WANTS TO BE SURE OF HIS PROPERTY

Barbara Liny Brings Jucob Mertz to the County Court House and Ties Him Up for Keeps.

When cupid shot a piercing arrow into the heart of Barbara Lisy, an Omaha bride of yesterday, the maiden's head, in the ecstacy of its bliesful dream, dld not go whirling away from thoughts of the hard realities of life, as is the case in love affairs of younger people. Miss Lisy is 45 years of age, old enough to know that love is not a substance that can be converted into bread and butter. Therefore she arranged for the delivery of her heart to Jacob Mertz, a sturdy South Omaha laborer who has accumulated a little of this world's goods, with a business-like consideration for the future. When the couple appeared at the court house yesterday they first procured a license and then asked if Judge Vinsohaler would tie the knot. As the county judge was out of town Harry Morrill volunteered to send for Judge Baxter, whom he recommended to the matrimonial aspirants as an expert twister of nuptial knots. Morrill presented Judge Baxter's qualifications with such convincing eloquence that the business-like bride gave the command for his services without besitation.

After receiving assurance consented to go on with the proceedings that would make her the wife and beneficiary. Judge Baxter lost no time in putting harness, and as the apparently happy couple disappeared through the corridor he murmured: "That old girl knows her business.

The opportunity for Omaha and western the opportunity to hear the document read. people to visit Cuba and other islands of the West Indies without inconvenience or delay in either railroad or ocean travel wil be available from this time on. Heretofore the journey has been beset with many hardships for the traveler to whom speed is an object because of the fact that the trip by rail had to be made either to Miami or Port Tampa, Fla., the only two points from which passenger steamers sailed for Havana.

For this reason many western people in search of a pleasure trip have denied themselves the pleasure of visiting the capital of Cuba, preferring rather to visit some section of the country where railroad travel exclusively could be enjoyed and less time consumed in journeying to and from their destination. In order to improve this condition a line of steamers from New Orleans to Havana has been put into operation and swift passenger vessels will make the jour ney of 610 miles in forty-eight hours, leaving New Orleans every Saturday morning Bt. 10:45.

The Illinois Central is particularly interested in the inauguration of this new line of steamers, inasmuch as close connections will be made with its regular passenger train from the north which arrives in New Orleans daily at 9:35 a. m. A passenger from Omaha bound for Havana can go to New Orleans and from there take the steamer, making the entire trip in three and one-balf days.

Elbert Hubbard Has the Grip and Omaha Sympathizes with Him.

Philosopher of Work and Join Him in Discipleship to Morris.

A strange face is Elbert Hubbard's. At it is the face of an ancient or a modern. Goldsmith or an up-to-date vendor of patent medicines

His long, black hair marks him as either an eccentric man of today or a gentleman of King George's time and his unconventional dress suggests the attire of the de lightful Oliver, whom Stuart Robson has made known to the twentieth century. Fra Elburtus wears a frock coat, which suggests comfort rather than Poole. His collars are several inches lower than those worn by the prince of Wales and his black necktie is a bow with flowing ends, such as men wear who think they have an artistic tempermament, but do not establish print shops, publish magazines, lecture and do other things which turn eccentricity into coin of the realm.

But after all Elbert Hubbard is much like other men. He has the grip. That was the the plans of the committee were disar-ranged. Councilman Johnston said last into the pulpit of the First Methodist church last night and faced 1,500 Phillistines. Even the club women, who disapproved so thoroughly of the erratic views on matrimony which Hubbard recently gave utterance to, forgave him when he told of his ailment.

Hubbard has a bad cough. His audience coughed with him and the barrier between the speaker and his auditors was broken. For the time being he was not the mighty leader of a flock of worshipers, but just a suffering man, who had contracted the grip in Chicago and was thankful that he had escaped the rigors of an Illinois withter and was in Omaha to tell some confidential friends of the great William Mor ris and his doctrine of work.

Pink Teas and Spare Rooms Ignored. And anyone who heard the message that Hubbard brought can forgive him for saying that pink teas are a bore and that the spare rooms of the ambitious entertainers of celebrities do not always contain a bed of roses. To get on intimate terms with Hubbard it is necessary to call him Johnjust plain John. This is the name he bears in East Aurora and there is a story in how he came by it.

One day the chief Roycrofter was trim ming some trees in his orchard. He was dressed in the garb of a laborer and enjoving himself with the abandon of a seri A man who was driving a fine horse stopped in front of the abode of the Roycrofters and called to the man in the orchard: "John, come over here and hold my horse. John obeyed and the fashionably-dressed man strutted into the house and inquired for Mr. Hubbard. The joke was so good that the associates of Fra Elburtus perpetuated it by calling him John

The philosophy of Froebel and Pestalozzi and the teachings of Ruskin, Carlyle and Morris are united in the message which Hubbard delivered and finally epitomized

"If you would have me give you a recipe If the down town paved streets were flushed a great deal of mud would be washed into the sewers.

Sanitary Inspector Jones reports that F. Ruemping, 2514 F street, is suffering from an attack of scarlet fever.

The for a great and spiendid life I would answer, 'Work and then work, travel, revere and pray.'"

