A happier surrounding no bride ever had. The weather was cold, crisp and inspiriting. Hundreds of country people, all happy and prosperous looking, many of them wearing the gala costumes which their ancestors had worn centuries before, cheered th big state carriage, with red and white liveried postilions, and the waiting escort of twelve noblemen in maroon and black, who were aligned, six on each side, sitting their herses proudly with hands at attention.

The procession, as a spectacle, was not noteworthy. Fifty Dutch hussars rode ahead, then came a handful of court officials, with the grand master of ceremonies on horseback; then a coach with the queen and Duke Henry. Their mothers' coach came after, then the chief military occupants of the palace, the governor of the city, the two adjutants on horseback, and, Plastly, a group of fifty mounted artillery men. Crowds Block the Way.

The progress was slow, because the procession was frequently obliged to halt while the cheering populace made way. Green and crange decorations, with thousands of Butch flags hanging across the streets gave the route a brilliant appearance. The costuming of the crowds was equally highly colored. The windows and housetops were all filled, and the house yards and doors sere occupied by many spectators. All the LINCOLN, Feb. 7 .- (Special Telegram.) The senatorial ballot in joint session disclosed no material changes teday, although two or three transfers between the different columns took place. The program mapped out by a small coterie of fusionists for the discomfiture of the republicans by casting a few fusion votes for republican candidates was unfolded a little further. Beall, the fusionist who had recorded himself for Hinshaw yesterday, took conveniently sick so that he was not present to answer his name; but Ream, another fusion member, assumed the role of patriot in his stead. Mr. Rosewater has had interviews during the past twenty-four hours with Mi and Mr. Metklejohn with reference to their mutual interests and it may be safely said that they understand each others positions more thoroughly than ever and a caucus agreement satisfactory to all the candidates is sure to be evolved. "Attempts of opposition organs to misrepresent me as the only remaining obstacle to a caucus will not feel anybody familiar with the situation," said Mr. Rosewater. "I have been working for a caucus from the first and all my supporters have signed a caucus call. What I want, however, is a caucus that will give us two republican United States senators without fail a caucus that can command the necessary sixtyseven votes to fill both vacancies and not leave either the long or short term unfilled. In my judgment to make sure of this result requires simultaneous nomination. What is more to the point, the caucus agreement embodying that provision has been signed by twenty or more members, including the sign or not. When the caucus meets it must be in position to put an end to the deadlock by electing two republican sena-PACKERS DENY THE RUMOR tors without inviting its own disruption by falling short of the necessary sixty-seven

The committee appointed to investigate the operations of the hold-up lobby will soon get down to work, but beyond exposing the parties engaged in the business nothing further need be experted. An invitation was extended publicly in the house for all members who had introduced hold-up bills relating to the various corporations to come before the committee and tell where they got them. Of course, the invitation will not be accepted, because to do so would be the same as confession on the part of any member that he was either a
