The body was brought to this city and Coroner Treynor was notified. He immediately summoned a jury and after the jurors had had a look at the remains the inquest was postponed until today, and the remains were interred last evening in the county lot at Walnut Hill cemetery, the early burial being necessary on account of the terrible condition of the body.

There was nothing on the clothing of the deceased to indicate his identity, except written the name Rolla Kenison. Inquiries were made of a family by this name living at 307 North Seventh street, but the only information elicited was that they knew of families by the same name at Marion and different points n Nebraska.

The young man is described as not more than 20 or 21 years of age. His hair was black and he was dressed in laborer's attire, wearing overalls, a black and white shirt and a blue-checked coat.

It is the intention of the coroner to proceed with the inquest some time today. Davis sells paint.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Ia., July 27 .- (Special.) -Fire started early this morning in the basethe living apartments of his uncle at the ment of a store under the Iliad tenement rear of the latter's second-hand store at block. An employe of the gas company had 711 West Broadway at 4 o'clock yesterday gone to the basement to read the gas meter when an explosion occurred, and as the room above was used by a wall paper and paint house the flames spread quickly. Prompt action of the fire department prevented a big fire. There are over 300 persons living in the block and there was a panic among them, as the fire filled the entire block with smoke.

Illinois Becomes a Factor in the Competition for Canada

CHICAGO, July 27.—Illinois, the Chicago Finkel yacht, won the fifth trial race today for the selection of the Canada's cup defender. Detroit was second and Milwaukee and Cadillac were far in the background. Today's trial had been expected to finish the series and be the final victory for either Milwaukee or Cadillac, each of which had won twice. Illinois and Detroit had been counted out of it. Milwaukee and Cadillac were leaders when eighteen miles of the twenty-one had been sailed and there they were pocketed by a calm which arrested the progress of the entire fleet. Finally a fitful breeze sprang up and Illinois, catching it first, came in full two minutes ahead of Detroit, which was nearly three minutes ahead of Milwaukee, which led Cadillac by about three minutes. The yachts were almost four hours in covering the course. CHICAGO, July 27.-Illinois, the Chicago

The native distribution of the tree was from Newfoundland on the east to Lake Winnipeg on the west, and thence to the southern boundary of Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut. The white pine belt also followed the Appalachian range so far to the south as Georgia. The best growth of the tree was in Maine and the British territory RESISTS RESTAURANT ROAST east of that state, along the St. Lawrence river, in New Hampshire, Vermont, northern New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and central Pennsylvania. The forests of white pine have been annihilated in New England, though some cutting continues in Maine. Some white pine still grows in almost inaccessible parts of New Suggests "a Little Music" and Rings for Melba and a Few Other Celebrities.

(Copyright, 1901, by Press Publishing Co.) LONDON, July 27.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—Mrs. Bradley Martin's mammoth dinner party, at which covers were set for eighty, was the chief social event of the week. Nothing so colossal except an official entertainment was ever attempted here before. It was done faultlessly, the service being wonderfully organized.

After dinner Mrs. Bradley Martin said: 'I think we'll have a little music." This casual announcement was followed by the appearance of Melba, Plancon and Kuote. It leaked out afterward that Mrs. Bradley Martin had paid Melba so large a fee that the latter threw over the opera, causing intense annoyance at Covent Gar-

Miss Parker Deacon, whose mother since her husband's death has reverted to her maiden name and calls herself Mrs. Baldwin, has had an instantaneous and most flattering success for her beauty in London society. Although on account of being in mourning she has not been about generally Miss Deacon has been warmly taken up by all the great ladies and overwhelmed with invitations to smart parties, to which she has gone chiefly under the chaperonage of Mrs. Arthur Paget. Everywhere her beauty creates a furore. She is tall and of the most perfect classical Greek type imaginable. Her mother, also greatly admired, is considered almost as charming as the daughter. There is much sympathy for Mrs. Baldwin and the smart ladies have made no secret of their belief that she has been much wronged, owing to the demented jealousy of her busband.

Miss Deacon is staying this week with the duchess of Marlborough at Blenheim palace, having just returned from a visit to Lady de Grey at Coombe. The Anglesy family also is kind to her and her mother. A great social future seems before her in

Mrs. Langtry has taken a cottage for the holidays at St. Aubinais bay, Isle of Jersey, her native place. There she spends the night at deep-sea fishing in a small boat. She dresses like a Jersey fishwife and handies the balt lines with her own fair hands,

Owing to an error of the cable it was announced recently that Miss Langtry was going to pass the autumn under the chaperonage of the marchioness of Granby in the same villa at Dinard as her fiance. Ivor Guest, whereas she is going to stay not in the same villa, but at Dinard, with a chaperon.

The cleverness with which Mrs. Cornwallis West, the countes of Essex, the duchess of Marlborough, Mrs. Bradley Martin, Mrs. Leslie, Mrs. Paget and other smart ladies have captured all the glory for the services of the hospital ship Maine in the absence of Mr. Baker, president of the Atlantic Transport line, to whose munificence England owes the possession of the ship, has excited considerable amusement in society. Mr. Baker's presenting of the ship to the British government was acknowledged by the admiralty in such ungracious terms that questions were put to the ministers in the House of Commons asking whether there would be no suitable recognition of his generosity which, however, is not yet forthcoming. Meantime the chief members of the ladies' committee have been received by the king, who has accepted from them a gold medal weighing five ounces commemorating the work done

Wealthy Down-Easter Teaches French Restaurants They Must Not Overcharge.

(Copyright, 1901, by Press Publishing Co.) PARIS, July 27 .- (New York World Cablegram-Special Telegram.)-Miss Elizabeth Van Dusen, a wealthy spinster, came to Paris from Portland, Me., three weeks ago, bound for Luchon. She intended to remain in Paris only twenty-four hours, but found herself overcharged in a swell restaurant she had mistakenly entered. She decided to remain as long as necessary to make the culprits disgorge. Her case was called this morning. The newspapers having had much to say about it, the court crowded.

The bill for two women, Miss Van Dusen and her companion, amounted to $18. The judge reduced the amount one-third, as being manifestly outrageous. One item was $2.80 for a melon. The restaurant proprietor explained that it was customary to charge for a whole melon, however little was eaten. Three French volunteer witnesses testified that for a melon the only charge to them was $1.

Thereupon the judge delivered a severe lecture on the hideous practice of "robbing foreigners." He required the proprietor partly to reimburse the complainant and to pay the cost of the trial. Miss Van Dusen says that now she will aut for $5,000 damages on account of having been detained

An interesting precedent has been estab lished in the following opinion contained in the judgment pronounced by the court: "However luxurious an establishment may

Shut Out of Court.

During the extreme hot weather at Pitts. burg an incident ruffled the dignity of the court. The judges in all the county courts that were in session sat through their work without taking any more cognizance of the heat than to keep a fan going. In criminal court a juror who was a little more venturesome than the attorneys and others appeared in the courtroom with a shirtwaist and carrying his coat on his arm. He was eyed by everybody until after roll call, when a tipstaff discovered him and directed that he put his coat on. The juror protested that it was 'oo warm, but the tipstaff said he could not help that, as the court insisted on everybody keeping on his coat.
