

HUMOURS

Complete External and Internal Treatment

Cuticura

THE SET

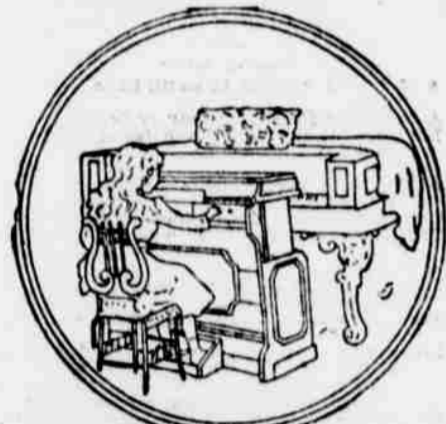

Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood, and expel humour germs. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humours, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when the best physicians, and all other remedies fail.

MILLIONS USE CUTICURA SOAP

Assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the best skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

LAST LETTER FROM OSBORN

Judge Tells New News of President's Death Reached Apia.

SAMOAN SYMPATHY OF SINCERE SORT

Expressions Come Freely and at Once When the Consulate Announces the Close of the Tragedy.

During the time since Judge Luther W. Osborn of Blair served as representative of the United States in the Samoan Islands, he wrote a number of letters which were published in The Bee. Some of the most interesting of these were in the nature of a history of the Malietoa rebellion and the complications that followed. It was in this crisis that Judge Osborn came to the notice of the world as a man of executive and diplomatic ability. He had not completed the story of the rebellion. His last letter to The Bee is on the receipt in Apia of the news of the death of President McKinley. This was written and mailed in Apia on October 12. Two weeks later Judge Osborn was dead. His health had been failing for a long time and he was awaiting from Washington permission to take the vacation he needed. His last letter to The Bee follows:

APIA, Samoa, Oct. 12.—(Special Correspondence of The Bee.)—Well, those who make it their business to spread dissatisfaction and create unrest among people over whom they can have influence, people who ought to be contented and happy; those who portray to such people evils which do not exist and never have existed, at least under our government; those who, instead of teaching patriotism, bend their energies in creating contempt for all government, however beneficent that government may be, and detestable evils which officials regardless of the faithfulness and efficiency of such officials; those whose influence really creates and sustains the detestable vermin known as anarchists, have again triumphed and very much to the regret of the republic on earth. A man upon whom at the time were resting great responsibilities, and have sent to an untimely grave one of the purest and noblest characters which that nation has ever produced. Possibly and quite probably he would have been those so depraved and so destitute of the common instincts of humanity as to rejoice in the horrible thing that has been done, while at the same time the whole civilized world mourns and looks with horror and amazement upon the act as a crime and unapproachable in its atrociousness. May God not have mercy upon anyone directly or indirectly responsible for this awful crime.

Ordinarily it matters but little when a human life goes out, but in this instance the most sacred interests of scores of millions were involved. If there be such a thing as unpardonable sins this ought to stand at the head of the list.

Tidings of the Assassination.

Early on the morning of September 27, after the arrival of the mail steamer, Captain Ryan, pilot of this port, with tearful eyes called and stated that President McKinley had been assassinated. The news was too shocking to be believed. As soon as possible I drove to the head of the consular mail. From this there was no doubt that an attempt had been made upon the life of the president. From what appeared in the regular mail I felt confident that the attempt had been successful and was about to order the flag at half-staff and officially notify the other officials, when we obtained San Francisco papers down to September 12, and from these and from a private letter of that date from "Frisco," there were almost absolute assurances of recovery. Be it said to their credit, all parties here, irrespective of nationality, expressed horror that such an attempt should have been made upon such a man and in such a country as ours, and with their messages of condolence, mingled their congratulations that the attempt had failed and the president would recover.

I could only state that I had received no official information; that from a hasty examination of newspaper reports, I was by no means satisfied, but hoped for the best. Personally, at that very time I was receiving these congratulations felt confident that there was a newly made grave at Canton, O.

Word of Death Received.

