There was not at any time such a manifest desire upon the part of the rival partisans in the audience to help out their respective champions. Mr. Hitchcock was far less demonstrative and vehement than upon any previous occasion. There was not at any time any cause for apprehension as there has been in former debates that he was about to land a left hand jab on his opponent's nose or a round arm swings on the ribs. But, although less active in his offensive tactics, Mr. Hitchcock was none the less agile in dodging the questions propounded by his

Most of the stories published on the aubject are imaginary. Mr. Kruger will land at Marseilles and I shall go to meet him. But it is not true that I have seen M. Editor Howard in Papillion Times, February 25, 1897;

"Prior to election day the World-Herald's editorial page feemed with a wealth of argument in favor of state control of corporations. Since the hour when it became known that the populists and democrats had won the fight and that the day for fulfilling our promises bad come no man has seen one line of argument in the World-Herald in favor of redeeming our party pledges in regard to the regulation of corporations. Why? We don't know.

"Mr. Hitchcock has been appealed to time and again to bring the great influence of his paper to bear upon the corporation lobby at Lincoln, but he turns a deaf ear to all entreaties. The editor in-chief of the World-Herald, Richard Metcalf, has a true heart, which bents for and in the interest of the masses, but it cannot beat hard enough to break the barrier which Mr. Hitchcock has raised against the criticism of corporations in the World-Herald. . . . But it is idle to hope for help from Mr. Hitchcock. We do not say that the corporations have bought him outright, but we do say without reserve that his attitude has led the great bulk of bimetallists in Nebraska to believe that he has either been bought or a poultice applied by the wealthy corporations has closed his editorial eyes."
