virtual charge of the diocese, but recently this officer has become incapacitated for work, and last week Bishop Scannell went to Chicago, where he is now engaged in pastoral work.

The rumor that he is to succeed the archbishop has been followed by a more or less well authenticated report that a priest of the diocese of Chicago has been appointed bishop coadjutor of the archdiocese. The coadjutor bishop has the right to succession, and this step is taken in view of the appointment of Bishop Scannell to the archbishopric.

The reported change is not believed by the clergymen of the diocese of Omaha for the reason that a change to a new see in Illinois would not be considered an elevation, as was the change from Council Bluffs to Omaha. It is held by these persons that it is far more probable that the see of Omaha will be elevated to an archbishopric and the patriarchate conferred upon Bishop Scannell.

It is understood that the elevation of the see of Omaha would not be long delayed but for opposition on the part of a bishop who would become a suffragan of the province of Omaha. This bishop has been installed in his position longer than Bishop Scannell has been in Omaha and feels that the elevation of the see of Omaha would diminish the luster of his position. It is said that he has actively opposed the proposed change at Omaha and that at present he shows no intention of withdrawing his opposition.

BENCH AND BAR AT EASE

Federal Court Opens at Lincoln, but Many Litigants Prefer to Postpone their Quarrels.

United States circuit and district court opened at Lincoln yesterday for what promises to be an uneventful session. United States Marshal Mathews and Deputy James Walling, Clerks Thummler and Hoy and Deputy United States Attorney Kuy are in the capital city with Judge Mungler.

It is understood that no criminal cases will be tried at this term of court, all such cases going over until the November term at Lincoln. There are on the civil docket 235 cases which may be tried at Lincoln, but because of the political campaign, in which many of the attorneys and some of the litigants are involved, but few of them will be tried. There will be no grand jury at the Lincoln term of court and the petit jury will not convene until October 15.

ONE KINK OUT OF THE TANGLE.

Burlington and M. & O. Mutually Withdraw Their Complaints.

One of the kinks in the tangled skein of litigation between the Omaha Coal, Coke and Lime company, the Burlington and the Minneapolis & Omaha was straightened out Monday afternoon, when the original suit of the coal and coke company against the Burlington was dismissed at the request of the plaintiff and the defendant dismissed its cross petition. This was the suit wherein the Omaha Coal, Coke and Lime company sought to have the Burlington restrained from interfering with the construction by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha of a sidetrack to its property. The dismissal of this suit does not dispose, however, of the suit instituted by the city attorney to prevent a cut of Eighth street below grade in putting in the switch.

Court Notes

On an order from Judge Keavor the damage suit of the Omaha Coal, Coke and Lime company against the Burlington was dismissed at the request of the plaintiff and the defendant dismissed its cross petition. This was the suit wherein the Omaha Coal, Coke and Lime company sought to have the Burlington restrained from interfering with the construction by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha of a sidetrack to its property. The dismissal of this suit does not dispose, however, of the suit instituted by the city attorney to prevent a cut of Eighth street below grade in putting in the switch.

MORMONS SEEK NEW FIELDS

Leave Their Homes in Southern Utah for the Fertile Valleys of Big Horn Basin.

Information has been received at Burlington headquarters that a trainload of Mormon immigrants is now en route to the Big Horn basin from their former locations in southern Utah. This party of Mormons will join the colony of 400 that settled on the Shoshone river last spring. The first colony was an experiment, but the efforts of its individual members were so successful and the returns from their crops so large that this second movement is the result.

The interest taken by the Burlington people in this emigration of the Mormons from Utah to Wyoming lies in the fact that they are settling in the territory through which the Burlington is now extending a new line of road. The completion of this line will make the Big Horn and Shoshone river territories more accessible and it is expected that next year several thousand Mormons will move from Utah and Idaho to Wyoming.

Treated Royally at St. Louis.

The party of local passenger agents who went to St. Louis City Saturday to elect the crowd of traveling men returned to their work yesterday and each is loud in his praise of the cordial greeting extended them by the St. Louis people. The Omaha railroaders were feted, dined and made to feel generally that they were the guests of honor of the occasion. It was with regret that the crowd of railroad men returned Saturday night and George West was so well entertained that he remained over until Sunday morning. It was because he had to, however, in order to look after some business matters Saturday night and it was by reason of this condition that the other members of the crowd permitted him to remain.

BRIDEGROOM'S BAD BARGAIN

Pawnbroker Flimflams Him Into Buying Foney Watch.

CHROMOMETERS HAD BEEN CHANGED

Substitution Might Not Have Been Noticed but for an After Thought of the Purchaser.

Henry bought the watch for his bride and had "From Henry to Wida" engraved on the inside of the case. And Wida was delighted with it. No one in their little country home at Wayne, Neb., she said, would have one half as pretty. The Henry, with careful carelessness, let it be known that he had said "thirty shining diamonds" for the watch, whereupon Wida's delight was enhanced, as it seemed a very large sum to pay, and attested Henry's love for her, his generosity, the excellence of the timepiece and several other things.

Wida is still disillusioned, but Henry has had his eyes opened, and would now gladly accept $145 for the fable.

Henry C. Wilkins, though but a plain farmer lad, has read in the newspapers about "von man," flimflam artists, gold brick peddlers and green goods agents, so when, leaving Wayne on his wedding tour, his friends warned him against sharpers generally, he thought the admonition entirely unneeded for he was amply able to take care of himself, he said. If crooks could cheat him out of his money they were welcome to it. Which opinion was shared by Wida.

One day last week while his bride was visiting with friends on the south side Henry sauntered down town to see the sights. He had a half-formed idea, too, that he might buy something for Wida before he returned. A lot of flash jewelry in a pawnshop window caught his eye. The proprietor, seeing he was interested, invited him in.

"Something in the line of a lady's watch? Certainly. Here is a beauty for $40—solid gold case, Elgin works, full jeweled, and the rest of it."

"Five years ago it would have sold for $60 and its worth about $45 now," said Henry. And he was getting it for $50. It was like picking up $15 in the road.

Broker Switches Watches.

But on the way back to the pawnshop the broker "switched" watches, giving Henry a cheap filled case and inferior works.

The chances are that Henry would have been slow in discovering the cheat had it not been that the notion struck him within the next hour to have his name and Wida's engraved upon this token of his affection. With this purpose in view he took it back to the pawnshop jeweler. The work was ordered and the engraver began upon it at once.

"So you decided not to buy the watch you showed me," observed the jeweler. "Why, yes, that's one."

"Not much? What did you pay for this one?" "Thirty dollars."

"Well, watches like the one you just brought in ain't worth $30 a gross."

The next day Henry took the timepiece back to the pawnbroker. There was another man behind the counter who denied all knowledge of the transaction and said the "ticker" didn't come from that shop. This so confused Henry that he was not quite certain but that he had made a mistake in the pawnshop—there are so many of them in that quarter of the city. He appealed to the police to help him out.

ERRANT SON COMES TO GRIEF

Wahoo Youth Loaded with Ill-Gotten Gains Falls into the Hands of the Police.

Joseph Siodnyes, 12 years old and anxious, started from his home at Wahoo, Neb., Sunday, but was unable to penetrate further into the great unknown than Omaha. He had $75 of ill-gotten gains on his person and his object was to see the trolley cars and the tall buildings of great cities.

As he left the train at the Union depot yesterday he was made an object of survey by Officer McCarthy, who sized him up as a runaway boy. The fugitive was searched at the station and the money was found. Siodnyes confessed that he had robbed his father's till of $85 and had left home suddenly. His father, J. W. Siodnyes, a saloon keeper, was notified and will come to the city at once to take charge of his prodigal son.

Souvenir of Carnival Week.

Fred Winkler, constable of Justice Crawford's court, has a little souvenir that will not permit him to forget the happy hours of his carnival week. It is in the nature of an altered right eye. A piece of colored paper lodged in the eye night during his carnival and almost immediately the organ became inflamed. All that he could do, though he had a doctor constantly, is to keep the sight of the eye will be destroyed. The attributes of his misfortune to the carnival week. BEETS READY TO HARVEST

Commercial Club Will Learn Soon if its Experiment is a Success.

Secretary J. E. Ut of the Commercial club has returned from Ames, where he spent Saturday as the guest of President Leavitt of the beet sugar factory at that place. The trip was made especially for the purpose of gaining some information concerning the harvesting of beets. The tracts of beets set out adjacent to Omaha under the supervision of the Commercial club are now about ready to harvest and the work will be done in accordance with suggestions made by President Leavitt and other reports, with whom Mr. Ut conferred while in Ames.

The Ames beet sugar plant was put into operation for its fall run Saturday and Mr. Ut speaks enthusiastically of the manner in which the start was made. "The great factory was put into operation," he said, "and all of its machinery went into motion without a single hitch. It will run at its full capacity of 600 tons per day until the supply of 30,000 tons of beets on hand is converted into sugar."

The beets which were started through the factory Saturday were converted into sugar, sacked and appeared on the Omaha market today ready for sale and consumption.

GAS EXPLODES IN CITY HALL

Occupants of the Building Considerably Excited, but No Damage Was Done.

Considerable stir was caused in the city hall yesterday by a gas explosion. One of the elevator conductors noticed that gas was escaping somewhere in the first floor of the building and began an investigation of a large chandelier which stands at the foot of the main stairs. He lighted a match to test the joints in the plumbing and the result was an explosion that could be heard in every part of the building. The chandelier was bent out of shape, but no serious damage was done. A leak was discovered inside the hollow iron standard which supports the lamps. The gas had collected in this cavity and was confined to such a small space that it gave a loud report when ignited.

Garland Stoves and Ranges were awarded highest prizes at Paris Exposition, 1905.