I dreaded the arrival of the next mail, which was due from Sydney via New Zealand on October 2. At break of day on that morning the signal gun at Pilot Point announced that the mail steamer had been sighted and was approaching. I dreaded its arrival. As soon as possible after it had dropped anchor in the harbor a messenger arrived and said: "Have you heard the news? The president of the United States is dead." The shock was simply terrible. To those in the States, who had been informed of conditions from hour to hour and were prepared to meet any event, the news was different. With us, this was the first word after positive assurances of recovery and for that day there were no dry eyes about this consulate.

I at once caused the flag to be placed at half-staff and dictated and by messenger sent out official notices to the British consulates and to the government. Soon Governor Solf, having heard the news from the street, came directly from his residence without waiting for the official announcement. He was deeply affected and expressed his grief in terms not soon to be forgotten. Then came the commander of the German Gorman with expressions of sympathy and condolence. These painful calls continued all day and among others were the high chiefs constituting the native government, all dressed in mourning, according to their custom, and all were simply overwhelming in their expressions of sorrow for what had happened and of good will toward our government.

Samoa Sympathy Sincere.

If the power of saying beautiful and touching things has been bestowed upon any particular race, it must have been bestowed upon the Samoans; as it seems to me that they have no equals. All expressions of sorrow seemed to me not to be merely formal or perfunctory, but to be heartfelt and sincere. I very much doubt if news of the death of any other person on earth would have caused such universal sorrow, such outward expressions of grief and such bitter denunciations of the instrumentalities and means by which it was accomplished. Every flag in Apia was at once raised and placed at half-staff. I dreaded to go upon the streets, because of the many kind and sympathetic expressions of grief. I had quite enough without these.

One Disgrace to His Country.

Of expressions of sorrow and regret there was a single exception, and this exception does not involve any foreigner, but a native-born American citizen, a professional man, a man born and reared in the United States, educated in our free institutions, a Christian gentleman; in fact, so pious that he looks upon the smoking of a cigar as a great sin, and in fact a missionary sent here, among other things, to save and reclaim those heathenish heathens. This pious gentleman was upon the wharf when an Apia business man arrived from the steamer, and very much excited and agitated. He had heard the news, and stated that the president of the United States was dead, and instead of being shocked, like all others, he replied: "That is the best news I have heard in a long time. It was a good job. I am right glad of it. He was the rottenest man that ever lived on the face of the earth. I have known all classes were very indignant and many have not spoken to our good United States citizen since that time. People express much regret that the assassin can only be electrocuted. They say that in some parts of our country if a colored man or woman is subjected to the indescribable horrors of being cremated alive, while this wretch is to have a painless death."

On Sunday, October 6, a most beautiful memorial service was held at the Apia Foreign church. The discourse by Dr. Bardeleban was very able and touching, and a very fine tribute to the noble dead. The church was properly draped and the ceremonies most solemn and impressive.

Marked Feature of Sympathy.

I have been deeply touched that these people, 8,000 miles from the scene of the disaster; most of whom were never in the United States and probably none of whom ever saw the president, should show such deep interest and manifest such genuine sorrow over the terrible thing that has occurred.

Ever since I have been here I have been much pleased at the universal expressions of respect for President McKinley. In all these things I have never heard one disrespectful word and not a single unfavorable criticism.

Now that he is gone they say that they cannot see why any human being could have desired to destroy him, for as was said of one of our old "Boys": "L. W. OSBORN."

PRATTLE OF THE YOUNGSTERS.

"Mamma," said little Tommy, "please go down on your knees and kneel." "What for, dear?" she asked. "Cause," he replied, "I want to draw an elephant and I've got to have a model."

"A woman glories in her hair," said the Sunday school teacher, quoting the biblical statement "Who can tell me what a man glories in?" "In his baldheadedness," replied a smallurchin at the foot of the class.

Tommy—Ma told me yesterday that if I would be good she would give me a penny. Aunt Sadie—Well? Tommy—And when I was good, she only gave me a cent.

The Philadelphia Record tells of a little Sunday school boy who always receives a nickel from his father to place in the collection plate. Last Sunday his father gave him two nickels, saying: "One is for the Lord and the other is for yourself." As it was too early to start for Sunday school the little boy sat on the porch steps in the warm sunshine, playing with the two nickels. After awhile he dropped one of them and it disappeared down a crack. Without a moment's hesitation, and still clutching the remaining coin in his clenched fist, he looked up at his father, exclaiming: "Oh, pop! There goes the Lord's nickel!"

