HOLD COLOMBIA RESPONSIBLE

Evidence that Invaders of Venezuela Were Regular Troops of That Country.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Colonel L. Gonzales, consul general of Venezuela in this city, says he has received information from his government which enables him to make the following statement:

"Columbian officials have been busy discrediting the report that the recent invasion of Venezuelan territory was made by a Colombian army. In reply to these denials the significant fact can be pointed out that General Herran, Colombia's charge d'affaires at Washington, has not yet contradicted the report of his government's participation in the invasion nor the presence of General Gonzalez Valencia, former minister of war of Colombia.

"But there are more convincing proofs than this mere circumstantial evidence. The government has been practically assured by our consul at San Cristobal that among the troops who invaded Venezuela were the Colombian regiments known as Sure, Bombona, Girardot, Venodores, Tenerife and seventeen more commanded by Colombian army officers. Some of the latter were Generals Gasparini, Pedro Leon Causi and Riascos.

"My advice says that the killed, wounded and captured of the other side were the uniforms of the Colombian army. Two prisoners were the insignia of the Grenadiers of Cucuta. The Venezuelan authorities on the frontier have ordered an investigation which is expected to yield further evidence of Colombia's complicity in the two unsuccessful raids on our frontier."

Senor Tomas Herran, charge d'affaires of the Colombian legation at Washington, is in this city awaiting the arrival of his family from Colombia. He said yesterday: "There is no doubt that Venezuela has given help to the rebels in Colombia."

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

The uniform success of this remedy has made it the most popular preparation in use for bowel complaints. It is everywhere recognized as the one remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant to take. It is especially valuable for summer diarrhoea in children and is undoubtedly the means of saving the lives of a great many children each year. For sale by all druggists.

RECIPROCITY THEIR REMEDY

Manufacturers' Association Will Urge Next Congress to Act.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—President

Search of the National Association of Manufacturers has called a meeting of the executive committee of that organization for October 4 for the purpose of taking up the question of reciprocity. The question will be considered in all its phases, after which a call will be issued for a national reciprocity convention.

"No," said a young woman, coming forward, "but I am her daughter. What can I do for you, Mr. Smith?"

"I am very cold," was Mr. Smith's reply. "Can you warm some whisky?"

"The girls had their swim and started to go home. Someone told them that they would be stopped. 'What shall we do?' they asked. They were advised to wait until the officer's back was turned and then make a rush for it."

"'You did so. The officer walked down toward the lake, and there were two streaks of navy blue headed for a tent in Ocean Grove."

"'But alas, the deep duplicity of holy sleuthdom had been too much for them. 'A big guard stood behind a tree right in front of the girls, waved his club at them and yelled, 'Stop, there, or I'll grab you by the back hair!'"

"'That scared them to a standstill. 'Won't you let us go home?' asked the youngest. 'It's only to that tent yonder.'"

"'Then the policeman with a lantern-jawed fellow with a hymn book in each pocket and his boots stuffed with tracts. 'You have profaned a holy day and broken a rule of the camp grounds. If you go a step further I'll arrest you,' he said."

"'The girls turned to the crowd. 'What shall we do?' asked one of them in deep distress. 'If you only say so, ma'am,' said a husky young man, as he began to take off his coat, 'I'll chuck this palm singer one, while you make a break for it.' The girls begged so hard that he put on his coat and stood back."

"'After a long argument there was a compromise. A lady in the crowd was permitted to go to the tent and get the girls' everyday clothes. When these were brought the three went back to the Asbury beach and the girls put on their other garments over the wet bathing suits."

"'Then the policeman stood aside in an attitude of holy devotion and the girls went slowly and solemnly up to their tent. In this manner is life regulated and made a serious problem at Ocean Grove."

Once upon a time F. Hopkinson Smith, the art critic and lecturer, happened to reach a city in the northwest on a bitterly cold day to fill an engagement before a woman's club, relates the Chicago desired relief to the industries at stake.

"The sentiment of manufacturers, says President Search, is in favor of securing treaties of commercial reciprocity with other countries with a view to the extension of America's trade in foreign lands. Within the last few months, he says, Russia, Italy and some other countries have dealt a heavy blow to our foreign trade by levying a countervailing duty. It will be endeavored to show to congress that American industries have suffered by the present tariff laws and their interpretations and congress will be asked to give the required remedy."

Bits of Stirring Life

A terrible strain is sometimes felt by the blue-coated guardians of the Sabbath peace at Ocean Grove, N. J., relates a New York letter. One of them is now suffering from nervous prostration, because he caught a boy selling peanuts under the very shadow of the tabernacle a Sunday or two ago.

A rigid law at Ocean Grove is that no one shall pass along its streets or bypaths clad in a bath suit. Two young women, who are living in a tent near the beach, did not know of this iron rule, or were willing to risk it. On Sunday last they encased themselves in a couple of modest bathing suits, made a rush when the policeman was not looking and got across the line into the comparative lawless and ungodly freedom of Asbury Park. The sequel is told me by a bystander:

"The girls had their swim and started to go home. Someone told them that they would be stopped. 'What shall we do?' they asked. They were advised to wait until the officer's back was turned and then make a rush for it."

"'You did so. The officer walked down toward the lake, and there were two streaks of navy blue headed for a tent in Ocean Grove."

