

REVIVES PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

Observance of Washington's Birthday by Sons of American Revolution.

AUDIENCE JOINS IN SONGS OF NATION

Addresses and Essays Cover the Life of Washington as Warrior, Statesman, Capital Builder and Citizen.

The spirit of '76 prevailed last night at the Commercial club rooms, where the Nebraska society of the Sons of the American Revolution met to observe Washington's birthday.

Pride of ancestry was simply justified by the valorous deeds of the patriots who struggled against insurmountable odds at Bunker Hill, suffered the tortures of hunger and cold at Valley Forge and marched to a well-earned triumph at Yorktown.

Addresses and essays were given by Miss Anna Bishop, in a clear soprano voice, sang Key's "Star Spangled Banner."

Compatriot L. P. Funkhouser, who presided, spoke briefly on the splendid accomplishments of the society in perpetuating the memory and spirit of the men who achieved American independence.

GREAT SPEECHES TO NATION'S HEROES

Grant and Lincoln Come in for a Share of the Credit Restowed Upon the Country's Builders.

The second annual banquet of the Omaha Washington club on the anniversary of Washington's birthday was given Friday night at the Metropolitan club.

The same elaborate designs were carried out in the parlor, the reception room and the diningroom downstairs.

The association of the Union Stock Yards with the club name signifies that all the club members are connected with that industry in a business way.

Enthusiasm reached its limit when Miss Anna Bishop, in a clear soprano voice, sang Key's "Star Spangled Banner."

GABRIEL S. WEGENER CAUGHT

Omaha Remembers Him Because of His Santa Clara Manufacturing Company.

Gabriel S. Wegener, who is remembered in Omaha because of his Santa Clara Manufacturing company, was arrested in Chicago Wednesday evening after a search by Pinkerton detectives extending over eight months.

Wegener's dealings in Omaha were upon a somewhat different line than that for which he has been arrested in Chicago.

He was the founder and manager of the Western Manufacturing company, maker of grocers' sundries, and conducted that business in an apparently successful manner for a few years.

During his stay there and afterward, it is alleged, that Wegener worked a gigantic scheme for the purpose of securing $100,000 in cash to place the company upon a solid financial basis.

The particular offense for which Wegener was arrested was reported by the Drummond Packing company of Eau Claire, Wis.

Miss Jennie Reynolds, who put up $10,000, was seen Friday night. She admitted that she new Wegener, and that she had for her attorneys, in Chicago looking after the case.

Rhodie Redmond and his alleged connection with the Cudahy kidnaping case has degenerated into a side-splitting opera bouffe.

Thursday a friend of Redmond's in Omaha read an account in a local paper to the effect that the police were searching for Redmond on the theory that his complicity in the kidnaping and at once wired him: "The police want you in Omaha, Better come."

HEARING OF THE HARDINGS

Police Judge Reserves Decision in Case on Account of Legal Holiday.

The question of the legality of binding over prisoners at the bar on Washington's birthday was called up in Judge Lears' court Friday afternoon and as a consequence the judge reserved his decision in the case brought against Samuel, Louis and Benjamin Harding until this morning.

The Hardings made the defense that they had no knowledge of the goods having been stolen, but that they had bought them from a dealer, Jacob Milder, who testified that he had purchased the bullion bars from McKenna.

MOVES TO DISMISS CASE

BETTER THAN YEARS OF DOCTORING

ONLY PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND DID HER ANY LASTING GOOD.

It can be truthfully said of no other remedy in the world what is so often said of Paine's celery compound, that in no single instance has it failed to benefit, and benefit permanently—and there's the point that no sufferer should lose sight of.

The whole stock-in-trade of the ordinary, plausible-sounding, but wholly irresponsible remedies is to bring about the appearance of health, to cover up symptoms and to stave off break-downs, making the permanent cure all the more difficult.

Other remedies, because they are effect on lasting cure, do harm. More brains and ingenuity is expended on the label and wrapper than on what is put into the bottles. Persons who try this remedy and that, in the foolish hope that they may hit on the right one by chance, and at any rate it can do them no harm, should know that they are doing their system incalculable mischief and putting off the day of complete recovery by such experimentation.

Paine's celery compound must not be judged by the standard of any of these superficial medicines. It is a great, responsible, scientific discovery, singularly unlike any remedial agent that ever aimed to effect a similar purpose—to make people well. It is not an ordinary remedy. The results from its use have been so extraordinary and so gratifying, that busy men and women have gone out of their way to send letters of thanks and to allow their names to vouch for every statement they have made in praise of it.

The following acknowledgment from Mrs. Geo. F. Rouse of Green Bay, Wis., of the surprising benefit she has received from the use of Paine's celery compound is too valuable to be withheld from the public.

which ascended to his bedroom from the lower floor. He hastily arose and tip-toed down the stairs. In a room off the hall he plainly saw a man, who was crouching in the shadow and seemed intent upon doing some mischief. Mr. Fitch noiselessly reached his steps to his bedroom and armed himself with a revolver. Then he slipped downstairs and locked the front and back doors, retaining possession of the keys.

The burglar was certainly cornered and Mr. Fitch awaited patiently the time when he should be taken to his bedroom and see how thought the man would have to escape through a window and then he could wing him. No further sound came from the lower part of the house and the knowledge that he was alone in the house with a bold and burglar was extremely disquieting, so Mr. Fitch fung up his window and his cries of "Thief! Thief! Burglar!" disturbed the whole neighborhood.

Shadows soon began to issue from the front doors of nearby residences and a company of men, attired in all sorts of negligé garments, martialled in front of Mr. Fitch's window. The lawyer related the circumstances of his discovery of a nocturnal visitor and every means of exit was guarded by one or more of the half-dressed householders. Then Mr. Fitch boldly marched downstairs brandishing his revolver through the darkness that hid every object from his sight. He fondly creased the trigger and was prepared for an explosion the moment he should lay eyes on the hoodlum. He quietly opened the doors leading from the hall, but no burglar was to be found. Every nook and corner in the house was carefully searched, but the presence of a stranger was not divulged. Then Mr. Fitch began to realize that he was the victim of an overwrought imagination or else the burglar had mysteriously vanished and his neighbors were informed of his fading in the case. Shivering with the cold, they made their way to their homes, half disappointed because the excitement of capturing a real burglar had been denied them.
