ENCAMPMENT

Council Bluffe Goes to Sleep on the State Proposition.

SIOUX CITY STANDS READY TO WIN

Will Put Up in a Minute the Thousand Dollars the Council Bluffs Merchants Are Loth to Contribute.

Unless the business men of Council there is a possibility Council Bluffs may lose the brigade encampment. Adjutant General Byers is expected here in a few days to make the final arrangements for the encampment and at that time be will require that the $1,000 guaranteed by the city be in the bank. When last here he intimated that the contract could not be closed until the money was available.

The $1,000 fund which was necessary to lacks $400 of the required amount and in raising it. The efforts of Company L to secure the additional subscriptions necessary to make up the needed amount are meeting with indifferent success and the boys are somewhat disheartened.

Captain Tinley yesterday said: "There is no denying the fact, we are in danger of losing the necampment. The business men of the city do not seem to take any interest in it and it certainly begins to look as if they had gone to sleep on their proposition. Unless we can succeed in raising in a few days the balance of the fund required to ensure the encampment for this city, it will certainly go elsewhere. Sioux City is anxious to secure it and stands ready to put up the required $1,000 at a moment's notice. In the event of Colonel C. G. Saunders left last evening for St. Paul to attend the annual meeting council Bluffs failing to make good the ci the head camp of the Modern Woodmen guaranty by the time the adjutant general of America. He is candidate for re-election reaches here next week, I am afraid the guaranty by the time the adjutant general reaches here next week, I am afraid the encampment will go to Sioux City. The amount needed is not large, and if the bustness men would all chip in it could be soon raised.

"It would be a black eye for Council Bluffs for it to go out over the state that we could not raise $1,000 here for the encampment. The boys are working hard to collect the money, but the responses are not of the most liberal character. I believe however, that when the business men realize that we are in danger of losing the brigade encampment, they will bestir themselves, and I still have strong hopes that the additional amount required will be secured so as to be available when Adjutant General Byers reaches the city next

UNIVERSITY OF IOWA REPORT

President Mactean Tells of Progress Made During the Last tenr.

IOWA CITY, 14., June 7 .- (Special) The annual report of President George E. Mac Lean of the University of Iowa was preserted to the board of regents of the uni versity this afternoon and most of the aft ernoon's session was devoted to explana ions by President MacLean of what it con alued. It gives the progress of the uni versity for the past year and the recom mendations of the president for improve ment and growth.

There has been a healthy increase in all the colleges of the university the past year. The graduate college, with its new requirement of residence, has doubled in numbers and is now, according to President arts, 802, gives an increase not due to inholding of students in advanced lines of specialization. "But." says President Mac-Lean, "the mere statement of the gress attendance does not do the university tice. By the standards of collegiate requirements for admission the university is among the largest of the great state universities. It is almost of a unique type among the larger institutions, in that its numbers are not swelled by attached schools or groups of preparatory students below the collegiate grade.

The rigid enforcement of the requirements for admission has given the university the best class of students and there has been manifest throughout the year a better university spirit. The university will graduate this year 337 students in the college-100 in liberal arts, 135 in law, thirty-five in medicine, sixteen in homeopathic medicine, thirty-five in dentistry and sixteen in pharmacy.

The university has enjoyed the past year an income of $256,000, an increase of $50,000 over last year. Combined courses have been adopted between the colleges of law on the other, making a saving of expense to the students and lessening the temptation to short-cut courses. The lowa school of political science, the summer school and the library school have been formed. The liberal arts building is nearing completion and in the fall the university will enter into possession of property costing $250,000. The university has not suffered by the fire The convention of the coal dealers of that burned the medical and south halls, and the departments burned out are in a happy condition.

Maintains Clean Athletics. Of the report of the director of physical training and athletics President MacLean says: "The public naturally has dwelt on our athletic success in the way of winning games, but at home we especially rejoice in the greater success of maintaining clean athletics and in the dissemination through the entire work of the university of the high and fair spirit of true sportsmanship. The ethical element has been made central in athletics and developed by them. In physical training the opening of the work for young women through the appointment of a woman assistant has been successful.

"The demand has become imperative for the speedy erection of a gymnasium and armory, not only for the work of this department, but also for that of military science and tactics. The military depart ment has earned the support of the regents by next year. The principal topic discussed to be given it in the securing of a regular Of the students of the university Pres-

In Des Moines, and this and many other ing and success in literary, debating, oratorical and athletic contests and by the convocations of faculties and students, has of the association was for the members added greatly to the morale and morals of the students. Even the tiny police force The association authorized the executive of lowa City testify to the good behavior board to appoint a committee to wait upon of the students. The two public exceptions (the assault upon the opera house railroads and make an effort to adjust rates during the celebration of the Michigan foot ball victory and the kidnaping of the freshman class president) have been amply atoned for and student sentiment has practically been one with the faculty. The stalwart character of the youth of lowa asserts itself strongly and happily in the college democracy. In short, we have the most and the best students in scholarship and character. As an attraction to intending students as an assurance for the future of the university stands the fact that lowa has 5,529 alumni, ranking in this particular eleventh among all the educational institutions in the United States.'

Points Out Need of Museum. President MacLean pointed out the need of a museum for the Greek department and for an endowed scholarship and for membership of the university in the schools of American archaeological insti-

Of the college of law President Mac-Leans says that the extension of the course from two to three years "makes partieularly for the extension and enrichment of the instruction, which will maintain the college equal to the reputation your law committee found it had in its search for a chancellor-the best in the west and one of the best in the United States. The unexpectedly large enrollment of first-year students for the three-year course gives assurance that we are but meeting the demands of the best youth of Iowa." Dean-elect Gregory recommends the extension of library facilities by removing the partitions of the library and building a gallery around the outside walls. President MacLean concurs in this and says that the college of law should have the entire capitol building to accommodate the three-year classes. Another residence professor of law is recommended by the president.

Of the college of medicine President MacLean says: "This college also enjoys the largest enrollment in its history and rises with promise of new development out of the ashes of the fire. Prof. Bierring sends word from Europe that he is having success in collecting specimens, models and apparatus to replace those The dean and faculty desire that "lowa's university will not possess a most modern medical school building at a less expenditure than $200,000 whether your efforts in our behalf take the direction of a single large or several small buildings." Dean Middleton hopes 'that the laboratories to come from you may far transcend any simple hospital plant in their beneficence; that original research more than simple teaching may make their power for good, and that from the University of Iowa may go out many inventions for the healing of the nations Bishop Congreye and he is going over the for, as Dr. Keen says, 'The medical school proposal carefully and will make known which trained a Lister, a Pasteur or a Koch has done more for humanity than This salve cannot be equalled wherever latter returns from Ireland.
