When the engines arrived the flames had enveloped the building from top to bottom and the intense heat from this terrifying mass of flames made it almost impossible for the firemen to get within close range of the seething furnace.

Ignoring the flames for the time being. the firemen devoted their whole attention to the work of rescue. As some of them stood within the scorching heat of the fire with nets outspread to receive those who leaped from the burning building, their comrades played lines of hose upon them. When their work in this respect was ended many of the firemen were completely exhausted.

Walls Fall.

Most of the fatalities occurred in the rear of the building. As if by common impulse the majority of the employes at tempted to reach places of safety by means of the fire escape on the Commerce street end of the structure. Many of them, rendered practically insane by fright, leaped to the ground. Others, becoming unconsclous from the smoke and intense heat fell to the pavement. When the firemen arrived Commerce street was filled with these unfortunate detims and for the space of an hour the police and hospital service was taxed to their utmost capacity. For an hour the roaring flames threatened the lives of every one who was compelled to work fighting the fire or protecting the surrounding property and every minute of time threatened many other thousands of worth of property on all sides of the principal building in which the blaze started. It looked for a time as if the entire block would become prey to the flames. but the failing of the walls of the burning building prevented the spread of the fire. Twelve years ago a gang of ragged tramps bound for Chicago were thrown from a Burlington train near Pacific Junction. Alert brakemen kept the crowd from boarding another train and the wanderers were compelled to walk back to Omaha. Among the hoboes was a slender youngster who of professional bums. In a few years his experiences as hobo were published in a book called 'Tramping with Tramps." Last night he told a large audience at Boyd's theater about his unusual associations with tramps and criminals.

The well-groomed lecturer did not suggest the ragged knights of the tomato can, whose lives have been the subject of his ife study. He talked of "Denver Red," other hobors as though they were his most intimate friends, and told many stories about the vagrant class.

Graduations of Vagrancy

"Tramps are discouraged criminals. They are men who have tried to be criminals and have found that they baven't sufficient brain to become successful crooks," said Mr. Willard, or Mr. Flynt, as he is popularly known, in describing the associates of his youth. Mr. Flynt told of experiences he has had recently in assisting with the policing of railroads, and expressed the opinion that the tramp nuisance will be abated when railroads succeed in preventing the vagrants from riding on trains. He said that if the railroads quit carrying hoboes they will be forced to take to country roads, and that farmers will not tolerate idlers.

INSTRUCTS AGAINST POWERS Judge Cantrill's Address to Jury in Goebel Case Seems Infavorable to Defense.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Oct. 25.-At 2:15 p. Judge Cantrill instructed the jury in Caleb Powers trial that the acts and declarations of every conspirator indicted with Powers were the acts and declarations of Powers and that if the bringing of the mountain army to Frankfort was due to Powers and if that act resulted in Goebel's death the prisoner should be found guilty. If the jury believed Goebel's death resulted from a conspiracy, even though the original intention of the conspirators was not to kill Goebel and the defendant was absent when the shooting occurred, the defendant should be found guilty. The instructions were strongly for conviction. The arguments began at 2:45 p. m. with four hours allowed to each side.

Judge Norton of Lexington made the opening speech for the defense. He pictured the blighted career of the young defendant and in closing his argument read his friends. Bride's Girl Friends Assist.

A large share of the credit for the bril-Hant coup executed by Mr. Day shortly after midnight Friday morning belongs to two young women, friends of the bride, whose names, at their request, are withheld. They did the clever detective work which led to the finding of her prison bouse, 1710 South Tenth street, and they did sentry duty while he went in and made James Campbell of David City Finds the highly spectacular rescue. He was guided from first to last by their counsel. The police have played thus far a very inconsiderable part in the affair.

At 10:30 o'clock Thursday night Day, the wo young women and two city detectives went out to the South Tenth street house in a street car. There they found the bride confined to her bed with a nervous attack, the result of excitement, as she has been in delicate health for several months. She was in care of a Mrs. Brown, who has known her from childhood. Mrs. Brown is a Jewess, who about seventeen years ago silver dollars, by three men. Story of the Bridegroom

"My wife was terribly excited and frightened," said Mr. Day. "She told me the rabbi had been there talking to her and that her mother had been scolding her for marrying without her consent. I begged her to come away with me, but she was afraid to. I could see that the more I begged the more hysterical she became and finally started to go, but she called me back and said if I would send the detectives away she would go with me. I had a talk aside with the two young women and we agreed to all go away together, to give Mrs. Brown the impression that we had abandoned the case, and with number of letters written by Powers to this in view I made a great show of bidding Anna goodbye.

