

BRIDES HOLD THE BOARDS

Center of Stage and Limelight is Still Their Portion.

OCTOBER MONTH NOT LONG ENOUGH

All the Weddings Planned Cannot Be Solemnized and Give Each Its Due Importance in Four Weeks.

Our Lady of Tan

William J. Lampton, in Harper's Weekly. Lo, there she stands; Behold her hands And arms. Whose milk-white charms Are gone, and in their stead A dark brown hue That tells a healthy tale Of exercise. Beneath the sunlit sky Of hill and dale. Her cheeks, once pink and white. Are now a sight For gods whose taste, in shades For summer mirth. Has ripened to the deep Delicious ruby browns that sleep Beneath her sun-kissed skin Like snowdrops in The sweet embraces of a rose. Her nose, Once blistered in the sun of June, Is now innocuous. And from its tip to crown Is really a symphony in brown. In now innocent alabaster brow Is now A rhapsody in red. So dark as to seem A Vandyke dream. Her neck, before A pillar of pale light, No more Is so befitting. But gleams in bronze. So rich and rare. That what is darkest Is most fair. The Summer shakes Its stuff on her and makes Her radiant skin a dusky, dusty red That glows as softened sunsets In the haze Of Autumn days. She walks unshadowed in the sun As fearless of its beams As are the flowers in Spring. And wears her cloak Of rich maroon As royal purple decks a queen. Behold her. Coming back to town, From mountains down. A south sorceress is she. A sunset ruler on a throne Entirely her own. A tawny tyrant Of the heart of man. A fitting Fantasy In tan.

While so much is being said and done for the October brides that the November calendar is threatened with infringement to the compass all the year is in store— for of course each bride covers the honor of the week and prefers postponing the date to sharing the attention with another— there is one participant in all the gaiety who is not as gay as he seems, even while he toasts the newly wedded ones. This is the society bachelor. Even the honors of the user and the best man do not compensate as he views the depleted ranks of the past few seasons' debutantes and reflects that so few of them are still impartial. There are, however, a number of young women newly "unbowed" at eastern colleges who have been receiving the attention of those who like to know things of late and these busy ones say that at least three of them are to be formally introduced before the first of the year.

This will occasion a long list of receptions, dancing parties and like affairs and maybe, real late in the spring, perhaps before June, another wedding, for it is understood that one of these young women is waiting only for her debut when her engagement to a man back east will be announced.

The wedding the Gannett-Taylor wedding, which is to occur at All Saints' church on Wednesday evening, will occupy society's first attention and after that there are to be more affairs for the bride and groom just back from their tour.

The brilliant feature of the week and one of the most elaborate functions given in many seasons was the luncheon given by Mrs. Levi Carter at the Omaha club on Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Joseph Morsman of Chicago. The great table at which the thirty-nine guests were seated was laid in the big club dining room upstairs and its decoration was exquisite in every detail. The entire affair was in pink. In the center of the table five baskets of brisambles were arranged in a great pink mass of fragrance, from which other roses were scattered all over the cloth. At each corner was a great pink satin bow, white, suspended from above, were electric lights shaded beneath pink bulbs and sprays of green and shedding a soft glow over all.

Weddings and Engagements. One of the pleasant announcements of the fall is that of the engagement of Mr. Dick Stewart of Council Bluffs and Miss Gertrude Kountze.

Mr. Lester L. Mudge of Burlington, Ia., and Miss Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mudge, were married October 1 at the home of the bride's parents.

A Plain Statement Without Equivocation.

The "HARDMAN" piano is truly the musician's favorite. Some of the reasons are its incomparable tone, perfect scale, durability, stays in tune longest, uniformity of construction (you never hear of a poor "Hardman") and their new 1902 advanced style casings of the most beautiful natural woods are creating the greatest enthusiasm in art circles.

Their style "G," designed after ancient Greek architecture, is a happy illustration of the exclusive art production of the Hardman factories. As a New York piano man remarked recently: "You haven't seen the latest until you see a 'Hardman.'"

From Maker to User It is generally known that the "Hardman" Co. are financially interested in the MUELLER PIANO & ORGAN CO., giving us the exclusive privilege of quoting actual factory prices, therefore it is reasonable and true that these beautiful, well known pianos can and are being sold by us in Omaha at a lower price than possible for any wholesale or retail piano store, no matter what they may claim. This is a fact no honest man will deny.

Space does not permit us to publish the names of the 2,300 Hardman users in this vicinity, but sufficient to say if well known Omaha artists as Dr. Baeten, Prof. Butler, Mr. Garretsen, Mr. Kelly, Miss Burnham, Madam Muenstering do use the Hardman, it must be a most satisfactory instrument to own.

Harrington, Story & Clark, Palmer, Schaeffer and Hardman pianos, also the new improved Angelus Orchestral Piano Player (no other like it), are sold exclusively by us and marked at one price in plain figures. Free Angelus Concerts Daily. Mueller Piano, Organ Co. Est. 1859, 1316 Farnam St. North Side Street bride's parents in Harrisburg, Pa., and are now the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. W. Schaeffer, 2612 Hamilton street. An unusually pretty wedding occurred at 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin on Wirt street, that of their daughter, Miss Edna, and Mr. Charles Helmer. The house was artistically decorated with flowers, potted plants and greenery, especially the parlor where the ceremony marked by means of broad white satin ribbons and roses, and in the interval before the arrival of the bride party a number of the leading musicians of the city contributed a most appropriate program. Among them were Miss Lena Eisworth, Mr. Max Baumann and Mr. Sigmund Lansburg, with Mr. Joseph Gahn at the organ. As the bride party entered the ushers, Mr. Hall Buckingham and Mr. Arthur Williams, were in advance, followed by Miss Edith Hamilton, sister of the bride, as flower girl, Miss Elsie J. Barnard, as maid of honor, came next, and then the bride and her father. The groom, attended by Mr. Frank Newman, met the party at the altar, where Rev. Griffith read the marriage service of the Episcopal church. A reception followed the wedding at the home of the bride's parents, 1904 Binney street. Mr. and Mrs. Ketter will be at home after October 15 at 3718 North Eighteenth street.

Ladies' Fine Tailoring. The success of our new department greater even than our hopes led us to expect. Encouraged by the unprecedented patronage accorded the opening of a new department of this kind and by the many written and spoken words expressing satisfaction and commendation for the superior work and workmanship of the garments we have delivered in the past three weeks, we have decided to place before our customers the largest assortment of fabrics suitable for tailored suits, skirts, jackets, etc., ever shown in Omaha for ladies to select from. These cloths will arrive Tuesday morning and be displayed in our Ladies' Tailoring Department on 3rd floor. They come in pattern lengths—our pattern of a shade—the variety being so great that all can have an opportunity of making satisfactory selections without duplicating the purchases of friends and acquaintances. We show you hundreds of modes to select from, but will copy if you desire any design or style shown in the many journals of fashion. We will also sell suit patterns and you can take them elsewhere to be made, but if once we make a garment for you we believe you'll never have a wish to go elsewhere. If you have material of your own bring it along, we will gladly make it up for you. All are cordially invited to call at this new Ladies' Tailoring Department—no one will be made uncomfortable by being pressed to buy. Take the elevator to third floor. O.K.
