SHEEP—There was quite a liberal run of sheep here today, particularly for a holiday, but as the demand was in good shape everything was bought up early at steady prices. Wethers that sold yeaterday and the day before at $4.00 brought the same price today. There were no fat lambs on sate today, so there was nothing with which to test the market on that class of stuff. The bulk of the offerings were on the feeder order, but the good stuff was bought up early at just about steady prices. A string of 2,100 head of Montana wethers sold at $3.85, which looked fully steady. Feeder lambs also sold at unchanged prices, The market was in good shape on all grades and it soon came to a close. Quotations: Choice fee, wethers, $3.850, should be soon came to a close. Quotations: Choice fee, wethers, $3.850, should be soon to good fee wethers, $3.850, should be spring lambs, $4.650, 90; feeder ewes, $2.550, $4.00, feeder wethers, $3.850, $5.00, should be spring lambs, $4.650, 90; feeder ewes, $2.550, $4.00, $4.00, $6.

Washington Bureau Chief No Longer Afraid of Callers. The chief of one of the bureaus in a certain department in Washington, relates the New York Tribune, has been beset recently by newspaper men desirous of interviewing him concerning a subject upon which he will soon be compelled to act. So assiduous were they that the poor chief, made desperate by their pursuit of him, resorted to every possible subterfuge to avoid them. For weeks he arose with the sun and slipped out the back door, the front door even at that early hour being in a state of siege. At the department his faithful clerk stood between him and his persecutors, whom he managed to escape in the afternoon by driving far into the country. But one pursuer, more persistent than the horseback. Hearing a horse galloping beh nd looked back and saw a man following him at a furious pace, waving a paper above his head and shricking to him to stop. "Drive on," he ordered, "don't let that man overtake us, drive for your life."

To the lover of old picturesque things

Valley Forge appeals. There are three mills long since descried falling into ruins. There are rows of deserted houses. In a clump of bushes some broken boats lie. Two or three acres make a space sufficient to hold all that, to hold also the hetel, the two gray, empty screets and the "for sale or rent" signs of this tiny villoge. The place is steeped in an atmosphere unimiginably calm and still. A billygoat, the beard under his chin stuck full of burrs, loafs at the lonely corners where two streets meet and if strangers happen along he will pursue them. A poet should be able to do good work here. Nature has been very kind to Valley Forge. She shows her utmost beauty to the village. The airs that blow tarough it are clear and pure. The sky seems bluer there than elsewhere. A noble forest rises upon one side and on the other flows tie: spring chickens, 56514c; ducks, 51466c; the Schuylkill, a blue stream winding between green banks. And thus inclosed by FRESH DRESSED POULTRY-Hens, 14 sky and stream and forest the deserted milis, the deserted houses, the "to let" signs, the hotel and the billygoat dream

Run Over by Fourteen Freight Care and Was Unhurt.

Adney Edmonds, 9 years old, had a miraculous escape from death yesterday, reports the St. Louis Republic. He fell between two freight cars of a moving Big Four train and after fourteen cars had passed over him he emerged unhurt. Adney's mother witnessed the accident and as the big train of cars flashed past the spot where her boy had failen she almost became hysterical. As she was begging piteously for someone to save her son, the daring youngster staggered to his feet and began wiping the dirt off his face. Mrs. Edmonds ran to him and the sight which greeted her eyes was beyond her belief. Adney cried and whimpercd to his mother that he was "all right," but this she refused to believe until the family physician pronounced him uninjured.

all present. In company with Adney and her two litle daughters, Mrs. Edmonds started to walk into Granite City in order to gratify her boy's desire to see a match game of base ball.

As they neared the town a passing freight rain came in sight. The engineer reduced the locomotive's speed and Adney, who, his parents say, has always been an adventuresome child, sprang from her side and at-tempted to board the thirteenth car ahead of the cabcose.

He succeeded, though the jump was a dangerous one, and climbed up the ladder o a seat on top of a brake handle. Mrs. Edmonds started in pursuit. Before the boy was out of her sight she experienced the harrowing sensation of seeing him tumble feet first from the dizzy perch he had occupied between the two cars.

