CHAMPION MAN-HATER.

She Was an Austrian Woman, but There Are Others. There died in Vienna the other day a woman who claimed to be the champion man-hater of the world. This was her name during her lifetime, and as yet little stands undisputed. The good fortune would turn over to her grave, however, if she could learn how the weaker vessel who were to have conducted her funeral all alone had to call in the hated enemy to help her out. Marie, in her will, decreed that no male person should have anything to do with her burying. She must be laid out, preached over, and carried to the cemetery by women, a woman must shovel dirt on the box other women had nailed her up in, and her grave must be chiseled by a woman's hand...

FRESH FISH FOR THE NEEDY

Game Warden Simpkins Expects to Furnish Fine Carp and Buffalo. If the plans of George Simpkins, deputy state game warden, with reference to the selling of Cut-Off lake are carried out, the charitable institutions of Douglas county will feast on fish for several days. Under the law of the state the fish taken from the lake cannot be sold in excess of a quantity sufficient to pay for the cost of catching—all other fish to be given to the charitable institutions of the county. There is no way of determining the number of buffalo fish and carp in the lake and estimates run from a few hundred pounds into the thousands. At the meeting of the Douglas County Fish Protective association at the county house this evening the subject of the sale of the lake will be discussed, and it is understood that some of the anglers do not favor the plan of the game warden and that there will be resistance made to his effort to take the voracious fish from the lake...

PLANS FOR THE AUDITORIUM

Consulting Architect Will Make His Report to the Building Committee. It is probable that the plans of the Omaha auditorium will be turned over to the building and grounds committee shortly after that committee is announced, which announcement will be made at the meeting of the board of directors to be held today. There is considerable speculation as to the report which will be made by the consulting architect when he returns to the city. It will be a confidential communication, which may or may not be made public, as the committee decides. S. A. Ingalls, Crown Point, N. Y., writes: "My wife suffered from kidney trouble for years. She was induced to try Foley's Kidney Cure and in less than a week after she began using it she was greatly improved and three bottles cured her."

URIBE-URIBE STILL ACTIVE

Engagement Between Insurgents and Colombian Troops May Yet Occur.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curacao, Oct. 20.—(Via Havana cable.)—The military situation on the Tacarigua frontier apparently remains unchanged, although the scouting and restless activities of General Uribe-Urbe and his followers may result in an engagement with the Colombian troops of more or less importance any day. Nor is there any change on the Guajira peninsula, in various parts of Venezuela guerrilla parties of nationalists continue more or less armed activity and minor uprisings are frequently reported. President Castro is vigorously repressing insurrection wherever he can, but repression, instead of discouraging the nationalists, seems to stimulate them to fresh operations. They are not lacking in numbers, their principal want being arms and ammunition. The sum of $8,000 became due this month to the United States from Venezuela on account of mixed American claims and has not been paid. The claims arose out of damages sustained during the revolution of 1852. They were adjudicated between Venezuela and the United States and the former agreed to pay $22,000 per year in quarterly payments, with annual interest on the sinking fund, the payments to be divided pro rata among the American claimants. This is the first instance where Venezuela has defaulted on a quarterly payment.

WASHINGTON'S LAST ILLNESS.

Drastic Methods Employed to Save the First President. Mr. L. W. De Zellar of Senbury & Johnson, No. 53 Madison lane, New York City, owns a bound volume of the Monthly Magazine and American Review of New York for the year 1799 and from it is taken the following interesting contemporaneous account of the last illness of George Washington: "The most illustrious of Americans during his last illness. It will be seen, says the Mail and Express, that the science of medicine has made enormous strides in the direction of greater mildness in the treatment of disease during the last 100 years and the extraordinary means taken to save Washington's life ought to be interesting reading to others than doctors and druggists. The December number of the magazine says: "Some time in the night of Friday, the 15th of December, having been exposed to a rain on the preceding day, General Washington was attacked with an inflammatory affection of the upper part of the windpipe, called in technical language croup, which he had contracted while on duty in the upper and fore part of the throat, a sense of stricture in the same part, a cough and a difficult rather than a painful deglutition, which were soon succeeded by fever and a quick and laborious respiration. "The necessity of blood being suggested to the general, he procured a phlebotomy in the neighborhood, who took from his arm in the night twelve or fourteen ounces of blood. He could not be prevailed on by the faculty to send for the attending physician till the following morning, when he arrived at Mount Vernon at about 11 o'clock on Saturday. "Discovering the case to be highly alarming, and foreseeing the fatal tendency of the disease, two consulting physicians were immediately sent for, who arrived, one at 3:30 and the other at 4 o'clock on Saturday noon. In the meantime were employed two copious bleedings, a blister was applied to the part affected, two moderate doses of calomel were given, but all without any perceptible advantage, the respiration becoming still more difficult and painful. "On the arrival of the first of the consulting physicians, it was agreed, as there were yet no signs of accumulation in the bronchial vessels of the lungs, to try the effect of another bleeding, when about thirty or more ounces of blood were drawn, without the least apparent alleviation of the disease. Vapors of vinegar and water were frequently inhaled, ten grains of calomel were given, succeeded by repeated doses of emetic tartar, amounting in all to five or six grains. "The power of life seemed now manifestly yielding to the force of the disorder; blisters were applied to the extremities, together with a cataplasma of bran and vinegar to the throat. Speaking, which had been painful from the beginning, now became almost insupportable. The respiration grew more and more contracted and imperfect until 11:30 on Saturday night, when, retaining the full possession of his intellects, he expired without a struggle. "He was fully impressed at the beginning of his disease as well as through every stage of it that his conclusion would be mortal, submitting to the exertions made for his recovery rather as a duty than from any belief of their efficacy. He considered the operations of death upon his system as coeval with the disease, and several hours before his death, after repeated efforts to be understood, he succeeded in expressing a desire that he might be permitted to die without further interruption."

INVESTIGATES MINER'S CASE

Ambassador Clayton Working to Secure W. H. Mealey's Release in Mexico. MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—Ambassador Clayton, acting under instruction of the State department at Washington, has been investigating the case of W. H. Mealey, an American mining man, under arrest here. While the ambassador was working to secure Mealey's release, news came that he had been released, but immediately re-arrested under charges of robbery and perjury. Mealey's case has been in the courts more or less for several years. As the result of the present litigation, the arrest of Mealey taken in connection with mining cases, and the point is made that an American permanently residing in Mexico, paying no taxes in the United States and not a citizen, loses his standing with the United States government. If this principle were made operative, it would affect many long-time American residents of this country. Mealey, it is said, had made Mexico his permanent home.
