

IT'S A GOOD DAY TO HUSTLE

Box Parties Tonight for Three Omaha Leaders in The Bee Contest.

YOUNG WOMEN MAY INVITE FRIENDS

Manager Sam Beer Wants to Show His Admiration and Esteem for the Plucky and Lucky Contestants.

This is the day they give boxes away at Boyd's theater. As previously announced in The Bee, Manager Sam Beer of the Ferris Stock company, which is now playing at Boyd's, has placed three boxes at the disposal of the three Omaha young women who stand highest this afternoon in The Bee's vacation contest.

This means that each one of the three highest candidates in the Omaha list will have the privilege of occupying a box, surrounded by five friends. This will make six persons in each of the three boxes—eighteen in all—and there will not be a cent to pay.

Sam Beer has paid it all.

The Bee this afternoon, both first and second editions, will contain the names of all the candidates and opposite each name will be figured representing the standing of the respective candidates.

From the figures shown in this afternoon's paper the winners of the three boxes at Boyd's will be determined. Remember, so there will be no mistake, the three highest candidates in the Omaha list will be the ones who are to be given admission to the theater.

Now, Vote Often.

The young women who already stand toward the top of the Omaha list will do well to hustle in all the votes they can command today—and get them in at the earliest possible moment, so they may be counted in time for publication in the afternoon paper.

It isn't every day that a theatrical manager offers to give away, absolutely free of charge, eighteen box seats, so it is apparent at a glance that this prize is worth going after.

A glance at the figures this afternoon will tell you who has won the theater seats, so no further notification will be necessary. The winners are expected to call at The Bee office, introduce themselves, and then they will be given a note to Manager Beer. This note, when presented at the box office at Boyd's theater, will be good for a box.

So there you are—three winners, three notes, three theater parties.

Almost any young woman has five friends whom she would be glad to have as her guests at the theater—and now you've got the opportunity, if you'll only hustle in those votes you've got up your sleeve.

Clerks Off Duty.

Yesterday was Sunday and the business office clerks were off duty again.

Said they had to go to Sunday school and Epworth league meeting. Like as not they went to the office at noon. Can't tell a thing about it. But then that is a matter for them to settle for themselves. If they start to church and branch off to a fishing resort, can't be helped.

Anyway, they did not count the votes, so there is no announcement of figures to make this morning.

But look out for this afternoon. There'll be a string of figures as long as your arm and they may reveal some surprises. It is not likely that the girls out in the state and tributary country were idle yesterday.

They probably voted some.

The play at Boyd's tonight is to be "Streets of New York," a very entertaining piece in the hands of capable actors. The young women who receive the theater tickets will be pleased with the evening's entertainment.

MISSION OF BISHOP M'CABE

He Visits South Omaha as a Gleaner and Raises Some Money for the University.

Bishop C. C. McCabe preached to a large congregation at the First Methodist Episcopal church, South Omaha, at the Sunday morning service. His theme was "Ruth Gleaning in the Harvest Field of Boaz."

The bishop said that this rich harvest, 3,000 years ago, settled on right principles the relation of capital and labor and illustrated it by the friendship and sympathy that existed between Boaz and his laborers. When his harvesters came to the field in the morning they greeted Boaz with "The Lord Bless Thee," which he returned by saying, "The Lord Be with Thee."

When employers and employees are actuated by such friendship, sympathy and confidence there is no talk of strikes and lockouts. Thank God there are some employers of labor in the land who are governed by this beautiful spirit of Boaz, and when shown it is met and appreciated with an equal spirit on the part of labor. If all would consent to be governed by the Golden Rule of Jesus Christ, all the perplexities of capital and labor would be speedily settled.

The bishop closed by saying that he was himself a gleaner, stating that he was helping Chancellor Huntington of the Nebraska Wesleyan university to lift the $50,000 debt upon that institution. He announced that all but $15,000 was subscribed and that $20,000 in special gifts to the university was conditioned on raising the $50,000. The congregation responded with a collection of $201 in a few minutes. The service closed with the bishop singing in his characteristic manner.

MRS. JULES LUMBARD DEAD

Wife of Well Known Citizen Passes Away Suddenly Sunday Morning.

Mary Elliott Lumbard, wife of Jules G. Lumbard, died suddenly at her home, 162 North Eighteenth street, yesterday morning. Mrs. Lumbard was in her usual good health Saturday night and awoke in the evening, when she began to complain of pain from indigestion. A physician was called, but he did not consider the patient dangerously ill. Mrs. Lumbard was troubled with pain at intervals during the night and at 8 o'clock in the morning she passed away with a smile on her face, as if in peaceful sleep.

Mrs. Lumbard was born May 3, 1852, at Tusculum, Ala., where she was married in 1870. Immediately after her marriage she moved to Chicago, where Mr. Lumbard practiced law.

