Now that the foot ball season is over the mortuary editor can finish up his work.

The opening of congress and the presidential message constitute the next feature on the program.

The turkey which escaped Thanksgiving will do well to retain its perch on the high limb for another month.

The weather is fine for foot ball players and golf enthusiasts, but the business men lack like some of sterner stuff.

People taking advantage of the bankruptcy law should take notice that it is no trouble to raise the wind in the island of Guam.

Anyone willing to write a defense of professional pugilism is invited to communicate with The Prize Fighters' Own, otherwise known as The Omaha Fakersy.

The state of Wyoming cast nearly 5,000 fewer votes at the last presidential election than were cast in Douglas county alone.

Ex-President Kruger of the Transvaal leaves France with a large collection of public, private and official sympathy.

The blowing of a cornet at an Ohio church sociable was the cause of a murder. Ohio should borrow the old Montana sign.

Justice Brown's eulogy of tobacco is exciting the admiration of the devotees of the weed everywhere.

Secretary Wilson sounds a warning to the enthusiastic raisers of Belgian hares. The English sparrow, the mongoose and other pests brought from foreign shores should certainly caution people to be careful in such matters.

The meat of the report of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is that the American farmer enters upon the twentieth century with a more substantial foothold and better prospects than the farmer in any other part of the world.

A broad suspicion lurks in South America that while Chili is industriously talking peace it has a big knife in its booting and is likely to run amuck at any time.

Iowa women suffragists are the first to recover their breath after election and start in to lay the foundation for another campaign.

The Nebraska legislature will find plenty of work confronting it when it assembles. In addition to patching up the holes which the supreme court has knocked in the irrigation law.

The few New Jersey democrats who survived the November storm and landed in the legislature propose to cast their votes for ex-President Cleveland for senator.

TOO MUCH HASTE POSSIBLE. Our newly elected state officers seem to be proceeding with their appointments on the theory that the quicker of them the better.

The Republicans come into control of Nebraska, after having been in the minority for four years, with great expectations on the part of the people.

The standard they are expected to maintain has been set high and the test to be applied will be rigid and severe.

Under the circumstances the selection of the men to be favored with appointive positions becomes one of the most important duties devolving upon the officers charged with that responsibility.

Too much care cannot be exercised in ascertaining the fitness of each applicant for the place he seeks and his ability to fill it with credit to himself and to the party which will be held accountable for every detail in the state administration during the coming two years.

Many of these appointments must be confirmed by the state senate, which, according to the intent of the statute, acts as an advisory board and shares the responsibility for them.

The new appointees will, of course, be judged, not by their promises, but by their works, but in deference to the party whose continued supremacy hangs in the balance of their administration, it would not be out of order to go slow and make sure of every step.

Opposition to subsidy bill. Republican opposition to the ship subsidy bill, at least in its present form, appears to be stronger in the house of representatives than was expected.

Work on the new High school building is suspended to await the arrival of the necessary materials.

Warfare and Weylerism. Philadelphia Record.

The British and Spanish navies are unlikely to meet with more success in the reconcentrado system than that which attended the experiment of General Weyler.

Thanking Reminders. Baltimore American.

The prosperous remember there is no better way of celebrating Thanksgiving than by making a cause for thanks to the poor and needy.

Provokes a Feeble Smile. Chicago Post.

The story of the two Omaha people who are discussing the gift of some millions of dollars now tied up in the English royal treasury has a very familiar sound.

Where the Trouble Lies. Springfield Republican.

The question of reorganizing the democratic party is now giving way among the reorganizers to the question whether any democratic party exists to be reorganized.

Uncle Sam's High Credit. Boston City Star.

Although the present high value of government bonds is due to the demand for them to be used as security for bank circulation.

Around the Mourner's Bench. Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ex-Governor Jim Hogg has lost confidence in the country. If that is all Brother Hogg lost on the election he is still not so unhappy as some others.

Pretext for Partition. Detroit Journal.

By fixing the indemnity figures so high that China never can meet them the hungry powers of Europe will have a pretext on which to slice and divide the territory.

Two of a Kind. Minneapolis Times.

Alfred Belt is said to be forming a trust for the absolute control of the gold product of the world.

Personally Conducted Party. New York World.

Senator-elect Bailey's notion of rehabilitating the democracy is through a "process of elimination, subtraction and addition."