"Then the five of us got on the car and started back toward town, but after we. "I would rather that we should fight had ridden a few blocks the two young women and I got off and let the detectives house, meanwhile arranging the details of the attack. When we arrived it must have been near midnight. It then occurred to me that the cars would stop in a few minutes, so I went to a drug store and called a back. ordering it to wait for us at the intersection of Tenth and Dorcas streets. The two young women stood watch, taking their positions about 100 feet on either side of the house, while I went to the rear and gier lay down in the weeds. From where I lay took the jury trying Powers to Frankfurt I could hear voices inside. The curtain was Sinclair; Judge Cantrill, Commonwealth's up a few inches and I could see in. Mrs. Attorney Franklin and Messrs. Hendrick, Walpa, my wife's mother, was there, talking excitedly to Anna in some language I couldn't understand. She must have come while we were away with the two detectives. I could see by the way Anna acted that she was being scolded. "About this time Mrs. Walpa arose to go, and I heard Mrs. Brown say she would go to the car with her. I crawled up the embankment to the sidewalk and tipped the situation off to my two sentries, after which they immediately concealed themselves.

Attacks the House.

"As soon as Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Walpa had left I went boldly to the door and knocked. The 16-year-old boy came, opened the door about two inches and looked out but the moment he caught sight of me he slammed it to, turned the key on the inside and ran to a window. I could hear him working at the sash. Peaking around the corner, I saw him leap out of the window and run.

"I realized then that the moment for action had come. Blowing a whistle, which through the open window into the living room and unlocked the outside door. I tried to get into my wife's bedroom, but the door was locked and I had to smash it in. I told her not to be frightened, that I had come to take her home, and suggested that she dress as suicely as constitle. was the signal agreed upon. I crawled that she dress as quickly as possible, which she proceeded to do. "I then went to the outside door and looked out. The two sentries had stopped Mrs. Brown on the sidewalk and were en gaging her in conversation. They wanted to prevent a scene, if possible, on account of my wife's hysterical condition, but I suppose Mrs. Brown became suspicious, for moment later she appeared at the door. more surprised woman you never saw, but she was game and showed fight.

Fights for His Wife.

"When Anna came out, dressed for the treet, Mrs. Brown seized her and tried to drag her back to her room by force, but I took a hand at this and for a few minutes we had almost a rough and tumble fight. Then the two young women appeared and tried to keep Mrs. Brown away. To make matters worse my wife had another of those hysterical spells and began to scream and strike blindly. With Mrs. Brown hanging to Anna's ankles I had to virtually drag both women toward the carriage by main force. I don't know how I would have made out if it hadn't been for the help of the two young women. They managed somehow to and to know that she boiled it fifteen or break Mrs. Brown's hold and to detain her until I could call the driver, when the four of us boarded the cab and drove away That was the most desperate scrimmage I ever had in my life. The Bee has received a lengthy letter from William H. Jennings of Lincoin, taking exception as a Christian Scientist to the paragraph in the syllabus of a paper on "Suggestive Therapeutics," by Dr. E. H. Pratt, that found a place in The Bee of October 24. To the statement that "The Christian Scientists make use of suggestive therapeutics, but have so much of error in their philosophy that their teachings are for the most part a delusion and a snare," the writer answers that "Christian Science does not make use of suggestive therapeutics, nor of any other form of hypnotic suggestion," while the rest of his ictter aims to convince Dr. Pratt that he does not understand what Christian Science is.

A POSTMAN'S STORY

AN EXPERIENCE DECIDEDLY OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

W. Allen, a Letter Carrier for Thire teen Years, Talks Interest-ingly About It.

The postman often has strange experi-One of these came recently to Mr. C. W. Allen of 377 St. Albans street, St. Paul, Minn., who has been a letter carrier for the past thirteen years. He is 38 years old and has passed the greater portion of his life in St. Paul. Owing to exposure, Mr. Allen contracted a severe case of muscular rheumatism, which dectors tailed to relieve. Hearing of the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People he was persuaded to try a box. His improvement dates from that period. To use Mr. Allen's own language: "The first box brought me the first relief from suffering ! had experienced in weeks; the second made me practically well again, and, since taking the third, I have had no recurrence of the rheumstlem, though it has been more than a year since I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Why shouldn't I recommend them?"

The blood in rheumatism has an acid impurity which irritates the sensitive tissues that unite the joints and cover the muscles. thus causing indescribable tortures which rheumatic sufferers endure.

Rheumatism is always dangerous, as it is liable to attack the heart. Years ago those affected were bled, as if taking away some of the impure blood could remedy the batance. This folly has been abandoned and today physicians prescribe and druggists recommend the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People, as these marvelous vegetable pills go directly to the seat of the trouble, exerting a powerful influence in purifying and enriching the blood by eliminating poisonous elements and renewing health-giving force, thus making a potent remedy for curing this disease.

Mr. Allen took the one unfalling remedy for this affliction and was cured. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will not only cure rheumatism, but are a positive specific for many other diseases. They are unlike other medicines and act directly on the blood and nerves. This makes them invaluable in such diseases as loco motor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance, sciation, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness, either in male or female. Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, fifty cents a box, or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenec tady, N. Y. They are never sold in bulk or by the hundred. Avoid imitations; substitutes never cured anybody.