Mr. and Mrs. Lumbard had lived in Chicago some years when Mr. Lumbard struck it rich in oil and then they went to New York to enjoy their fortune. After several years of ease and luxury Mr. Lumbard met with reverses and he and his wife returned to Chicago, where he resumed the practice of law.

In 1888 Mr. and Mrs. Lumbard came to Omaha and they have resided here ever since. Mrs. Lumbard enjoyed the companionship of hundreds of good friends in this city, all of whom loved her for her kind and generous spirit. She was a member of the Episcopal church and worshipped for years at Trinity cathedral. Many deeds of Christian kindness marked her life and her death will be mourned by all who knew her.

Mrs. Lumbard leaves no children, her only immediate relative, aside from the bereaved husband, being a brother, N. T. Elliott of Live Oak, Fla.

The funeral will occur at Trinity cathedral at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and Dean Fair will conduct the services. Interment will be at Prospect Hill.

Supremacy of Christ.

Bishop McCabe preached a powerful and deeply religious sermon at the First Methodist church Sunday evening on the theme, "The Supremacy of Christ." It was such a discourse as old-time preachers were wont to dispense with which to stir the hearts of their congregation, concluding in the form of an exhortation. Speaking of the supremacy of Jesus Christ, Bishop McCabe said in brief:

"He is the desire of all nations. He is able to make and keep the most stupendous promise that ever fell from human or divine lips: 'Come unto me ye that are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' That one promise of itself indicates that Christ claimed to be divine. Therefore his name be above all other names. The prophet Haggai called him 'The Desire of Nations,' and He is the desire of the whole world."

"This is only one of His many names. There are more than 300 different appellations and names for Jesus Christ in the holy scriptures. Jacob called Him Shiloh, David called Him Redeemer, David called Him Shepherd, Isaiah called Him Wonderful Counselor, the Mighty God, John the Baptist called Him Lord, John the Revelator called Him Alpha and Omega, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords."

"But the name that is graven deepest on the heart of humanity is that of Jesus Christ. Gabriel brought all the way from heaven to the Virgin Mary. He said to her: 'Thou shalt call His name Jesus, that He shall save people from their sins.'"

"We plead with you, then, to come to a decision and give up the idea of saving. Go to the uttermost, all who come unto God by Him. Test His power. Fall on your knees before Him. Ask Him to break your chains and give you the light and liberty of the sons of God. There is no need that in this audience there should be any broken hearts. Jesus Christ stands ready with cup brimful of happiness for all who will partake of it."

Growth of Christian Life.

"Normal Growth of Christian Life" was the theme of Rev. H. C. Herring at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. The speaker taking as his text the words of Paul to Timothy, in which he refers to himself as the chief of sinners, said that these words might be said by some to draw a compliment, but were evidently spoken by Paul in a spirit of truth. From several statements Paul seems to have believed that he grew worse as his life advanced, and in a sense this was true, at least to his perceptions. The Christian life, according to the speaker, grows along three parallel lines. The first line is an increasing assurance of acceptability by God; not the logical assurance which can be drawn from biblical texts, but the experimental assurance which brings us to know that while we are in the world we are not of it and which makes us realize the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. The second line of growth is in character. The spirit of God uses the truth which bears upon the soul to transform the character and to put the soul upon the highway of growth in this particular. Growth along this line makes a man larger, wiser, truer; takes out of his heart selfishness; brings him out of his old bondage and brings him into broader liberty. The third line of growth is a growing sense of unworthiness and this is the one so prominent in the life of Paul. As Paul came to know more of the responsibilities and the opportunities of the Christian and the distance between himself and the standard in virtue he seemed to be retreating; in other words, his knowledge of what he should do increased more rapidly than his ability to do it. These three lines of growth are those of the normal Christian. They will not be found in an equal degree in every Christian, but will be found in a different degree in all, and where they develop simultaneously the normal Christian is produced.

After the regular services communion for the reception of new members in the church was held.

Appeal for Schools.

Chancellor Huntington of the Nebraska Wesleyan university made an appeal for the denationalization school from the pulpit of the Trinity Methodist church yesterday morning. He expressed the opinion that the ten years of a child's life spent in the public schools was a most perilous period, through which it was very difficult to take the young people without giving them an exalted idea of their own fitness for Christian citizenship. The chancellor said that too many boys and girls come out of the public schools with an impression that the advice of their parents is not worth taking. The school teacher supplants the parent in influence and the result, in many cases, is the sending of young people out in the world half equipped for their stern battles.

The public school system, said the speaker, is a great and grand institution,

CHURCH WORKERS' JUBILEE

Evangelist Smith at Revival Tent Says Submission to God is Not Enough.

