Home from the Klondike.

R. E. Ingram, formerly connected with the business department of a local newspaper, returned yesterday from a three years' sojourn in the Klondike. His wife and children had not heard from him for the last two years and his return home yesterday morning came as a joyful surprise to them.

After leaving here a few years ago he went to Edmonton, Alberta Territory, from where in 1898 he started overland for the Klondike. The journey occupied thirtéen months and was wrought with considerable danger and hardship. He spent a considerable time in Dawson City and secured a good claim, but his certificate ran out before he was aware and other parties jumped the holding. He said if he had had a Winchester rifle he would have been able to have told a different story and would have made some money, as the claim was a good one.

Mr. Ingram says the better mining claims are all nearly worked out and consequently the mine owners are unable to pay the high wages they did formerly and a man working for wages is better off in Iowa today than he is in the Klondike. There are more men looking for work than there is a demand for and this tends to keep wages down. When he first Carl Bolter of Logan declining the nominareached the Klondike living expenses were tion for the long term in opposition to Judge sky high, but they have tumbled now. A meal that formerly cost $1.59 can now be had for 75 cents, although, as Mr. Ingram puts if, a better meal can be had for 10 cents in Seattle than for $1 in the Klondike. In his opinion Alaska will develop in a few years into a very rich country. but he strongly advises any one thinking of going there to stay at home.
