evolutions of an intricate drill, presenting a spectacle which must have gladdened the hearts of their royal masters as it did the hearts of their fellow-subjects in the great audience.

As the knights marched off to an anteroom at the conclusion of their drill Bandmaster Abbott waved his baton and the entrancing notes of Toban's "Hearts and Flowers" overture filled the vast hall. Governor Savage and his staff, in full uniform, marched onto the platform and pabl their compliments to the king and queen. The governor and his officers were followed by hundreds of others who were anxious to greet his majesty and convey to him their heartlest wishes for the welfare of his realm.

It was well after 10 o'clock when the first of the twenty numbers on the dance program was reached and for several hours thereafter gay beaux and pretty belies responded to the unceasing invitation of the terpsichorean notes that sounded from the three bandstands. The doctor told me not to use coffee or tea and put me on a light diet, and I felt better. Then I commenced to drink coffee again and had the same trouble come on. One day I told a friend about it, who said if I would stop drinking coffee altogether I would feel better, and advised me to use Postum Food Coffee in its place. I tried the Postum but did not like it, so I told him about it and he said I didn't cook it right, that is, didn't boil it enough and that I should use cream instead o

Traveling Men Rave Their Inning in Carnival Festivities.

MONSTER STREET PARADE IS GIVEN

commercial Tourists from All Over This City's Tributary Region Make a Festal Day of It-Interesting Features of Parade.

Yesterday was traveling men's day in jolly fellows turned out in the most unique parade this city has seen in a long while. The travelers were disc badges entireled with Ak-Sar-Ben colors. A great hog stood circles and announced, "We are here to root for Omaha." Above the hog are the words "Traveling Men's Day" and beneath the porcine are the words, "September, 20, 1901, Ak-Sar-Ben Carnival." Traveling men of all sizes and shapes were wandering around under the burden of their weighty emblem. Old men and young men, fats and slims, crowded into the Commercial club rooms yesterday and joined in the happy reunion which lasted for several hours. Members of all commercial orders joined in the merrymaking. Kansans, Nebraskans, Iowans and New Yorkers nudged elbows and partook of the spirit of brotherhood which was in the air.

A happier looking crowd of men never walked the streets of Omaha than the drummers. Long faces do not seem to go with the healthy porkers who declare that they are rooting for Omaha. The travelers came to Omaha with the carnival spirit and found themselves in a congenial atmosphere.

Shortly after 2 o'clock a strange collection of beings from an unknown land began gathering at Sixteenth and Harney streets. Policemen started to run them in on suspicton, but J. F. Hodgins vouched for the crowd and confided in the officers that the strangers were a part of the traveling men's parade. Before long it was evident that the parade was to be a swell event. The chariots of the society women who were to take part in the flower parade created a sensation and the gowns of the women were a decided tear

Then the animal section began to show up and an excited policeman announced that some of Park Commissioner Cornish's pets must have escaped from Riverview park. But the animals became tractable as soon as Bum Sousa's band appeared and struck up music designed to make the savage beast ashamed of itself.

Formation of Parade.

At 2:30 o'clock the grand parade formed and began to move west on Harney street. Grand Marshal M. C. Howes headed the gargeous pageant. Abbott's band followed and then came the first division. in charge of H. S. Whitehouse, J. Chestnutwood, resplendent in the long clothes of Uncle Sam, had charge of a score of patriots. W. A. Stone headed a delegation of clowns that created merriment all along the line of march.

Darktown followed under the leadership of J. M. Brengler and was funny enough to put the Old Plantation to shame. Fifty Chinamen, headed by M. F. Taylor, followed and were the last of the first division of the parade.

P. Homrighouse was in charge of the second section. Bum Sousa's band under the leadership of F. F. Osborn, gave Omaha something new in the musical line. Beautiful gold and silver instruments were imported from Germany for this organization. Christ Rudio, bass drummer, is the chief soloist, and was the hit of the day. Berine Rehfeld, slide tromboniet, and Mr. Rudio played a duet which set all the ballyhoo artists on the Midway to guessing.

The feature of the day, however, was the flower parade which had a prominent place in this section.

Fifty women, all guaranteed to mothers-in-law, took part in this pageant. Their gowns were importations and they were so anxious to show them that they walked and pushed their charlots. The chariot race in "Ben Hur" is no more thrilling than was this long column of society favorites when it dashed down Farnam street. One of the society favorites lost the sack of flour out of her baby cab on the way down the hill, but the others all made a safe finish.

F. C. Green was in charge of the flower parade and he declares that he would rather manage an all-star cast than attempt to engineer another such a society function.

Can't Lose the Indians. Following the fifty mothers-in-law were several hundred traveling men in line Then came the third division of the parade, in charge of F. B. Holbrook. Kiplinger's Military band headed this section. George Washington followed and then came a large tribe of Indians. A large number of retail merchants who are visiting marched after the Indians and brought up the end of the procession.

The line of march was as follows: West on Harney from Sixteenth to Eighteenth street north on Eighteenth to Farnam, east on Farnam to Tenth, north on Tenth to Douglas, west on Douglas to Sixteenth, north on Sixteenth to Chicago, countermarch on Sixteenth to Douglas, west on Douglas to carnival grounds. At the carnival grounds the parade disbanded, costumes were cast aside and the commercial men joined the crowds that were making merry within the grounds. The committees in charge of the celebration were as follows:
