bert has looked over the ordinance and declared it all right there is no question about its passage at the next meeting. This will mean that the building of the bridge will commense on or about March 1 and that the grading will commence as soon as the approaches are set.

Perhaps the passage of this ordinance and its compliance by the railroad company will set a precedent and thus the other railroad companies may be compelled to construct brkiges across the tracks at F street and at either N or O streets.

There is a continual demand for a bridge to the stock yards, as the immense amount of switching now being done causes delay to those who desire to visit the live stock market. As the business increases here the crossings are blocked more and more every day and when the ordinance under consideration goes through the council will be asked to order a bridge at either N or O streets in order to accommedate the people who transact husiness at the stock yards.