What President McKinley will have to say in his annual message regarding the future policy of this government toward Cuba is awaited with great interest.

By fixing the indemnity figures so high that China never can meet them the hungry powers of Europe will have a pretext on which to slice and divide the territory.

Experiment in Taxing Mortgages. Springfield Republican.

The old effort to make the holder of a mortgage share in the payment of taxes levied upon the real estate has been revived in Missouri through a constitutional amendment just adopted.

We have no doubt, but unqualifiedly declare, as he has repeatedly done, that it is the unalterable purpose of the United States to give Cuba independence, but it is possible that he will suggest some reservations bearing upon the future relations of the island to the United States.

Meantime the constitutional convention is making little progress and there has been manifested on the part of some of its members a spirit by no means reassuring.

NOT A GIVE-AWAY NEWSPAPER. The Bee is not a give-away newspaper.

To subscribers it furnishes a staple article for which it exacts a fair price. By producing the best newspaper, giving all the news promptly in intelligible form, it assures its readers full value for their money.

A Perpetual Candidacy

The audacity of Senator Vest is very great. If a change does not come over the leadership of the democratic party—if a change does not come over that leadership—he will suffer for it.

Mr. Vest makes bold to say that Mr. Bryan has no perpetual license as a democratic candidate for the presidency.

This is a new and startling idea in democratic circles.

Mr. Bryan's first nomination was a spectacular success.

How to account for this, except upon the theory of the utter paralysis of the democratic brain and conscience.

It is a hopeful indication that the democratic party is about to come out of its trance when men like Senator Vest and Congressman Catches will be wakened up.

They will continue to be hoarse with rail rousing, will continue while a hope of democratic endorsement and support shall be held out.

stamp, which is to be richly symbolical of the blessings of the postage which New Zealand is endeavoring to diffuse throughout the world.

A correspondent of the London Times, writing from Vienna, furnishes some interesting information concerning the economic condition of Japan.

The suggestion of Senator Vest that this sort of thing need not necessarily be continued indefinitely comes at an opportune time and it should receive attention.

ABILITY UNQUESTIONED.

Fargo (N. D.) Forum. The veteran editor, Mr. Edward Rosewater of The Omaha Bee, is entitled to great credit for the success of the republican ticket in Nebraska.

TART TAKE-OFFS.

Chicago Tribune: "Doesn't it make trouble for your daughter got to cooking school?" "No, she wants to cook at home."

Baltimore American: "But," they said to the illustrious nobleman, "how is it that you are so well educated if you spent every day of your life on the battlefield?" "Easy enough," he answered; "I went to night school."

Detroit Journal: Diplomacy is largely wind, which is often all that is needed to dissipate the clouds of war.

Boston Transcript: Briggs—you seem to think a good deal of Spooner, but I notice you are the only one of his acquaintances who does not lend him money.

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Newell—The idea! He says I'm extravagant! He says I'm not economical as you might be. Mrs. Newell—Oh, but I am! Why I never buy a blessed thing but bargain.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Who is that haughty-looking fellow who just entered the grounds?" "Is he the captain of the eleven?" "Captain of the eleven? I guess not. The captain isn't in it with that lad. That's the 'big' one."

Yonkers Statesman: "Thought you said you had answered that ten-acre field?" "The first farmer." "No," I only said I was thinking about plowing it," said the second farmer. "Oh! I see; you merely turned it over to your mind."

Chicago Post: "In China," remarked the first, "the man who commits a crime often gets another to take his punishment and gives him money for it." "In this country," replied the second, "a man who commits a crime will swear it on to another and give him the laugh for it."

CHANCE AND CHANGE.

I accept a truth I have long denied; Be still, my heart, and listen: The love is rare and the world is wide Though tender teardrops glisten.

A poet sang in the long ago, "Absence makes hearts grow fonder." We shut our eyes, but we, each, must know That hearts are ever wont to wander.

"I love you, dear," is the cry of youth, "With love that's past all changing." The fair ideal of perfect truth Before the vision ranging.

But distance and time are building between And daily needs keep crying: So closely joined are some lives seen That love for freedom's dying.

A dream of the clinging of absent hands And vanished lips create crying: While, far, far away, in distant lands, They now love are expressing!

I admit the strength of the present hour: Oh, sad heart, cease your weeping; Directing chance and change's power Awake while men are sleeping.
