"Just as Sever-Day Book" is the Way They Frame Their Requests

WOMEN MUST BE STRICTLY UP TO DATE

It isn't So Much What the Book Contains as What Demands There is for It That Prompts the Orders.

"Just give me any seven-day book," was the request of a stylishly dressed woman who stepped up to the delivery window at the Omaha public library.

After the woman had strutted proudly out of the building with a copy of "The Crisis" under her arm, several of the library assistants laughed and began comparing notes concerning the patrons of the library who never want anything but seven-day books.

"Most of our seven-day people are women who want to appear up to date. They are afraid some neighbor will read a new romantic novel they have never heard of, so they sit up at night reading everything we have in the seven-day list," remarked one of the assistants.

"Innocence of a new book which has caught the popular fancy is a crime with women who want to be considered absolutely up to date. Not to be familiar with 'Like Another Helen' is as bad as wearing a gown of some fabric that is not supposed to be the latest.

"There is fashion in reading just as much as in clothes. Some patrons of the library ask the attendants who carry fashionable women in the city are reading. Sometimes the girls in the library suggest remarkably heavy books and these are immediately drawn. Of course they are not read, but they are taken home and allowed to lie where all the neighbors can see them when they call.

Plenty of New Books.

The man or woman who enjoys the romantic novel, the novel of colonial wars and pretty maidens, will find a surfeit of new books whose scenes are laid in all parts of the world and to be had in covers that savor of the glitter and dash of the fascinating stories they contain.

But the readers of fiction are not the only patrons who have been cared for in the fall purchase of books. Among the hundreds of new volumes which are finding their way to the stacks are works of every description. Among the new arrivals is an addition to the Riverside Biographical series by William R. Lighton of Omaha.

Educators will hail with delight a new history of education by Paul Monroe. This work is unlike the conventional history of education and is a very exhaustive and interesting study of the development of education from earliest time down to the present.

The first volume of "Saintsbury's History of Literary Criticism" has been received. Many more volumes of this work will follow. The present volume is devoted entirely to a study of the literary criticism of ancient times.

Several interesting historical works have been received. F. Marlon Crawford's "Rulers of the South" has much that is new to tell of the nobility in Sicily and other southern states.

Persons who are interested in the history of the stage and its people will find many new books of interest in the library. Norman Haggood's "Stage in America" is among the recent additions to the lore of stageland.

Thomas B. Reed's "Modern Eloquence" is a book which contains much of interest to persons who are called upon to speak in public. In this book are given many fine after-dinner speeches.

An effort is being made to provide books which will be of interest to persons who have made a study of photography. "Photominiature," a monthly magazine of photographs, has been added to the list of periodicals in the library.

The Art of Framing—

Pictures have reached the highest point of perfection with us. Constant attention to the little details in frames and moldings, the careful selection of novelties, together with an unswerving ambition to always frame the picture, whatever it may be, in the most artistic manner possible, is the secret of our success. Twenty-seven years before the public as leaders in all that pertains to ART, gives you the assurance that we will satisfactorily frame your picture—and the price!—ALWAYS RIGHT.
