

VETERANS WELCOME SICKLES

Old Soldiers to Give Their Former Commander a Warm Reception.

GENERAL TALKS OF THE OUTLOOK

Says New York, Maryland and West Virginia, Illinois and Indiana Are Safely Republican.

Major General Daniel E. Sickles of New York reached Nebraska yesterday for a tour of several weeks in the east and west. General John C. Cowin of Omaha will speak this evening at the musical pavilion. The Grand Army posts of the general Sickles' coming for the veterans' rally and the occasion will be the veterans' rally for the campaign. Under the charge of President W. S. Strawn of the Union Veterans' republican club, the local posts will march to the pavilion in a body and will occupy seats of honor. They will be escorted by the Veterans' life and drum corps and the York quartet.

General Sickles is 75 years old and suffered the loss of a leg at Gettysburg, but is nevertheless in excellent health after his long trip. "I am taking the campaign much easier than four years ago, when I exceeded my strength," he remarked. "After the trip with General Howard and the other veterans in 1896 I was completely prostrated and did not recover my health for a year and a half. Now I am traveling by a year and not long even speak every other night and not long even speak every other night."

New York State is loyal. "My home is in New York and I have been able to form a pretty good idea as to the sentiment in the state. You may be assured that I had any doubt as to its loyalty to the republican cause I would not be out here."

In Maryland I found the campaign hotly contested on both sides and a month ago the prospect was certainly unfavorable. The changed attitude of the Baltimore Sun and the defection of Senator Wellington undoubtedly had some effect at least in the south and I understand suffered heavily through its support of McKinley in 1896; so its change now proves to be more of a business move and is discounted as such in Maryland Senator sitting in the senate.

The best information I had from discriminating and conservative republicans was that the state is safe for McKinley by a decreased majority, probably 19,000 or 20,000. Baltimore is certainly republican and since I left I have heard reports both from the city and state.

West Virginia in line. "West Virginia is assured for McKinley. There is a hard fight going on for the legislature and the democrats so gerrymandered the state when they were in power that they have a distinct advantage. As to the senate, the democrats will find Senator Elkins a hard man to beat."

I put Kentucky in the doubtful column and no man can forecast the result until election day. I have no opinion as to the outcome, though I talked with many intelligent men who believed in McKinley's success. Yerkes, there is no doubt, has a good chance for election. I found the state very much disturbed politically over the Goebel affair and the old party lines greatly broken up.

Whatever doubt existed as to republican success in Indiana a month ago has now entirely disappeared, and as to Illinois it is as sure as if the vote were already counted. The farmers of the two states have been faring too well under a government they know to fly to one they know not of.

"On my last visit to Omaha four years ago I found conditions very much upset; people were willing to change for almost anything of historical doubtful benefit. Now from what visitors to the state told me Nebraska farmers are also satisfied with good markets and high prices."

After his address in Omaha General Sickles will speak at Hebron and Wilcox, where the old soldiers have prepared a reception. His meeting with veterans, many of whom served with him, the general says, has been the most pleasant feature of his trip. From Nebraska General Sickles will go to Kansas, where he has engagements at Lawrence, Girard and Leavenworth. He will continue his field work until November 2.

LET IRISHMEN THINK IT OVER

Good Reasons for Their Refusing to Join in with the Free Trade Democracy.

OMAHA, Oct. 22.—To the Editor of The Bee: The determination of the fusion leaders to make of this presidential contest an anti-English campaign has made it somewhat embarrassing to Irish republicans who may not be able to give a good and sufficient reason why they are republicans. It is claimed at once that the free trade democratic party, whose greatest ambition was to raise raw material for England to manufacture, is the enemy of England and English influence, and that the republican party, the party of protection to American industries, the party that made the republic a great manufacturing and commercial nation, is a friend of England. Let us see which has done most damage to England. When I came to this country thirty-one years ago, because I did not like the English rule in Ireland, I was surprised to find the "Lion and the Unicorn" that decorated every cup and saucer and plate in Ireland also decorated every piece of crockery I used in this country. I also noticed that the knives and forks and spoons were stamped with the trade marks of "Sheffield" and "Birmingham," and nearly everything used and wore was made in England. This was the condition of affairs when the republican party enacted the protective tariff laws to protect American industries until they should be able to compete with England.

The English press and the democratic press howled in concert against the "robber tariff." England knew well it was hit hard. It was well enough to foresee that Uncle Sam would never again be an innocent, honest farmer, content to raise the cotton and the wool and the tobacco and the hides and the lumber and the iron and send them over to the mother country to be manufactured and brought back to be sold at the exorbitant prices that the democrats started under the free trade, democratic laws, the English manufacturers used to treat it as a packing house now treats an independent butcher's shop—sell away below cost until it was bankrupt and then raise the price up higher than ever, so as to get even. For more than twenty years the democratic party fought these tariff laws, and repeatedly declared them unconstitutional, and England used all its influence to assist the democrats, and to pay to pull them down, and, strange to say, the backbone of the democratic party, through all these years, was made up of the Irish race in America, of the men who are now a little too anxious to belittle any one who is not a democrat, and who have driven England out of the American markets and is fast driving it out of the markets of the world; the party that compelled England to be civil, and made it pay heavy damages for the assistance it gave to the slave-holding democracy of the south, during our great rebellion. England knows it had better be friendly to the party that made this the greatest nation on earth, that has turned the tables on it and now sends our crockery to Manchester with an American eagle stamped on it, and our cutlery to Sheffield and Birmingham, and our coal to Newcastle; the party that has made us able to build street railways in London, and bridges in Africa; the party that has made it possible to have a home-built navy that can show the world how to shoot a navy that will some day be the mistress of the sea.

