

LINCOLN MAYOR SNUBBED

City Council Emphatically Declares Its Independence.

REFUSES TO RAISE FIRE CHIEF'S PAY

Winnett insists that Agreement is Violated and Says He'll Pay the Difference Out of His Own Pocket if Necessary.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, May 27.—(Special Telegram.)—Opposition between Mayor Winnett and the city council, which has been growing stronger ever since the spring election, culminated tonight, when the council boldly declared its independence from the wishes and dictates of the mayor. As a result the city's contract with Fire Chief Clements is broken and salaries of all city officials and employees are left at the old basis, just where they were before the legislature passed the new Lincoln charter. The declaration of the council came in the vote on the salary ordinance, which was recommended for passage at the executive meeting last Friday evening. After several unsuccessful attempts to incorporate new amendments to the measure placed upon its passage, the fourteen members split even in the vote and the ordinance, therefore, was defeated. Mayor Winnett was visibly disappointed when he heard the result announced. He had favored increasing the salaries of city attorney and deputy city engineer, fire chief and one or two other officers, but he declared Friday night that he would veto the ordinance if it provided for other than these changes. To a reporter for The Bee he said: "The result was not entirely unexpected. Two conclusions were reached by the council Friday by voting tonight against the ordinance. Fire Chief Clements will have to be provided for. He was employed with the understanding that his salary was to be increased from $1,200 to $1,500 a year. The citizens have been paying him $25 a month and I hoped the council would stand by the agreement and raise the salary at once as the new charter went into effect. I do not propose to lose Mr. Clements and if necessary I'll pay the increase out of my own pocket."

The two conclusions which are charged with violating the council agreement are William Albert and G. F. Eriksen. Those who voted against the measure insist that they did so because it discriminated between officials, but persons who have watched council proceedings venture the opinion that the action was deliberately planned as a rebuke to the mayor for attempting to force the passage of a pet ordinance. The council passed the ordinance limiting the speed of automobiles to eight miles an hour.

Bryan on South Carolina.

W. J. Bryan gave out today a statement on the resignation of Senators McLaurin and Tillman. He says he regards it as the political event of last week. Mr. Bryan said: "It is an honorable course for the senators to pursue and beneficial to the state. At present South Carolina virtually has no voice in the settlement of public measures, as the veto of one senator negates the vote of the other. Senator Tillman has just been re-elected and thus risks the loss of a longer term, but Senator McLaurin really sacrifices more, because he has less chance to win in the primary."

Mr. Bryan added that it was hardly necessary to say that he hoped and expected to see Senator Tillman win a sweeping victory, because he represents the man while Senator McLaurin represents the dollar. The vote will show whether the plutocratic idea is making any headway in the south.

Mr. Bryan's only comment on the decision in the insular cases was that it seemed to uphold the contention of the republicans in some respects and that of the democrats in others. He said he would not commit himself further on the effect of the opinion until he had read the full report. He had hoped the constitution would follow the flag.

Course for State Teachers.

The executive committee of the Nebraska Teachers' Reading Circle has outlined a course of work for teachers in which provision is made for all subjects added to the general course of study by the last legislature. In a circular letter of instruction now being sent to teachers the new work is outlined as follows: "Both the books adopted have in view the legal requirements of teachers and to teacher of Nebraska can well afford to miss the benefits of either of them. Both can be used profitably as textbooks in teachers' institutes and summer normals. "The professional work is broad in its scope and constitutes the study of Himsdale's work, 'The Art of Study,' which book is the result of the lamented author's life-long investigation of the subject of pedagogy. The book is not only a good, light, but to be carefully and thoughtfully canvassed in every part. It should be used as a manual throughout the institute session. Through the year it should be used for home study and constant reference in the light of the institute discussions and of current experience. For some teachers who have not followed the work in preceding years it may be found desirable to substitute for this book or to use in addition to it some of the professional books previously used—such as White's 'Elementary Psychology' (which includes psychology), White's 'School Management,' King's 'School Interest and Duties,' or Roark's 'Method in Education.' Such substitution is permitted to reading circle members who have not previously used the substitute books and full credit will be given for all work done. A good textbook in pedagogy, such as the hands of every teacher in attendance at the institute. "In addition to the professional work one book on general culture should be studied. The Nebraska legislature in the session of 1901 made an amendment to the school law of Nebraska requiring that, after July 1, 1903, applicants for certificates of the first and second grades shall pass a satisfactory examination in the elements of agriculture, including a fair knowledge of the structure and habits of the common plants, insects, birds and quadrupeds. "Bailey's 'Principles of Agriculture' has been adopted to enable the teacher to comply with the law. It can be used as a text during the institute and as a guide to work with pupils throughout the year. The book has been prepared to meet the needs of schools and rural societies, is a clear presentation of the science of agriculture, and shows the relative practical importance of its various parts. It is popular in its form, while scientific in its accuracy, and will prove most interesting and profitable. Agriculture is an industry of such vast importance in our national life, and particularly in Nebraska, that an acquaintance with its essential principles is deemed indispensable to the progressive teacher. A knowledge of Prof. Bailey's book will amply fulfill the legal requirement for examination. "It is expected that each county super-

Bowley and Other Cadets Claim They Are the Victims of Injustice—Eastern Senators Also Plead Their Cause.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 27.—(Special Telegram.)—Henry L. Bowley of Nebraska, one of the five cadets recently dismissed from West Point Military Academy for alleged insubordination, came to Washington today with his classmates who were dismissed with him, and had an interview with Secretary Root, who was appointed to West Point by Congressman Stark, is a likely young fellow and looks every inch a soldier. He refused to say anything about the trouble at West Point, except to say that the sentence was "exceptional in its severity" and he hoped it would be re-manded. The dismissed cadets claim that they have been tried and condemned without a hearing and without knowing the testimony against them or having an opportunity to reply to it. Senators Hawley of Connecticut and Cockrell of Missouri are interested in the case and called upon Secretary Root today in behalf of the young men, who, besides Bowley, are John A. Cleveland of Alabama, T. K. Keller of New York, Raymond A. Linton of Michigan and B. O. Mahaffey of Texas. Senator Hawley, as chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, and who has had much to do with drafting legislation for West Point, believes the case should be reopened, but the law officers of the department who have looked into the matter say that there is no way in which the dismissed cadets can be restored to the academy save by reappointment through a representative of the district to which each is accredited, and which must have the approval of the academic board. In the case of young Bowley it is said here that Congressman Stark would reappoint him should the secretary decide to have such action taken as outlined above.

It shows that during the year ending June 30, 1900, 45,641 persons took the competitive examinations for original appointments to the classified service. Of these 21,472 were for the departments, 2,349 for the government printing office, 4,396 for the custom house service, 455 for positions under collectors of internal revenue and 18,569 in classified positions. There also were 248 persons examined non-competitively for excepted places. There were 489 different kinds of examinations, involving 1,188 opportunities for the assembling of competitors at places widely distributed throughout the states and territories. The report says that general examinations in Porto Rico have been somewhat delayed because of the uncertainty whether the people of Porto Rico, denominated by the act establishing civil government there are citizens of the United States within the meaning of the civil service rules. Expenses have been cut in all directions to enable the establishment of the examination system in both Hawaii and Porto Rico when the citizenship question is settled by the supreme court.