"'But alas, the deep duplicity of holy sleuthdom had been too much for them. 'A big guard stood behind a tree right in front of the girls, waved his club at them and yelled, 'Stop, there, or I'll grab you by the back hair!'"

"'That scared them to a standstill. 'Won't you let us go home?' asked the youngest. 'It's only to that tent yonder.'"

"'Then the policeman with a lantern-jawed fellow with a hymn book in each pocket and his boots stuffed with tracts. 'You have profaned a holy day and broken a rule of the camp grounds. If you go a step further I'll arrest you,' he said."

"'The girls turned to the crowd. 'What shall we do?' asked one of them in deep distress. of the apartment, who could with difficulty conceal her evident annoyance.

"Dear me! you're just as slender and ethereal as any of your pictures," she remarked speculatively. "You need fresh air and exercise, and see the color of my hands and face beside your own."

The Steel Engraving Woman glanced at her vis-a-vis and shrugged her shoulders. When the sun set the Steel Engraving Woman might have been seen again seated beside the open casement. Her taper fingers lightly touched the strings of her guitar as she hummed a low lullaby. Once more she heard a step upon the stair and once again the color mantled her damask cheek and she murmured, "Reginald!" A tall and ardent figure came swiftly toward her. He dropped upon one knee, as if to pay due homage to his fair one, and, raising her white hand to his lips, whispered, "My queen, my lady love!"

At this moment the Gibson Girl was seated upon a fence, swinging her heavy boots, while an athletic youth beside her busied himself with filling a cornucop pipe.

"I say, Joe," he said with friendly accent, "just you hop down and stand in front of me to keep the wind off while I light this pipe."

And the night breeze sprang up and murmured, "Hail the new woman—behold she comes apace! Woman, once man's superior, now his equal!"

The thunderstorm had spent its rage at last. Small pools of water lay upon the sidewalk and causeway.

The black clouds were rapidly disappearing from the sky. The silver moon and shimmering stars were endeavoring to reassert themselves. The feverish city panted its grateful thanks, like an animal re-

Zenobia came to the window and threw wide the casement. A sound of wet fell upon her ears. Along the avenue there slowly came a human form.

Anon it raised its hands and appealed to the lofty heavens. Anon it gesticulated despairingly to the moon and the stars.

And a man's voice cried: "I will never forgive her! Heaven hears me! I will never forgive her!"

"A human tragedy," mused Zenobia—the old, old story of faithless love.

As the man neared her she noticed that he shook with emotion. But he trod the avenue with a heavy, manly step. Opposite her mansion the storm had left a pool upon the sidewalk about two inches deep. The man stepped heavily into this pool and the water splashed into his face.

"And as the waver close over my head," he cried, "I swear I will never forgive her!"

"Loaded!" said Zenobia, haughtily, and withdrew from the casement.

And the human tragedy staggered down the avenue.

KENNEDY STARTS SOMETHING

Editor of Western Laborer Arouses Talk in Typographical Circles.

INVOLVES COLORADO SPRINGS INSTITUTION

He Publishes Report of Alleged Ill-Treatment of Inmates of the Home for Disabled Printers—Investigation is in Progress.

F. A. Kennedy, editor of the Western Laborer of Omaha, seems to have been the fly in the ointment at the recent meeting of the International Typographical union at Birmingham, Ala., and the international body took action on a recent article published in the Omaha newspaper which, in the opinion of several members of the Omaha Typographical union, was to say the least, hasty.

The trouble originated a year ago over the alleged misconduct of the printers' home at Colorado Springs, Colo. At the last convention of the International union a "round robin" signed by several inmates of the home was presented to the body, setting forth that the present manager of the home was not conducting the institution to the best interest of the inmates. The communication was suppressed, the secretary being instructed not to print it in the proceedings of the convention. Later in the year Frank Kennedy wrote to some of the people who signed the "round robin," telling them that if they would send a copy of the communication to him he would publish it, which was done.

Doctor Makes a Protest.

Last month Mr. Kennedy published a communication from Colorado Springs, including certain letters which had passed between Dr. W. A. Campbell, at that time physician at the home, and the officers of the International Typographical union. In these letters the doctor stated that the manager was not treating the inmates as sick people should be treated; that he was committed to the institution to make machine tenders' assistants; members of the union. The latter prevailed over the adverse report of the laws committee. A proposition excluding the testimony of nonunion printers when a union man is on trial was captured.

consumption and others are in different parts of the country. It is shameful to say that sick men, on the verge of death, should receive the same food and treatment as those who are in good health and it seems that Dr. Campbell was removed for demanding that a distinction be made. There are no charges of corrupt practices against the present board or the present manager, but it is thought by some that the invalids at the home are not receiving proper treatment and we will see if the matter cannot be investigated by an independent committee some other time."

PRINTERS' MEETING CLOSES

Typographical Union Convention Quits, to Meet in Cincinnati Next Year.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 17.—The forty-seventh annual convention of the International Typographical union came to an end at 11 o'clock this morning, adjournment being taken to meet next year in Cincinnati. An amendment to the constitution was adopted by which the plurality rule will hereafter apply in the election of the president and secretary-treasurer, the same as to the other international offices. Majority rule has heretofore prevailed. A proposition to levy a special assessment for labor agitation was adopted, as was also a proposition to make machine tenders' assistants members of the union. The latter prevailed over the adverse report of the laws committee. A proposition excluding the testimony of nonunion printers when a union man is on trial was captured.