The first in the series of revival meetings under direction of Rev. Merion Smith, evangelist, was held Sunday evening in a big tent at Twenty-fourth and Locust streets. There were perhaps 1,000 persons present, every seat under the canvas being occupied and many being compelled to stand outside. There was a choir of sixty voices, led by an orchestra of several pieces.

The meeting opened with the singing of hymns and the reading of passages of scripture. Several pastors of neighboring churches, who occupied seats upon the platform, took part in the service by reading from the bible and leading in prayer. Mr. Smith announced as his subject for the evening, "Get Right with God." That, he said, was the first principle every Christian should remember when starting out in the great work of saving souls. Most of his sermon was made up of anecdotes culled from his extensive experience as an evangelist.

"The first thing for God's children to do is to get right with their Heavenly Father," said he. "For until they are right with God, no such outpouring of blessings as we expect for our country here in Omaha."

"Another thing that we must look to is that our wills are surrendered unto God. We must be honest, fully and completely, and all that is yours. He will not do His will to the uttermost. Subordinate yourself and act freely for the salvation of souls in accordance with the divine plan, for otherwise there can be no revival. Suppose the members of my body should rebel against the dictation of my brain. Suppose I should say to my hand, 'Hand, pick up this piece of bread, and to my stomach, 'Stomach, digest it.' And my hand should say, 'I won't,' and my stomach and stomach should both rebel, what kind of a business would it be in? That is why we must yield our wills to God and do His bidding."

"Get right with God and before those meetings are over we shall see remarkable manifestations of spiritual healing—I say spiritual healing, not physical healing—but that is not because I doubt God's power to heal in the physical sense. I believe that God can heal the sick and the halt and the blind as well now as He did in the days of old. It is the important point. I don't care whether this body finds its way into the ground whole or wounded so long as my soul is whole before God. That's the main thing."

After a while we're going to ask the people to give their testimonials. I like to hear good, hearty, whole-hearted testimonials. I never like to hear people mumble over their testimonials. It always sounds to me as if the rats had got at them, and then, too, I've known people to make mistakes on the side of too much noise. I don't want you to be holding revival meetings in a little town down in Kansas, and there was one brother who used to give in his testimonials in a most powerful voice. You could hear him over the next ward, but I noticed that every time he got up to speak a sort of chill

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF HAPPY EVENT

The congregation of the Seward Street Methodist church yesterday devoted both services to an observance of a jubilee because it was the first anniversary of the lifting of the debt from their house of worship. The church was organized in 1884 and during all of its career up to a year ago there was an oppressive indebtedness hanging over its head, the payment of which was deemed to have been an event worthy of commemoration in church annals.

At the Sunday morning service, therefore, the usual sermon was omitted. Presiding Elder Jennings assisted in the jubilee services and the scriptures reading was Rev. C. N. Dawson, the pastor, read the roll of some fifty charter members of the church and George J. Hodder, one of them, gave some reminiscences connected with the organization and its history.

Presiding Elder Jennings read a list of the ten pastors who have administered to the spiritual wants of the congregation, beginning with Rev. Robert L. Marsh and closing with Pastor Dawson. There was a response by the latter, who read letters from three of the ten, Rev. H. A. Crane, now of Lima, N. Y.; Rev. D. K. Tindall, now of this city; and Rev. A. C. Welch, who is at Stockton, Cal.

Pastor Dawson also read the roll of deceased members of the church, as nearly as he could compile it from the records, showing the names of twenty-eight. He also read a showing of the membership of the church for each year since its organization, running from about fifty to the present membership of about 350. Historical lists were also read of the Sunday school superintendents, Epworth league presidents and Ladies' Aid society presidents. In addition to the hymns sung by the congregation there was a bass solo by Mr. Stevens, a soprano solo by Miss Myrtle Schneider and an anthem by the choir.

At the close of the service a collection was taken up to meet the excess of expense for the jubilee conference year, and in response to the appeal $120 was subscribed, which leaves about $190 yet to be raised for that purpose.

At the evening service there was an address by M. D. Karr on "Value of the Church in the Community. Mrs. H. S. Rhoades spoke of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Church," and T. F. Sturges discussed the "Relation of the Official Board and the Church."

Brief Points from Sunday Sermons.

Of a Noble Life. based on Robert Louis Stevenson's Christmas sermon: "To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole a daily happier for his presence, to renounce that which should be necessary and not to be embarrassed, to keep his feet on the same grim condition to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy." The text was from Romans, 12, verses 9, 10 and 11.

He said in part: "The words that the apostles of our Lord spoke and the lives that they lived seem and are entirely natural. If there was that about them which removed them from their fellows, if they lived nobler lives than the other men who followed them, it was because they had touched the Christ shoulder to shoulder, heard His voice and breathed the very atmosphere that surrounded Him. If there is any credit to be given for Christian loyalty, it belongs to the good and great, who never let themselves be carried away by love. To the children of sweetness and light, who by life and precept taught the art of right living, we must give a place beside St. Paul and St. Peter and St. John. Not least among these disciples of the Lord Christ's fellowship stood Robert Louis Stevenson."