It was a sermon which he preached. He announced at the beginning in true orthodox style that his text was from Carlyle and read: "Blessed is the man who has found his work." Then he added: "The curse of the world is joyless work." William Morris is the exemplification of the sentiment of the two quotations and his life was reverently reviewed by his great disciple, the man who fashioned his East Aurora colony after the company of congenial spirits whom Morris brought together in England years ago. Makes All Men Live Better.

"William Morris exerted a greater influence upon England than any other man in the last 200 years. His influence can be found in every well-furnished house of today. He taught people to buy things and to buy them good. His philosophy taught that life should be simple. He believed that pictures and literature are good only insofar as we are in sympathy with them and make them our own; insofar as we feel what the creator of the book or picture felt," said Elbert Hubbard, "Morris and his associates styled themselves the Pre-Raphaelite brothers and rescued England from the prevailing fashion of filling houses with uscless, gaudy furnishings. "Morris was a master of six trades. He was an artist and architect and a poet in one. His poetry was so good that he would have been made laureate had he not called himself a socialist. He set forth his views upon the street corners and was thrown into jail. But he was not a socialist in the sense that many men are. No two socalled socialists hold the same view. To Morris socialism was the idea of joining hands with men and assisting them.

"He believed that the men who make an article are of more importance than the article. He considered the men who work and not the product of their work. The buyer of his products was disregarded by Morris. He opposed competition and did all in his power to uplift and ennoble la-Mr. Hubbard's rule for a happy life

A dozen fingers would hardly suffice to point out your troubles-a pain here, a weakness there; headache, bad digestion, poor appetite, biliousness, constipation. You are nervous, irritable, sleepless, weak and discouraged. You have no ambition, energy or strength to work, and you feel blue, restless, miserable.

What you need is-

Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy

THE MEDIOINE WHICH MAKES PEOPLE WELL

You will find it the grandest restorative in existence, the greatest giver of health, strength, vigor and vitality the world has ever known. Take Dr. Greene's Nervura at once-you will never regret it for it will make you well and strong.

Dootors, Druggists and the People Recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura.

The well known druggist, Charles W. Ecoleston, Esq. 329 Park Ave., Worcester, Mass., says:
"Some time ago I was taken with nervous prostration, I suffered terribly with my nerves and could get no sleep at all. I became fearfully exhausted, my stomach was in a prible condition from dyspepsia, and I could eat hardly anything.

"I used several medicines but without benefit. Being in the drug business myself, and having had many customers speak in the highest terms of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I determined to try it. After taking only one half bottle I began to feel much better. I slept soundly all night, and my appetite was splendid. After taking three buttles, I ate three square meals a day and had not the slightest distress. My nerves were perfectly strong and I felt like a new man, being completely cured of all my troubles. Out of the respect I bear the manufacturers of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and my desire to have the sick and suffering made well and strong, I heartly recommend it to people who are sick, and especially to people who are the same as I was, nervous and inclined toward dyspepsia, and indigestion, and suffering from not being able to sleep well at night."

The first speaker of the evening was Dr. R. M. Stevenson, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, and his subject was "The Great West." He said in part: "The United States has been termed the world's farm. The larger part of the farm lies west of the Mississippi river. One corn crop of Nebraska at 30 cents a bushel was worth more than the output of all of the gold mines of the United States, four west ern states producing more corn than all f the other states put together. Our country must depend upon the great west for the most part for all of the staple articles of food and for fruit; for all of the pre cious metals. "These facts signify that the great west s destined to have the main body of the people and to do the greater part of the business of the country, and the future principal commerce of our country is to be over the Pacific ocean. The Anglo-Saxon and the Slav confront each other over this ocean. The metropolis of the United States will one day be on the Pacific coast. This means that the Christian institutions, churches, academies, colleges and every other thing that makes for righteousness must be planted throughout the great west with a view to the coming greatness. The religious and the intellectual must keep abreast of the material in order to perfect symmetrical development. The home missionary has endured hardship as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. Strong Should Help Wenk The theme of Dr. T. V. Moore of West minister church was "Some Problems" The first of these problems, he said, is the American Indian, 300,000 of him, the practical slave of the American government, from whom we have taken every vestage of liberty and to whom we owe the debt the strong owe the weak-support and training moral and religious training. The second problem is the New Mexican, who is little better than the Indian in matter of intelligence, education and religion, and to whom the Christian people of the country owe the same debt. The third is the mountaineer of the southeast. The two classes previously mentioned are undeveloped, the latter is degenerate. The progressive people owe these men the debt of one brother to another. They must be Christianized and educated. These are three problems of weak neople. Then comes the problem of the strong-the Mormon church, organized for political aggrandisement; the negro question in the south, where nothing but the power of the church can bring harmony,

The speaker referred to the conditions existing in the islands which have recently come under the control of the government and said that he had no doubt the American flag would fly over governmental work well done. "But," he asked, will the church be ready to carry on her part of the work in those lands?" said he, "that a good live Protestant church working alongside of the Catholic church lifts man and puts from into his character, has a powerful effect in developing the latent power for good in the latter." and be abreast of the flag on every island.
