Dr. Hirschfelder and Gibbons departed and Dr. Rixey laid down for a little rest, there was hope that her life would be spared. All day the president was watching the doctors' faces and the manner of the nurses for a sign of encouragement and she urged him not to despair.

General Smith and Secretary Hitchcock took with the president, Miss Barber came downstairs and told the small company that Mrs. McKinley had just asked for chicken and coffee, saying she was tired of the liquid nourishment which the doctors were giving her.

At 2:30 o'clock the president decided to go out for a walk and accompanied by the postmaster general and the secretary of the interior he strolled through the neighboring streets, the president returning the respectful salutations which were met with from all who recognized him, and only once or twice he stopped to shake hands with those who stepped up and requested that privilege.

Upon his return to the house he cheerfully told a group of newspaper men assembled there that Mrs. McKinley was holding her own. During the afternoon the president expressed the opinion that the public was entitled to specific information as to the nature of Mrs. McKinley's illness and the treatment she was receiving.

In the city the bulletins at the newspaper offices announcing that the festivities of the week were abandoned will like a pall upon the multitude. Not until then was it fully realized that Mrs. McKinley was at death's door. There was no resentment, only a feeling of deepest sympathy for the head of the nation watching his wife's battle for her life.

PAPA ROURKE IS HAPPY

Magnate Persees Great Possibilities Abov of His Ball Players. EVERYTHING READY FOR OPENING DAY

Crew Arrives in Omaha from Kansas City and Captain Declares His Men Are Going to Be Winners. William A. Rourke and his crew of baseball artists reached home from Kansas City yesterday, after having pounded the plunk cushions in the interior of one of the late George M. Fullan's Omaha ball teams.

Playing in Hard Luck. "We have played in pretty hard luck," said the captain, "but it hadn't been for the accident that came to Eddie Leavin in the second game with Denver, leaving us practically without a catcher, we would have won nine of the twelve games played. The only games we lost which were on account of the accident were the three in Kansas City, and Wednesday's game went to the Teabuccinos through a series of misadventures that our men ordinarily would never have made."

Opening of Season. The opening of the season in Omaha will take place today. The game will be played at 3:45. That's the time all the games will begin hereafter. Preceding the game will be a big parade, participated in by city and county officials, representatives of the press, prominent ball fans and a big delegation representing the local baseball playing grounds and the local music will be furnished by a brass band.

COLEMAN PROVES A PROBLEM

"Farmer" Burns Solves a Wrestling Enigma Only by Hard Work. EXHIBITION IS A SPLENDID ONE

Victor Admits He Never in His Life Had His Strength and Dexterity Put More to the Test. "Farmer" Burns, famous middleweight champion wrestler of America, never struggled harder for a victory than he did Thursday night. It was only after an hour and two minutes of the hardest kind of work that he succeeded in defeating Frank Coleman, the local wrestling instructor.

The match between the two splendid exponents of scientific wrestling was in the Trocadero theater. It was attended by a crowd that taxed the capacity of the playhouse, and there was not a person in attendance but felt he had received ample for his money when the contest was ended. Repeatedly he escaped holds which ordinarily would have proved a wrestler to the mat with both shoulders down. And on each of these occasions the "Farmer" was worried. He was prepared in a measure for the skill and speed and cleverness of his opponent, having been given an example of it in the former match, but it was a surprise and a disappointment to him when his strongest and best holds failed in accomplishing the intended result.

Yields to Superior Strength. "I'm as strong as a bull, but 'Farmer' Burns has been fighting me as much strength as I," Coleman said in his dressing room after his opponent had succeeded in getting the first fall. That remark of the local wrestler told the crowd that he was not only strong but also a man who combined great strength with wonderful agility and exceptional skill. Coleman's speed and cleverness counted for little in comparison with the greater strength of his opponent. Repeatedly he escaped holds which ordinarily would have proved a wrestler to the mat with both shoulders down. And on each of these occasions the "Farmer" was worried. He was prepared in a measure for the skill and speed and cleverness of his opponent, having been given an example of it in the former match, but it was a surprise and a disappointment to him when his strongest and best holds failed in accomplishing the intended result.

Never Made Harder Fight. After Captain Sullivan of the city fire department, who officiated as referee, declared Burns the champion, Coleman addressed the audience briefly. "I never made a harder fight in my life," he said, "and I give 'Farmer' Burns all credit for defeating me. I have no excuses to make. My opponent was the better wrestler and that's what won him the match." The victorious wrestler paid Coleman a splendid compliment. He told the crowd that he had never in his life met a man who had given him a harder tussle. "Mr. Coleman is a great wrestler," he said, "and I consider it a feather in my cap to have defeated him tonight."

At the conclusion of the match Manager Rosenthal of the Trocadero stated that Coleman would be at his theater every night next week, prepared to meet any comer in fifteen minutes," said Manager Rosenthal. "I will forfeit $25."