John Kendrick Bangs is of the opinion that the finest humor frequently drops unconsciously from the lips of childhood. An illustration of the idea he tells this story:

"Hennessy, formerly foreman of the Herald's composing room, had a little daughter, who said: "Mamma, what are the stars?" "The stars, my child, are the Angel Gabriel's lamps. Every night at twilight the angel flies out of the gate of Paradise with a torch and lights all the stars."

"On the following evening a storm darkened the heavens and the lightning zigzagged across the face of the sky. The child ran to her mother, exclaiming: "I think the angel is going to light his lamps now."

"Why do you think so, my daughter?" "Because he is striking his matches on the sky."

"Mummy," said a small girl—"mummy, dear, I'd wish I might give some money for poor children's dinners."

"But, mummy, I haven't any money." "Well, darling, if you like to go without sugar I will give you the money instead, and then you will be some."

The small child considered solemnly for a moment and then said: "Must it be sugar, mummy?" "Why, no, darling, I don't know mind. What would you like to do without?" "I'd like to have my mummy, then?" exclaimed the small maiden in triumph.

Important Announcement.

THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER ASSOCIATION today makes an announcement of more than ordinary interest. By special arrangements with the publishers of that greatest of all reference works—the Encyclopaedia Britannica—we are able to place that king of books within easy reach of every Daily Bee reader. For more than one hundred years the Encyclopaedia Britannica has occupied the foremost rank as a self-educator and work of reference through its various revisions and additions during that interval. The crowning success now comes in the edition we offer, which is the large type, wide margin,

New 20th Century Edition.

which is even more extensive, and therefore more desirable than the latest costly Edinburgh edition, and we are able to supply Daily Bee readers for a short time at

Much Less Than Half the Cost.

That some sort of an Encyclopaedia is a necessity all must acknowledge. That the great Britannica is the very best none will deny. It is an Encyclopaedia in which each principal subject is treated by an acknowledged authority upon that subject. No other Encyclopaedia has given Ten Thousand Dollars for a Single Article, nor Six Hundred Dollars a Page for written matter. The fact that $3,000,000 were expended in its preparation, requiring the labor of 2,000 of the world's greatest scholars, tells the story of its exalted superiority.

What Is Said of It: "I will defy anyone to buy 3,000 volumes that will give him as good a working library as is furnished in the ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA alone."—Ex-President Dwight, Yale University. "If all other books were destroyed, the Bible excepted, the world would lose but little of its information."—Spurgeon.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY. The next thing is to have trained specialists on all steamers to treat passengers for the prevention and treatment of sea sickness. The largest sugar plant in the world has just been prospected in Cuba, to produce 5,000 tons a season. The plantation takes in 17,000 acres. Judge Isaac Story of the police court of Somerville, Mass., is 83 years old, and there is one other police court judge in active service in Massachusetts older than he. T. T. Johnson of Los Angeles, Cal., has one of the finest pigeon farms in the United States. He has 2,500 adult birds, who produce 250 dozen squabs for the market every month. Lyman D. Goff, a millionaire manufacturer of Pawtucket, R. I., will build a fine clubhouse for boys between the ages of 5 and 15, who are in the habit of making the streets their homes. Judge Edward Collin Lewis of Waterbury, Conn., who bequeathed $200,000 and more to his family, stipulated in his will that none of the trust funds provided for should ever be placed in railroad securities. Cosacks traveling in two patrol the Kansas railroad in Manchuria. The total force is 25,000. Fine stone stations are built every eighteen miles, with refreshment rooms, whether there is a town there or not. In 1876 Fred Wellhouse, the Kansas "apple king," was a wage earner. He knew a good deal about orchards, however, and began on a small scale to raise fruit. Now he has 1,200 acres of orchards and his apple crop this year is 60,000 bushels. Harry M. Winslow, a 16-year-old school-boy of Providence, R. I., is 4 feet 4 inches in height, and if there is another schoolboy in the United States taller than he he would like to have a chance to look up at him. He weighs 167 pounds and is rather thin. PALACINE OIL, best in the world.
