Resolved, by the senate of the state of Nebraska, That the death of the Hon.
Nebraska, That the Jones of the Jones of Public service in various departments proved his ability as a lawyer and his integrity as a citizen. He brought ever are as a judge reflected credit upon himself and the several courts of which he was at various times a member. Duty will done, an upright life, a conscientious judge, a kindly man, a useful citizen, a man loved by those who knew him—these are memories recalled of Samuel Maxwell.

Day Spent in Forwarding Bills to Their Final Destination Without Recourse.

LINCOLN, Feb. 18 .- (Special.)-In the senate this afternoon a number of tributes were paid to the memory of the late Judge Samuel Maxwell. Among those making speeches were Senators Crounse, Lyman, Ransom and Young.

Senator Young in speaking of the dead a state tax of $100 on peddlers of jewelry,

It has been my good fortune to have known Samuel Maxwell for the last eighteen years. Viewed from whatever standpoint we may Judge Maxwell, who has passed from this earth forever, was a truly great man. He was loved and admired as passed from this earth forever, was a truly great man. He was loved and admired as a citizen by nearly everyone and had but few if any enemies. His personality has passed from us never to return, but he still lives with us in spirit, and the work that he has left behind and his many noble achievements are such that he will be remembered for generations after his death. In the early period of the state's history he was judge of the district in which I now reside. For eighteen years he served upon the supreme bench of this state, which, in my judgment, is the most exalted and dignified position wi' in the gift of the people of our state. He served in every constitutional convention we have had and all the good elements of his life and thought passed into our organic law. He closed his political career at a ripe old age by representing the Third district in the congress of the United States. During all of his official career not even his enemies, if he had any, ever pointed at him the finger of suspicion, or even charged that he had one blot or blemish on his couracter. He was noted for his sterling integrity, his great individuality and for being a champion of the rights of the common people as against the classes.

His achievements as a judge, his work as pion of the rights of the common people as against the classes.

His achievements as a judge, his work as an author and his sterling qualities as a citizen will always keep his name fresh in our memories and the unbiased historian, when he writes the history of this great state, will weave into it much of the life of this great man that will cause him to be remembered throughout all the future. It would be well for us if we would pause long enough to admire the great qualities of this citizen who has passed away and try to emulate his noble qualities.

> The house resolved into committee of the whole, with Sprecher of Colfax in the chair. Under the regular order, house roll 110 was first taken up. This measure was introduced by Mullen of Douglas, and in brief sought to provide that no property should be exempt from execution or attachment for clerks', laborers' or mechanics' wages for debt arising from purchase of food or entables. Mullen wanted the bill laid over until tomorrow, but Tanner of Nance wanted it indefinitely postponed. On the latter's motion the vote was 39 to 30, and the bill was postponed. Representative Fowler's bill for the protection of owners of stallions, being house roll 226, was recommended for passage.

The committee of the whole arose at 5:30, but only a portion of its proceedings were considered by the house. Mullen moved to advance the garnishee bill from third reading and on this proposition Tanper of Nance demanded a roll call. A vote was taken, resulting in favor of Mullen's motion by 34 to 31. A motion to adjourn then prevailed, this action leaving the remainder of the committee of the whole re-Senate file 122, by Cummins, providing for