Her screams for help were drowned by of wood. Before he was done talking the full sway. It was soon past and the mother bar was piled so high with these ancient hurried ahead, expecting to see the mangled

TOO SALT FOR SEA ANIMALS. They Cannot Live in the Waters of Great Salt Lake. Some time ago, relates the New York Sun, the United States fisheries commis sion thought it would be a good idea to stock Great Salt Lake with useful sea antmals if it was found that they could live in its waters. There was considerable doubt that the project was practible, for it was believed that the excessive salinity of the lake might be unfavorable for sea life. However that might be, it was thought to be worth while, at any rate, to investigate the

So Mr. H. F. Moore was sent to Utah to sea animals. If his report were favorable there was certainly an opportunity for an important immigration of the denizens confined to the nursery or to childhood, of the ocean to these inland waters. The lake is about 100 miles long with an average width of twenty-seven miles and so jokes as the son of Erin. On one occasion, of leeway for a good many thousands of

Mr. Moore found that in those parts of the lake which received the main supplies of fresh water and were consequently less saline than the other waters, some sea crabs and insects may live and some of the lower forms of vege tation flourish, but the proposition of salt in the larger part of the lake is too grea to be favorable for any form of sea life The lake receives not only fresh water from the mountain streams, but numerous salt or brackish springs also contribute an unusually large quantity of mineral matter, so that while the specific gravity of ocean water, on an average, is only 1.025 that of Great Salt Lake is 1.168. The lake waters are unfavorable for sea life, not because of their quality, which does not differ in chemical constitutents from the waters of the ocean, but because of the enormous amount of salt held in solution.

Commercial enterprises are now taking from the lake about 42,000 tons of salt every year. It might be thought that this enor mous withdrawal of salt from the lake would before a very great while reduce the waters to the specific gravity of sea water When this point is reached conditions may be attained that will probably be favoraidea that this transformation can be reached It is estimated that the amount of sale

This sign hung in a conspicuous place before the door of a store in Atlantic avenue led a reporter inside and started a bit of questioning upon the subject, says the Beston Globe.

The proprietor said: "Last fall when the United States government sold all of the old cannon balls and solid shot which for so many years were piled in pyramids along the main street of the navy yard at Charlestown we purchased a lot of them with little thought of converting them into anything besides pig iron. But a few weeks after we had stored them here I overheard a quarry-owner complaining of the slowness and uncertainty of the old system of steel wedging used in getting out hure blocks of granite, and after a bit of thought I suggested the use of cannon balls in the cubes or monoliths from the granite and marble quarries has been to drive steel wedges along the line of the lower portion of the split made by a blast until the great chunk of store topples over on its face. "It required a deal of time and a number of men with big iron sledges and steel wedges to separate these cubes from the quarry wall from which they had been started by the blast. "The method now pursued with the cannon balls is to start the block of stone away by a slight blast and then between the quarry face and the block several of the smaller solid shot, usually the fourinch sort, are dropped down into the aperture. Two men with crowbars give the block a little shake and the instant the block moves in the slightest manner forward the shot takes up their 'purchase' on the space made, when the large cannon balls, some measuring fourteen or fifteen inches and weighing 200 or 300 pounds, are dropped into the top of the gap. Now the slightest outward jar by levers on the big stone sends these heavy cannon balls dropping downward of their own weight, until, patch has been received from Colonel Will- with an easy forward movement, the cube weeks ago suffering with nervous collapse. Big Six's" Potate Patch in New Jersey Abandoned. A dispatch from New York City says that Typographical union No. 6-better known as 'Big Six''-has abandoned the experiment of trying to provide for its superannuated members and those out of work by giving them employment on a large farm near Bound Brook, N. J., on which it obtained a lease in 1890.

The farm, which was situated in the Raritan valley, about thirty-one miles from this city, comprised 186 acres. Here it was hoped that the wards of the union would be able to earn enough by a moderate amount of labor to live comfortably, with the addition of the small allowance which the union makes to them. But those expectations have not been realized.

After the farm had been leased about forty or fifty men were sent down to ocupy it. These were divided into two classes—the superannuated printers, for whose maintenance the union pays $3 a week and those out of work, who receive G. W. JOHNSTON, Mgr. 1510 Howard St. an allowance of $60 a year.

Everything necessary for the successful cultivation of the soil was freely provided. together with an abundance of live stock For living quarters the men had a fine old manor house, in which Mrs. Farquhar, a printer's widow, was installed as house keeper. Each man had about an acre and a quarter of land set apart for him to

The men rose at 5 o'clock on each working day and went to the old-fashioned well for their ablutions. At 7 o'clock they break see if the lake would make a good home for fasted. Then they worked in the fields. Dinner was served at noon and during the afternoon the men worked long enough to complete an eight-hour day. Then came supper and games and other quiet forms of amusement. An investigation of the results by "Big Chinese laboring man cracks the same stale large a body of water would give plenty Six" proved unsatisfactory and the farm has been abandoned.
