

Fremont Normal School, Commercial Institute and College of Pharmacy

FREMONT is a beautiful forest city of 10,000 inhabitants, located northwest of Omaha on the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley and Union Pacific railways. Twenty-four passenger trains arrive and depart daily. The school was founded in 1885 and when President Clemmons took charge of the school five years later there were only thirty-two students in all. This year the enrollment has reached over 1,500 students and the summer school carried nearly 500. The college building is a sturdy structure, surrounded by a most beautiful campus, it is a perfect forest. In the main school building there are fifty-six rooms, well lighted and well ventilated. The appointments in every way are first-class. The library has 1,000 volumes. The books are well chosen and adapted to thorough investigation of all subjects. For the study of botany and physics special rooms are fitted up, giving students every possible advantage for the investigation of these important subjects.

W. H. CLEMMONS, PRESIDENT

MAIN BUILDING FREMONT NORMAL SCHOOL

Pharmacy Course.

The finest pharmacy course in the west. The dispensing and drug rooms and the laboratories are supplied with all modern improvements. Nothing has been spared to make this department rank with the best pharmacy schools in the United States and one of the best in the world. The whole affair is that students can enter this department at any time and also that the regular tuition, $10 per term, admits not only to this department, but every other department of the school. The pharmacy school is regularly registered and confers the proper degree upon its graduates. The reputation of the school throughout the state and west gives students in this department great advantages. We also sustain in connection with this course a regular preparatory medical course and students completing this course are given one year's credit in our best medical schools in this country.

Commercial Course.

It is of great interest to visit this department of the school and to see the great number of students who are doubly interested in the business transactions in the Exchange room. It looks for all the world like a miniature business world. There are from 400 to 500 students in this department of the school alone. The offices are well equipped with everything up to date, and, like all other departments of the school, students entering the business college are required to pay only the one tuition fee of $10.00, and this entitles the student to all the advantages of the Normal and Literary departments. The total cost to secure a first-class business education, including board, room and tuition, does not exceed $50.00.

Shorthand and Typewriting College.

The latest and best systems of shorthand are taught, including Gregg, Dement Pitman, Graham and Pitman systems. The "Touch system" of typewriting is also taught. The student can make his own selection of systems. Special emphasis is given to speed in both shorthand and typewriting. The school gives a six months' scholarship for $30.00, and if the management has not secured a position for the student at the close of the six months he is privileged to stay one month longer in the Shorthand department free of charge. This is an excellent opportunity for young men and young women to secure an education that will advance them into a good and lucrative position.

School of Music.

The Conservatory of Music in connection with the Normal school is one of the finest in the west. Everything is done to advance the interest of the student in this department. The public performance exercises and lectures given by the professors are of great value to students in broadening their knowledge and intensifying their interest in the study of this art. Students coming here have every advantage of eastern colleges. The instructors are men and women of ripe scholarship and thoroughly interested in their work. The expense is much less than other conservatories of music. This is owing to the great number of students who come here for this important study.

State Certificates.

State Superintendent W. K. Fowler officially recognized the school July 15, 1901. This is a coveted advantage. The school is entitled to issue certificates good for two years, three years and for life, according to the grade of work completed, and, the school year being fifty weeks in length, students are enabled to complete a course in much less time than when the school year is thirty-six weeks in length. Grades are accepted from high schools and other institutions of learning doing equally as good work. The Normal school, being on its own merits, realizes the fact that every student who leaves its threshold must be thorough in his knowledge and up to date in his impartation. The best evidence of the good work done in this institution is the fact that students who complete a

Courses of Study.

The school sustains eighteen different courses of study, including preparatory, teachers, scientific, classic, normal literary, didactic, civil engineering, elocution and oratory, high school, primary and grade, commercial, shorthand and typewriting, piano, voice, art, penmanship and pharmacy courses.

Why the School Continues Its Growth.

The management of the school realizes the fact that in order to build the school with electric light, heat, city water for one year, fifty weeks, $10.00

Accommodations.

For the accommodation of students two large and commodious dormitories, situated south of and facing the college building, have been erected, equipped with all modern improvements and under the management of refined and efficient matrons, whose duty it is to look after the students' welfare and to guard carefully the health and discipline, and to assist in the cultivation of gentility and the highest moral habits. All rooms are supplied with electric light, many with city water, and many are heated with hot water. The price of

Knew His Destination

Louisville Courier Journal: Good-humoredly hilarious, he boarded a Market street car and hung limply to a strap, looking at everybody and smiling foolishly. When the car had gone about ten blocks he suddenly cried:
"Conductor, oh, I shay, conductor, where am I at?"
"We are at Fourteenth street," said the rope-jerker. "Where do you want to get off?"
"At the next saloon," said the genial gentleman, and even the women laughed.

two things are necessary. First, an excellent faculty must be sustained, and, second, the expense must be reduced to a minimum. The faculty is composed of men and women of excellent teaching power, kind and yet firm in their resolution work. They have been chosen, not only for their scholarship, but for their power of imparting that knowledge to others. The best methods are used and the subject matter is placed before the student in such a way as to gain the best possible results. It matters not what your stage of advancement is, the organization is such that you can always get just such class work as you desire. Special emphasis is placed upon a thorough knowledge of the common branches. There are thousands of young men and women who desire an education, but feel somewhat embarrassed to enter a school of high rank. Here this embarrassment is set aside by the fact that it matters not what your learning may be. The school only requires that when you enter you are determined to get an education. Classes are organized in the beginning of all common and higher branches. The rich and the poor meet on the same level and everything is done possible to make the work pleasant and profitable. The social conditions of the school are the very best. The moral and intellectual welfare of each student is carefully guarded. Book learning is not a paramount issue with the school, but the pupils are made to feel that their social environment is a great factor in their life's education.