"At 20 he was admonished by the heart's blood gushing from his mouth that death was daily present. For a score of years he battled against poverty, pain, loneliness and the homesickness of solitude. Rising above all this misery was a profound sweetness and essays of wisdom and fascinating romances that give him no second place in literature. Yet more beautiful, more fascinating, more helpful than anything that he wrote was the majestic reasonableness of his life. Because he taught us that Paul's maxims could be lived, his own six laws of life are worthy of our patient exaltation. 'To be honest—falseness and evasion are the confession of weakness. Truth stands for strength. Deceit and hypocrisy mark the puerile. He who falls because of his honesty is greater in defeat than the one who succumbs by falsehood and deceit. Nor are we to think that brutal frankness is a virtue. 'To be kind,' holds truth in restraint where its only effect would be to wound. As men ascend in soul culture they become sensitive to misery and affliction. Because He was a perfect man, sympathy and affection were natural to the Lord Christ."

"To earn a little and to spend a little less" marks for the fulfillment of the law of self-support and release from the slavery of debt. It is the call that comes to us in an age of extravagance and waste, for a return to the life of simplicity. Fame and fortune took the place of the happy home. To renounce whenever necessary and that without bitterness is to touch the secret of the Christ. Here is the final price of courage and character, to reap where others will sow, to sacrifice because others must needs be held dear as self. To keep friends with one's self is hard and severe as a duty. Blessed is he who never descends in friendship. Fortunate is that man who has kept friends with himself, who has struck a treaty with noble ideals and never proved a traitor."

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Peter Leffing, who was prostrated by heat on the Fourth, is not expected to recover. He is at the Clarkson hospital.

William Murphy, a hardware merchant of the Metropolitan hotel, Twelfth and Douglas streets, early yesterday morning and fractured his left arm just above the elbow. He was taken to the Clarkson hospital.

Sheriff F. H. King of Sidney had two prisoners locked up at the city jail last night for soliciting while enroute to Lincoln. One was John Twenny, who got eighteen months for grand larceny, and the other Louis Cochran, who was sent up for one year for obtaining money under false pretenses.

"Count" Fritz Schiller, the eccentric old fellow who severely attacked a number of matrons in the Hancock park district some weeks ago by demanding hot meals at all hours of the night, was arrested on a similar charge by Detectives Heelan and Johnson yesterday night. The count has been working the same graft recently in another part of the city.

Lyle Hildner, a 40-year-old litterer was arrested at the Arlington hotel last night for disturbing the peace. Because Tillie thinks the hotel is his home, he is said to exercise the privilege of chartering her frequently. A complaint of neighbors followed his latest performance. When arrested by Emergency Officer Baldwin Hildner denied that he had struck the woman. She corroborated his statement, but her face was a mass of bruises. The woman refused to prosecute, on the charge of assault and then both were locked up for disturbing the peace.

Woman's Tucked Blouse. Closing in back. No. 3871.—The blouse that closes at the back and as nearly invisibly as possible has taken a firm hold on the world of fashion and appears to gain adherents week by week. The chic model illustrated is admirable in many ways and includes the popular eye effect as well as the tucked bishop sleeves. The original is made of silk and lace and is worn over a white silk corset cover, but all the season's cotton, linen and thin silk fabrics are suitable.

The blouse is cut with front and backs only, the fitting being accomplished by means of shoulder and under-arm seams, and is tucked in groups to yoke depth. Below the tucks the material falls in soft, flowing folds and two appliques of lace are used, one as a finish to the yoke, one below where it enriches the plain material. The sleeves are tucked over the main portion, but are allowed to fall free and form puffs at the wrists. Both stock and cuffs are of lace lined only, with the batiste. The closing is effected invisibly in center back.

To cut this waist for a woman of medium size, 34 yards of material 21 inches wide, 35 yards 27 inches wide, 3 1/2 yards 22 inches wide, or 2 1/2 yards 41 inches wide, will be required, with 2 1/2 yards of applique and seven-eighths of a yard of lace for collar and cuffs to trim, as illustrated.

Politics and Church.

"The complete separation of politics and church in the United States puts a greater responsibility upon the citizen. It is of his responsibility to bear in a nation where the government and the church are one," said Rev. M. DeWitt Long yesterday morning at Knox Presbyterian church. "In the life of an individual or nation anarchy, justice and mercy come in the chronological order. Justice must be practiced before mercy can be acquired. The enforcement of justice in the United States would abolish anarchy and bring about a great improvement in our government."

"Disregard of law is the greatest danger that confronts our republic. Anarchy could not live five years in our democratic government if it were not fed from the offices of public trust. The gravest sin in America is the acknowledgment of Satan as lord of the earth."
