DOYLE ADJUSTS HIS TESTIMONY Tells Why His Former Evidence is Inconsistent with that in Case at Bar.

In the Doyle-Burns suit the plaintiff was on the stand all yesterday and his cross examination was not completed when court adjourned for the day. He will probably be on the stand the greater part of today. The fact that Doyle was to tell the story of his relations with Burns attracted large crowd and the courtroom was thronged all day, among the spectators being a number of women. The feature of Doyle's testimony in the morning was his recital of the fight which took place in their cabin when he and Burns were kicked out by Jerry O'Driscoll and O'Haire. He said that at the time he and Burns attempted to jump the Bobtail claim and relocate it as the Yellow Jackets O'Haire came to the camp one day while they were at dinner and asked Burns what he was doing with his claim. Burns told O'Haire to go elsewhere, and then, the witness said, trouble ensued. He said O'Haire tackled Burns, while O'Driscoll jumped on him. At that time, Doyle said, weighed only 120 pounds, while O'Driscoll weighed 180. Doyle said O'Driscoll soon had him down and began beating and pounding him. Continuing, he said: "I left the cabin. I was kicked out, and I started to get a pine log to defend my-self, when O'Driscoll chased me sround behalf. He also made an order that Mrs. the cabin. Burns soon followed me out of the cabin in front of O'Haire's boot. Jerry went back into the cabin and when he came out again with the Winchester rifle, why, I and Burns left about that time and we went and pitched a tent near Sam Strong's cabin, leaving O'Driscoll and O'Haire in possession Doyle's story of the fight, given without smile, proved excellent entertainment for the crowd and the court was obliged frequently to rap for order. The remainder of his testimony related to the work he had done with Burns on the several claims and was corroborative of the evidence of the previous witnesses.

Senator Patterson, in his cross-examina tion of Doyle in the afternoon, questioned him closely as to the testimony he had given at the time of the trial of the suit of John D. O'Haire against Burns and asked him how he could explain the inconsistencies when compared with his testimony testified falsely in the O'Haire suit, espe-cially when he testified that he had writ-Tobena T. The decision of the supreme court was Peterson was willing to do this, so he handed down in a case from Sloux City, provision of the code fixing its liability, its position being the same as taken by the supervisors of this county. The district court of Woodbury county sustained the demurrer of the county, but overruled that of the city. The city failed to plead over and judgment was entered against it. The city appealed.

In its decision the supreme court held that no recovery for services rendered by public officers may be had unless compensation is directed by statute and that the state is not bound to provide for such payment and he who takes employment under its agency accepts with the honors | Moines the burdens also; further that a claim against a city or county is not just unless the law somewhere requires or authorizes

Section 1125 of the code reads: "The city council shall detail and employ on the nomination of the principal committee of each political party from citizens on the police force of the city from two to four special policemen for each precinct and fully empower them for the special occasion of each election, who shall be men some of the dailies in this section, dated numbers from each of the leading political William H. Sallmon of that city has been in December. Other delegates will be apparties. If no policemen be in attendance offered the presidency of the c more specially, by writing, who shall have all the powers of such special policemen. In its decision the supreme court says, after referring to this section of the code: 'It will be observed that it is made the duty of the city council to employ the policemen. The only section of the code which might be construed as fixing liability on the county is 1129: 'The expense of providing booths, guard rails and other things required in this chapter shall be paid in the same manner as other election expenses." The supreme court, however held that the services rendered by special policemen could not be construed as things.

Holding that no provision is made for the payment by the city of the special policemen nominated by political parties, the supreme court reversed the district court in fixing the liability upon the municipality. The Sioux City case is identical with the situation now existing here and the city council will have a decidedly knotty question to solve, as it is understood that the city solicitor will make his report in conformity with the ruling of the supreme court. One of the aldermen said yesterday the only way he could see whereby the special policemen could get their pay would be for the city council to pay them out of the contingency fund and trust to no one disputing such payment.

Case from Grinnell Has Features of National Interest.

APPANOOSE INDICTMENTS ARE QUASHED

Governor Shaw Appoints Delegates to Live Stock Convention-Missouri River Land Rights Questioned.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Nov. 20 .- (Special.) -- The time of the federal court has been largely taken up thus far with the trial of the Morrison glove case, from Grinnell, a case having some features of more than state interest. Morrison runs a large glove factory at Grinnell. Some years ago his employes struck and he found it impossible to secure new ones to take their places. He advertised in the papers for help and could not get any experienced glovemakers. He, There was no disturbance at the place so it is alleged, then sent to the United resterday and Andrew Nealy, the colored States consul at Prague to have skilled workers sent over, and men came on the representations of the consul and secured employment at the factory. Then the Glovemakers' union had Morrison indicted for violation of the laws against importation of alien labor. On the trial it has developed that there is a very strong union smong the glovemakers, that 500 of the 700 members live in or near Gloversville, N. Y.; that they do not permit apprentices sonal letter from Admiral Schley, the purboard disposed of a number of road matters except those who are sons of the glovemakers; that thereby the supply of glovemakers is limited and a monopoly created Morrison was in the position of either going out of business or securing laborers abroad. The question at issue is whether or not the glove making industry is a new one and, as such, exempt by the immigration laws. Witnesses for the prosecution have been here from Gloversville and Chi-WEST BRANCH, Ia., Nov. 20.-(Special cago and the case involves questions of international law as well as the interpretation of the immigration laws. Claim Missouri River Land.

A controversy has reached the courts which will bring up again the rights of land owners along the Missouri river. There are two claimants to about 3,000 acres of land lying along the Missouri river in the south part of Woodbury county. It is claimed by A. L. Beardsley of Sioux City as accretion to his land in Liberty township and the same is claimed by John Mulhall under deeds and abstracts in Nebraska. The land was originally in one state and then the course of the river changed and the land went over into the other state. This changing process has been going on for many years and now the claimants have gone into court to have the matter disposed of.
