The race for the next box party-or b parties, more properly speaking-begin today and the three young women in th Omaha list who on Sunday morning stan highest in the contest are invited to eac take a box at the play Monday night. S persons may comfortably sit in a box, each of the three winners has the privile of bringing with her five friends. The play Monday night will be "T Plunger"-a very entertaining piece, rendition of which will be materially in proved by the appearance of Mr. Dick Fe ris, the leading man, who has for son time been absent from the city.

"The Plunger" is one of the very be of entertainments that will be produc here this season and it is well wor seeing. Sam Bear is in a good humor these da and he's likely to do some voting in th contest almost any day. The girl who gets Mr. Bear aligned her side is most likely to win, for he e pects to live a long while and it wouldn be surprising at all if he should pay ! subscription to The Bee two or three doz years in advance. The business office of The Bee will open until 9 o'clock Saturday night for the reception of votes and the results will announced in the Sunday morning issue the paper. The three Omaha girls who names stand first in the Omaha column m know without further notification that th are the winners of the theater boxes a any time they call at The Bee office Monda they will be supplied with credentials which

Mr. Bear will honor on presentation at the box office in Boyd's theater. Now, you girls who falled to get into box parties last week have an excellent of portunity to get even. And, besides, even further toward the final goal-that vacati we have been talking about.