No matter what any thin-skinned Irish republican may feel when he is jeered by the old allies of England, there are thousands of Irishmen who, like myself, have joined the republican party for the reasons I have given, and they are not ashamed to belong to the only party that has shown a capacity to put, and keep, this republic in the front rank of the nations of the earth. MICHAEL LEWIS.

Announcements of the Theaters. The Orpheus is drawing packed houses. The opinion of patrons is to the effect that this week's bill is the best of the typical vaudeville entertainments that have been seen here, is pretty near unanimous. Clayton and Jenkins and their intelligent donkey, Jasper, present their "Darktown Circus," an act constructed simply for laughing purposes. Bessie Munroe, the London favorite, has not won her fame with some beautiful effects of stage mechanism, but by marvelous development of muscles and limb gyrations.

A bargain matinee performance of the big scenic melodrama, "The Great Northwest," will be given at the Boyd Wednesday. The choice of seats in the theater will be given for 25 cents.

Card of Thanks. The undersigned desire to convey their heartfelt thanks to the Knights of Pythias, Rathbone Sisters, the Order of Eagles and Mrs. Sturgess for their many kindnesses during the illness of our late husband and father, H. W. Snyder, especially the singing of Mrs. Sturgess at the funeral. MRS. H. W. SNYDER.

WOMEN SUBSCRIBE TO FUND

Auditorium Committee Receives Six Subscriptions for the Building from Omaha Women.

Omaha women have evinced a lively interest in the success of the auditorium project and their enthusiasm has resulted in material additions to the fund now on hand. At yesterday's meeting of the executive committee several subscriptions were reported and six of them were made by Omaha women. The fund at present is as follows:

Table listing names and amounts of subscriptions to the auditorium fund.

In pursuance with the suggestion made by Chairman Jay D. Foster of the subcommittee on ways and means having in charge the matter of securing subscriptions from the men interested in South Omaha, a dinner will be tendered a number of prominent live stock and commission men from South Omaha at the Omaha club Thursday evening. The auditorium project will be discussed at length and the purpose will be to secure the moral and financial support of the interests represented at South Omaha.

James G. Martin was elected to a place on the board of directors made vacant by the resignation of A. Hoppe and E. A. Cudahy was named as a member of the advisory board.

Articles of Incorporation of the Omaha Auditorium company were drawn up and signed by all of the members of the board of directors. Counsel Elgutter stated his intention of filing copies immediately with the county clerk and the secretary of state.

Robbed the Navy. A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: I was in an awful position. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed, at Kuhn & Co.'s drug store.

REAL PARADISE FOR HUNTERS

Ducks and Quail Are Plentiful in the Country Contiguous to Valentine.

William Franke of Valentine, Neb., was in the city yesterday and the tales he told of bird shooting on the northwestern lakes has fired the blood of several hunters who had not decided to go out this season, so that they will spend a day or two on the lakes at least.

"You don't know what shooting is unless you have gone to Lake Creek," said Mr. Franke. "The waters are covered with ducks and no one can fail to get birds. Up on the reservation the ducks are thicker than they were ever known before and there are few migratory birds among them, most of them being this season's hatch on the northwestern lakes. The shooting is very good on the lakes near Cody and southeast of Valentine, but there are so many hunters on the ground that the birds are already becoming scarce."

"But the duck shooting is nothing to what the quail shooting will be after November 1. There are thousands of birds on the ground and I venture to say that I can kill 200 birds single-handed for a week and then hardly make an impression on the flocks. The other day I was down to one of my farms and came up through a little hollow to get out the woods. I saw on that walk at least 300 quail and what is true of that farm is true of all the others."

"There are still some deer and antelope in the country. The other day I saw a bunch of thirty antelope and a few deer can be found south and west of Valentine, but they are getting scarce and the man who hopes to kill such game in Nebraska will have to start out soon."

A party of Omaha hunters composed of Charles Lewis, George Scribner, Dr. Downs and Charles Metz returned from the lakes near Cody Sunday. An accident resulted in injuries to Mr. Lewis which will confine him to his bed for several weeks. As they were leaving camp the team ran away, throwing the occupants of the wagon to the ground. Mr. Lewis was the only one injured, being struck in the abdomen by a gun.

HAYDEN'S LETTING DOWN FURNITURE PRICES.

We are making a special effort on high grade metal beds. These beds are the best of the kind—high class in every respect. The new scroll designs, enameled in black, green, white and blue, and range in price from $6.50 up to $12.50—just $4 less on each bed than you can get similar goods elsewhere. To make it more interesting we are giving this week, a pencil woven spring with every bed over $5. Spring sells for $1.75 or $2.50 alone. This is not the cheap spring that gets like a hammock in a week or two. But a spring guaranteed not to sag. You will therefore be doing yourself a good service to see our beds before you buy. We can save you money.

We are showing a finer line of parlor furniture than ever before. Odd pieces of all kinds, new designs in frames and the latest novelties in fine coverings. Five piece parlor suit, frame finest golden oak, upholstered in high grade coverings at $24.50. Other suits $27.50, $35 and $40.

You may want to make some change before cold weather. If so, it will pay you to see our steel folding couch—both a couch and a 4-foot bed, price $10.85. We have sold over 50 since July. No wood, nothing to get out of order—everything strong and all steel.

We are showing for the "Cood Form" closet sets. It will be worth your while to see what we have to show you.
