A WOMAN'S DIARY

of the weeks of terror and danger in the British Legation while bombarded by Boxers and Chinese soldiers. Mrs. Lowry, an American missionary, wrote down from day to day what took place, and vividly described the fears and sufferings of that brave little band which withstood the Tartar hordes with bravery, courage and devotion never surpassed. As a simple record of a critical period in modern history this diary is a human document of the most intense interest. Every page is a record that will deeply impress every human heart. It is true. It is terrible. It is instructive.
