CLUMSY HANDS TOSS BALL

Omaha's Second Win from Kansas City is Largely Through Luck.

MERIT CUTS LITTLE ENOUGH FIGURE

Continued Comedy of Errors on Part of the Visitors is Responsible for the Final Score of Eight to Four.

Such a comedy of errors as was enacted at the Vinton Street park Saturday afternoon by Uncle George Tebeau's company of base ball force comedy stars, who ball from down on the river Kaw, was enough to make one William Shakespeare turn over in his grave and weep to think that he ever tried to write anything about the error question. Despite the fact that Gibson was pitching an excellent game, Captain O'Brien took him out of the box in the middle of the eighth inning and put in Swigg. If he had thrown First Base man Brashers out of the lot early in the game and stood a dummy up in his place the result might have been different. Brash handled the ball like a hawk of hot lead when it came his way and was as wild as a Sioux Indian in throwing to bases. He wound up with a total of four errors to his credit.

But, regardless of the numerous figures in the error column, the game was a decidedly interesting one from the spectators' viewpoint, and especially so since Omaha won.
