Such an unpleasant termination of the encampment was obviated yesterday. The Droge pasture, containing 100 acres and lying a quarter of a mile east of Camp Dodge, was secured yesterday by the local committee and this is expected to give Colonel Lincoln ample room for the drilling of his regiment.

The men of the regiment were much pleased when they learned that they would not be called upon to break camp before the Fifty-second. Marks had been freely criticised for refusing permission to the regiment to maneuver in his fields, but on his behalf it was stated that the trampling of the soldiers did considerable damage to growing hay and other crops. To Restrain Sale of Liquor.

The hearing of the application of Attorney Fremont Benjamin for an injunction to restrain Charles Bierwith of the Metropolitan hotel from selling liquors was before Judge Wheeler in the district court Saturday and by him taken under advisement.

Emmet Tinley, counsel for Bierwith, accused Benjamin of not bringing the suit in good faith, but out of malice, because Bierwith had refused to induce his mother, Mrs.
L. P. Davidson, to employ Benjamin as attorney for the recovery of a deposit standing to Davidson's credit in Officer & Pusey's bank.

Benjamin was placed on the witness stand and his cross-examination by the defense was marked by several heated passages between the attorneys. Benjamin settimated at from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000.

They will attack the state executive council for alleged discriminations in assessment in favor of certain railroad corporations. The platform will also favor a high license law in place of the present mulct law, which is grafted onto the prohibitory law. The only other matter of interest in the convention will be in regard to the organization of the state committee. The present Mrs. Catherine M. Austin was, many years ago, Kittle O'Dowd, housemaid in the Baker home, in an aristocratic part of Chicago. She was an extremely pretty girl, modest and sensible in the Baker household. The husband and wife were estranged from each other. To keep up appearances, however, they continued to live in the same home. During that time of practical separation between husband and wife it is said that the husband fell violently in love with the pretty housemaid. He told the girl of his love begged her to elope with him to Dakota where he could secure a divorce from his wife and marry her.

The housemaid, who had never known anything but poverty and work all her life remained firm and untempted by the pictures of love and luxury placed before her by the rich man. She declined the offered love and money and pointed out the trouble and disgrace such a course would bring to them all. It would mean ruin and disgrace to a rich and powerful family and the blighting of the whole lives of his children. Baker, it seems, soon realized the folly of his proposition. Afterward there came a reconciliation between Baker and his wife.

In after years two sultors sought the hand of the housemaid. Baker took it upon himself to look up the character and standing of the two sultors. Kittle married the to give her $10,000 as a wedding present but she would not accept. The girl's husband turned out badly and she finally got a divorce on the ground of cruelty and married Austin, the former suitor. This time she accepted $2,500 from Baker. At his death Baker willed $7,500 to Mrs. Austin, which, with the $2,500 given to her before, brought the sum up to
