as much of a mystery as ever. A new which may throw some light on the subject. It is nothing less than that Gillilan Nebraska's famous state treasury defaulter. While this is as yet pure theory, there is much in the facts and the evidence to bear it out and it may be that after all Bartley is safer returned, as he has been, behind prison walls than he would have been had he been allowed to remain at large here in Lincoln.

From the outset everyone who has studied the Gillian murder, including the police, has been at a loss to find a satisfactory motive that would have impelled anyone to dreamed that Gillian was a victim of ven- | make for the prisoner. geence for some wrong committed against

The robbery explanation, however, has received warnings that the president's life little to justify it. In the first place, rob-would be attempted at Buffalo. bers do not shoot their victims except in the night in question was entirely un-himself, much less to attack his assailants. To get by this almost insuperable bar the police have had to maintain that the murder was committed by amateurs rather than professionals, because professionals would never have been guilty of such unprofessional conduct.

But even conceding that the assaulting highwaymen were amateurs there are some things impossible of explanation. The murdered man had money in his pockets and a watch and other valuables on his person, but not a penny had been touched or a single article abstracted. Men des perate enough to hold up a man in the center of a thickly-populated residence district within sight of passing street cars would not have gone away empty handed. Yet outside of the scattered magazines and periedicals which Gillian was carrying everything about him was intact just as when he left the neighbor's house a few minutes before.

Signs that Point to Bartley.

Is it not much more probable then that Gillilan was a victim of mistaken identity? And if it is a case of mistaken identity is it not most probable that Gillilan was mistaken for Bartley?

The murder of Gillilan took place on Sevresidence is at the intersection of Seventeenth street and C street, three blocks from the scene of the murder. Gillilan was oing south toward the Bartley bouse. At the time of the murder. Bartley was out on his parole and had been going about freely visiting friends in that section of Gillitan and Bartley have no resemblance ward evidence here to refute the of personal features, they are not far apart in height and build and under the heavily dence was received here today. If Gillilan was shot by mistake with his assailants under the impression that they Porto Rican Revenue Shows a Healthy were attackink Bartley, it would not b difficult to find motives for the crime. Just at that time the air was full of talk about Bartley perfecting his claim to liberty by divulging to the governor a complete list of the names of those who shared in his plunder of the state treasury. Other talk was to the effect that he could only prevent his return to prison by collecting in the stolen money still in the hands of supposed friends and paying it back into the treasury. It is easily conceivable, therefore, that many people here in Lincoln were more anxious to keep Bartley harmless and silent than they were to effect his freedom. So far they had been protected, but none could say how much longer they would be safe. On the contrary the belief was current that Bartley's accomplices, unless they were both willing and able to return their favors, were in imminent danger of exposure, not of summons to justice. That some should have felt it incumbent on them to relips sealed, is perfectly credible to those familiar with all the inside facts.

Recalls Barrett Scott Case.

People who have been speculating on the Gillian murder mystery have been racalling other mysterious murders atter solved where robbery has been the motive ascribed The more analogous case, however, if the theory of mistaken identity is accepted, is that of Barrett Scott, the notorious defaulting ex-treasurer of Holt county. BUFFALO, Sept. 11 .- The night consultaion of the physicians furnished in some respects the most satisfactory report yet oming from the sick room. At the evening conference the result of the microscopic examination of the blood was examined and found to be perfectly satisfactory. There was no increase of white corpuscles, such as would exist should blood poisoning set in, and the doctors had the satisfaction of announcing that the count of the blood corroborated the clinical evidence of the absence of any blood poisoning. The president was bathed and given nourishment while all the doctors were present and afterwards was placed in his new bed.

The members of the cabinet were all below stairs while the consultation was in progress and remained until the bulletin was issued. They were so elated over the improvement in the president's condition and the absence of any unfavorable symptoms that Secretary Root appounced that he felt free to depart and that he had deided to go to New York tomorrow.

Doctors Show Their Joy.

At the conclusion of the night conference he doctors gave another extremely gratifying report of their patient's progress. The physicians did not begin to leave the Milburn residence until shortly before o'clock. The reports which they had to communicate could hardly have been more gratifying than they were. Dr. Wasdin and Dr. Mynter came out together. They were hemmed in on all sides by the eager newspaper men. "Good news! Good news!" Dr. Wasdin eried. "Nothing but good news. We have washed and fed the president and moved him to another bed." "Is he still improving?"

"He is and to prove it I desire to say that a count of his blood shows that it is in a normal condition and we feel that we can announce definitely that there is not the least indication of blood poisoning." He referred the reporters to Dr. Wasdin of the Marine hospital service, who was standing at his side, for a scientific interpretation. The latter explained that a count the blood was a microscopic examination the relative number red corpuscles in and determine whether inflammation any sort existed. An increase of white corpuscles, relatively speaking, of the blood that might indicate peritonitis.

He said that this morning a few drops of What the Corpuscies Show. "We found," said he, "that the number of white corpuscles was just about normal, while the red cells were slightly below normal, due to insufficient nutrition since the operation. The count was not made to verify the fact that blood poisoning did not exist, of which we felt certain, but to remove every shade of doubt. The result is that we feel safe in announcing that not a trace of blood poinsoning, peritonitis or inflammation exists. The test could not have been more satisfactory." "Is the president out of danger?" "No, I would not say that. He is a very sick man, but his condition under the cirney Penney held a number of consultations cumstances could not be much better. That much I will say emphatically."

way of testing the condition of the president's blood. Particularly Good Symptoms.

Dr. McBurney laid particular stress on the fact that the president is able to take great deal of nourishment, which was an important factor in the treatment of his case. It was this one thing needed to strengthen and build him up after the ordeal which has so weakened him. He is now taking about an ounce of beef juice an hour and so far the stomach has not rejected any of it. The wound which it was found necessary to redress last night in progressing satisfactorily and Dr. Me-Burney said it had improved very much The doctor apparently felt very much elated over the progress the president is making toward recovery and in response to an inquiry as to whether he believed Mr. Mc Kinley would recover smilingly replied: "Oh. yes."

The doctor remained over night and will attend the consultation of the physicians tomorrow. The time of his departure has not been definitely determined.

Feels No Longer Needed

Dr. Mann, who has attended every consultation of the physicians, was not present tonight, feeling that his presence was unnecessary. Dr. Park also expressed his satisfaction at the condition shown by the president and at the manner in which his system was responding to treatment. All the members of the cabinet now in the city, including Secretaries Root, Wilson, Hitchcook and Postmaster General Smith, were again at the Milburn mansion tonight and remained until after the consultation of the physiciana was concluded. They are highly elated over the favorable developments in would not be surprised if the president was | the president's case and Secretary Roof is so sanguine of the future that he has deter-
