To Reduce the Fire Limit. An effort will be made to reduce the size of the fire limits. The mayor and a majority of the councilmen are willing to approve of a change in the fire limits and the matter will be brought before the council at their meeting as a general committee Monday afternoon.

Conditions Favorable for Big Yield. Corn in Nebraska is not gone, nor yet seriously damaged. Every chance yet exists for a fine crop in the major portion of the state and a partial one in the remaining section.

Handy Man with Pistol. According to testimony brought out in police court yesterday morning Joseph Dalton, house painter, 3823 Camden avenue, uses his pistol as a household utensil of general utility.

Wall Paper and Paints. Room molding at 1/2c per foot up. Varnishes, stains, enamels and brushes at greatly reduced prices.

Hot Weather Continues. The Epworth Leaguers are having a fine time at San Francisco, the maximum temperature at that place Friday being 76 degrees, a figure not approached by ten degrees by any other place in the country.

Corn Stands the Heat Well. Farmers in the sections that are especially distressed by this bug are asking aid of the experiment stations in the way of inoculation, which has proven so successful before. In response to this call the Union Pacific road already has a man out locating in the portions of the state the most affected. An idea of what the chinchbug is doing just now can be gained from the following message received yesterday from a railroad agent in an interior county: "Spring grain in this section is nearly a total failure on account of dry weather and chinchbugs. Up to this time the bugs have worked together on the wheat, but now are leaving the wheat and going into the corn in such numbers that farmers insist their corn will be ruined unless something is done to get away with them once. A committee of farmers has written the state experiment station at Lincoln asking that a man be sent up to inoculate the bugs here with poison, as has been successfully done in other localities."

Start Toward Cathedral. The annual retreat of the Roman Catholic clergy of the diocese of Omaha closed Friday and yesterday morning the priests returned to their several churches. Aside from the spiritual affairs common to all retreats, the principal matter discussed was the new cathedral for the diocese. There was nothing said in regard to the location of the new edifice or the time of starting the construction by the bishop in the retreat. This morning I received a telephone message from a Protestant gentleman who said that we could put him down for a subscription of $500, and this is but a sample of the reports we are receiving. Probable Location. "Of course the cathedral has not yet been formally located, but there is little doubt that when it is built it will be upon ground belonging to the church at Portieth and Burd streets. This talk of locating the cathedral in the central part of the city is all nonsense. In the first place, it contemplates the amalgamation of four of the oldest parishes in the city, and this is practically impossible. The people of these parishes would not consent to the consolidation and the church could not care for its members as well as it can when the parishes are smaller and the churches located closer to the homes of the people. The plan suggested would wipe out the German church and this would be very unsatisfactory to a large number of the people of the city. The matter of the location is still open and will probably not be finally settled until after sufficient money is raised to warrant the construction of the building." Change of Station. At the close of the retreat Bishop Scannell announced the following changes in the stations of priests: Rev. John Rizzo, assistant pastor at West Point. Father Rizzo comes to the diocese from Europe and has been recently ordained; Rev. J. J. O'Sullivan, to the Holy Family as assistant pastor from St. Peter's; Rev. P. L. Kennedy, assistant pastor at St. Peter's.
