FAMOUS MYSTERY UNRAVELED

Theft and Recovery of $1,500,000 in Bonds Belonging to a New Yorker.

CRIME RECALLED BY A RECENT DEATH

Loyal Owen" Murphy Never Told, and His Employer Would Not Tolerate a Reflection on His Integrity.

With the passing of Owen Murphy dies the secret of the disappearance of $1,500 .-000 worth of bonds, relates the New York Herald. Where they went, how they went, who was instrumental in their abstraction and who were the ultimate beneficiariesthere were the questions that puzzled the police of two continents. No one ever answered the queries. No one ever will answer them. For the man who was the logical informant has passed beyond the jurisdiction of earthly judges, and he left no word of explanation. The secret of this man's life has baffled the Sherlock Holmes of three decades. Owen Murphy! Confidential man of affairs to a many times millionaire! And Ticket Office, 1415 Farnam through it all, on the part of the man most to be affected by a damaging discovery, a personal unconcern that was masterly, a serene satisfaction in the stanch support of his despoiled employer, and finally the crown of confidence which outlived even the tenure of the loyalest of masters! And the bonds came back! Murphy was the agent and confidential man of Rufus L. Lord, when railroad bonds valued at $1,500,000 were taken from the Lord safe in a little office at No. 38 Exchange place. Mr. Lord and Owen Murphy were the only persons supposed to have ac-

Bankers, agents, pawnbrokers and even the rolice themselves were hauled over the coals. Scotland Yard and Mulberry streets followed clews and theories, yet whenever any attention was bestowed upon Owen Murphy there intervened Rufus L. Lord, who defied every man to even breathe suspicion against "the little Irishman," whom he trusted and loved. All the facts thing about the bonds, but that he was at in that robbery of 1866 will probably never be known. Where the safe of Rufus L. Lord, few men ever knew. Developments of these later days have shown how well the faith of Rufus L. Lord in the "little Irishman" was justified. The death of Owen Murphy sent to his reward a good servant, for sixty years a by his subordinate, Detective Irving, of Wherever Owen Murphy went he had hearty greeting for those he met, from the millionaire brokers-and there were not many in those days-to the diminutive cinder pickers. He chased the small boys out of the building when they became unruly and then forgot the incident by the next time he and the youngsters met.

The strangers made a careful study of the position of the office furniture and of the large wall safe which contained the boxes conspicuously labeled "bonds." They returned for the last time on March 1866. While they talked hops with Mr. Lord an accomplice took two tin boxes of bonds. It is said that they went to Central park, where they divided their booty and then escaped. Owen Murphy returning to the office in Exchange place saw that the boxes were missing. "Who has been here?" he asked his employer.

"Two men to inquire about an office," the reply.

"They have done more than that," mid Mr. Murphy, pointing to the vacant space in the sufe. The work of the thieves had been comparatively easy. The outer door of the safe was never locked, because the lock was out of order. There was an inner compartment only locked at night. The boxes were taken and openly carried in the streets, perhaps.

The day of safety deposit companies and trust institutions had not then dawned in Wall street. In the boxes were stock of the Warren railroad, United States bonds, New Jersey railroad stock, Galena and Chicago second mortgage bonds, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad stock, New York & New Haven railroad stock, Chicago & Northwestern railroad stock, and other valuable securities. The numbers of the missing bonds and stocks were published, but this fact did not seem to prevent some of them from being negotiated. About one-third of the papers belonged to Mr. A. L. Barron. The detective bureau began at once to investigate the conduct and habits of Owen Murphy. Captain Young proposed that Murphy be taken to headquarters and there put through the "third degree."

"Befored permit that little Irishman to be accused of this crime," said Mr. Lord, with warmth, "I'd rather lose every cent of that which has been taken. If Owen Murphy

The writer recalls that it was something of a shock to have Carmen in Charles Dud-ley Warner's "That Fortune" smoke, a shock simply because it implied an acceptance on Mr. Warner's part that women in presentable society did smoke. The book is a comparatively late one, yet, if Mr. Warner, in a new edition, were to make Evelyn Mavick herself smoke it would scarcely be surprising, so rapidly has this innovation become an accepted habit, both

It Can Only Be Had Where There is No Dandruff. Any man or woman who wants soft, glossy hair must be free of dandruff, which causes falling hair. Since it has become known that dandruff is a germ disease the old hair preparations that were mostly scalp irritants have been abandoned and the public, barbers and doctors included, have taken to using Newbro's Herpicide, the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ. E. Dodd, Dickinson, N. D., says: "Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp from dandruff and prevents the hair falling out, but promotes a new growth. Herpicide keeps
