POLICE JUDGE QUESTION UP

Republicans Prepare for Election of Successor to Judge Gordon.

RESPECT INHERENT RIGHT OF PEOPLE

No Matter How Supreme Court Decides Pending Gordon Case There Will Be Reason for Choosing Successor to Incumbent.

A judge of the police court will be elected on November 5. Chairman Ostrom of the republican county committee, after consulting legal authorities, has amended the call for the republican primaries and convention by inserting a police judge among the list of offices to be nominated. Judge Gordon, who is holding out his job from his election in 1895, contends that there is no valid law providing for the election of a successor, but the judgment of eminent lawyers runs to the contrary. There is no question that Gordon was legally elected judge of the police court in 1895, but there is serious question that his tenure of office under that election runs on forever like the brook of poetic reason. In the spring of 1897 Judge Gordon was re-elected under a provision of the city charter, which was subsequently declared invalid by the supreme court for the reason that the term of two years specified in the act was in excess of the constitutional limitation. So this election of 1897 became null and void. In 1899 the general law relating to elections held in November was amended so as to provide for the election of one police judge in cities of the metropolitan class in addition to the six justices of the peace theretofore provided for. Under this amended law Judge Gordon became a candidate in the fall of 1899 against B. F. Thomas, the republican nominee for police judge. Gordon received a majority of the votes and a certificate of election. He filed a bond reciting that he had been elected at the regular fall election of 1899, qualified and entered upon the discharge of his duties. Subsequently, for the purpose of claiming salary at the old rate of $2,500 a year, Gordon filed another bond and also claimed right to the office under the election of 1895, the supreme court already having declared the election of 1897 unconstitutional and void. In the district court Gordon won out on the proposition that the election of 1899 was invalid, making him a "holdover" from 1895. This case has been appealed to the supreme court and a decision in it is expected in October. The interesting question in the case pertains to the validity of the amendment of 1899, making the police judge elective at the fall election, at the same time that justices of the peace and county officers are elected. If the supreme court decides the lower court and holds the act of 1899 valid, then Gordon's election of that year will stand in law and his term will expire on January 1 next, making the election of his successor necessary at the coming general election. On the other hand, if the supreme court affirms the decision of the lower court and holds the act of 1899 invalid, then Judge Gordon is a "holdover" from 1895 and there will be no statute left to provide especially for the election of his successor. But right here will come a question of the inherent right of the people to elect under the common law an officer whose election, through unintentional fault of the lawmakers, is not provided for by any particular statute. Good lawyers say the people have such a right and, therefore, no matter how the supreme court decides the pending case, an election of a police judge is in order this fall.

EAST NEEDS AID FROM WEST

Congress Called to Create Sentiment in Favor of Rivers and Harbors Bill.

NUMEROUS BILLS TO BE PAID

Fall Term of the Public Schools Opens Today—Adjourned Meeting of the City Council is on the Bills for Tonight.

There is to be a congress of the commercial bodies of the United States at Baltimore October 8 and 9 for the purpose of taking up the question of the improvement of rivers and harbors. The congress is called by the National Rivers and Harbors Association, with headquarters in New Orleans. The circular announcing the convention received by the secretary of the Omaha Commercial club states that the intention of the association is to have representatives from all of the states and territories appointed by the governors, from all cities appointed by the mayors and from all commercial bodies. It calls attention to the fact that the defeat of the last river and harbor bill in congress was caused by a senator who stated that he would not have made active opposition if the passage of the bill was demanded by any considerable number of citizens, and the association now intends to make a demand before the next congress which will satisfy the feelings of the senator. "The western states may send delegates to the congress," said a member of the Omaha Commercial club, "and it is the intention of making some kind of an arrangement by which the river and harbor bills and a national irrigation bill can be passed at the same time. For years the fact has been emphasized the river and harbor bills, destined to keep the traffic on the Mississippi river open and to give the country a certain route to the sea other than that by the Atlantic coast. Now we are ready for active reciprocity. If the coast towns and congressmen desire the passage of river and harbor bills they will have to consent to the passage of an irrigation bill. We realize that we are benefited by good harbors on the gulf coast and the navigation of the Mississippi to the west, but the people on the coast who are the most active in pushing river and harbor bills do not seem to realize that they will be benefited by the irrigating of the western lands. We must show them that our interests are identical and reciprocal in these matters. That while the west derives a secondary benefit from the open waterways the coast towns derive a primary benefit and that while the west may be more immediately interested in the question of irrigation the coast is no less benefited in a possibly secondary manner." The executive committee of the Commercial club may hold its first fall meeting Tuesday and the members will be present if the meeting is held, but it is not expected that there will be regular meetings each Tuesday until after the last week in September.

NUMEROUS BILLS TO BE PAID

Fall Term of the Public Schools Opens Today—Adjourned Meeting of the City Council is on the Bills for Tonight.

CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT

An adjourned meeting of the city council is held for tonight. So far the only matter of importance is the mayor's veto on Martin's tax resolution. There is no doubt about the veto being sustained, as any attempt to carry out Councilman Martin's plan would be a direct violation of certain provisions in the new charter. The chances of any street work being ordered are slim, as the mayor has given it out that the funds are running low and some money must be held in reserve for emergency work.

PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. Howard Cramblet, pastor of the Christian church, preached his farewell sermon last night. During his stay in South Omaha Rev. Cramblet endeavored himself to the people and his departure for another field of labor is greatly regretted. This evening a reception will be tendered Mr. Cramblet at the home of Dr. W. H. Stebbins, Twenty-third and I streets. Some time during the week Mr. Cramblet will remove to Hampton, Ia., where he has been called by the Christian church.

IMPENDING TRAVEL.

A pool of stagnant water on Twenty-fourth street, just north of F street, impedes travel to a great extent and is a nuisance on account of the grade of the pavement storm water will not reach the sewer and the consequence is that for a stretch of about 100 feet the pavement is under water or else covered with several inches of mud. The street commissioner has been asked a number of times to make an opening through the curb and lay a short drain in order to abate this nuisance, but so far he has not complied with these requests. The chances are that some steps will be taken at the council meeting tonight to have this nuisance abated.

MUSIC CITY GOSPEL.

The public schools will open today. The Knights and Ladies of Security will give a social Monday evening at Woodman hall. Miss Jessie Millett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Millett, twenty-second and I streets, died Saturday. Mary M. Schultz, daughter of John F. Schultz, Thirtieth and R streets, has returned from a visit with relatives at Kennebunk, Neb. General satisfaction is expressed at the condition of the bridge since the repairs. The bridge is now in first-class condition.

CONSOLIDATION STILL LACKING

Concerns Using Electric Power May Yet Be United in One Control.

It is now stated on good authority that between now and October some decisive steps will be taken in the matter of the consolidation of the electric companies of the city and the development of the Platte river project scheme. The manager of the eastern end of the project, Chicago, Illinois, has been in the city for several days, but returned the latter part of last week, and it is understood that as soon as he can examine the reports of the experts who recently inspected the plants using power in this city and the business of the concern which are to be probably united, he will set in motion. It is said by those in this city familiar with the Omaha end of the negotiations that the matter is up to the eastern investors, as the local managers of the concern have submitted the best proposition which can be considered. One of the officials of the Omaha Street Railway company says that the offer of his company has never been changed since it was first submitted. It was said that the position of this concern was what was delaying the consolidation a month or more ago, but it is understood that the eastern men have come to consider the matter in another light and that upon the showing of the experts they are more inclined to agree with the officers of the company as to the value of the plant.
