About 4:39 in the afternoon Trutleman, who was stand-Wells ing by his back in front of the Burlington depot, was approached by two men, who said they wanted him to take "their friend" to the Immanuel hospital. He was very ill, they said, and Trutleman would have to help them lift him into the vehicle. Arrangements had been made at the hospital for his reception. The sick man was wealthy grain buyer from Albion, Neb.
