Weges Legislature to Secure Interes on State Funds Deposited in Banks -Advises Amendment to the Parole System.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Jan. 14.-(Special Telegram.)-In republican joint caucus last night, presided over by Speaker Eaton, Senators William B. Allison and Jonathan P. Dolliver were unanimously renominated.

The nominative speech for Allison was made by Senator Blanchard and seconded by Junkin, Hughes and Larrabee. All of the 212 republican votes were cast for him. Dolliver was placed in nomination by Senator Hubbard and seconded by Temple, Trewin and Hamann, and the nomination was B. Murphy for state printer, H. Tedford for binder and John R. Carter for code ed itor, were nominated by acclamation. The two senators were sent for. Senator Allison spoke feelingly of the compilment paid him and said he could not find language to express his feelings. He spoke of his service, which covered a period known as one of the most important in the history of the nation, but during all which time there had been steady growth and de-velopment. In that time the state which he represented had become four times as populous. He said he would enter upon a sixth term with some misgivings as to his own ability to cope with the great questions yet unsettled. He paid a high compliment to his colleague.

When Dolliver was called for he said he counted it his good fortune to have entered congress at the same time with the late Gear and now to have the wise counsel of Allison. He felt greater pride in this election than in anything else in joint session re-elected General Murray his career, and Iowa people had always Vandiver, (democrat), state treasurer for

The caucus was harmonious in every way. Democrats Name Clerks.

At a caucus of the democratic senators of the senate Miss Anna Taylor of Atlantic, and Mrs. Jennie Emmet of Ottumwa were selected as committee clerks for the present session. By a resolution adopted by the senate at its opening session yesterday the democratic minority was allowed two committee clerks, as usual. Miss Taylor and Mrs. Emmet have both been connected with the legislature before. Miss Taylor was Senator Emmert's clerk two years ago and Mrs. Emmet was the clerk of the dem ocratic minority. May Visit Cherokee Hospital.

This morning there was a rumor affoat on the senate side of the legislative halls that the legislature might make a junketing trip to the new hospital at Cherokee year. Two years ago the railroads furnished transportation free and sent a special train of several coaches so that the embers of the legislature might visit the new hospital in process of erection and determine whether or not they should appropriate the large amount of money asked its completion. The result of the trip was that the institution got what the board of control had asked for, and it is now nearing completion. The board of control received word this morning that am heating plant will be in operation in the new building in ten days, and it is expected that the institution in entirety will be ready for occupancy not later than next June. The appropriation asked for this institution by the board this year is smaller than that of two years ago, the sum asked being $132,000.

The Bruce-Emmert contest case was taken up. Senator Ball (dem.) introduced a resolution allowing Emmert to file an answer by the 21st. Senator Hubbard (rep.) ffered a substitute, the purport of which was to refer the whole matter to a special committee already authorized and to empower the committee to subpoena witnesses and make a full investigation. The substitute was amended to allow Emmert file an answer with the committee, and passed without division. The resolution directs that the committee, which will be named when other committees are named, shall proceed promptly.

A resolution was passed authorizing the secretary of state to furnish sessions laws of the last two sessions to all members. The secretary of state was directed to have printed 5,000 copies of the official register more than usual. The senate decided adjournment Friday noon until Tuesday at

The reductions, which vary from 5 to 15 per cent, affect mainly the "ten classes." Commodity rates on coal, lumber, flour and wheat remain unchanged. Reductions of wheat rates are postponed until later in the year, as it is the idea that the reductions now would not help the farmers since most of the wheat has left their bands. The new tariffs have been prepared unier the direction of Darius Miller, who at vesterday's meeting acted in behalf of both the Burlington and the Great Northern. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & Northwestern, it is stated. will not make any reductions until the effect of the reductions on competitive

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.-It was anticipated here that the reductions in freight by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads would be followed by a similar cut n tariff by the Burlington and the possible effect upon and action by the Union Pacific was generally considered in railway and financial circles.

It was stated in behalf of the Union Pacific that any cut in rates by neighboring lines at competitive points would very likely be met. It was doubted that there was any possibility of a rate war, or reductions would be so sweeping as to appreciably affect earnings.

Senator Millard having been informed of the condiions existing over the New York appraisership suggested to Secretary Gage the name of Cruzen as the one likely to fill the position acceptably, the secretary desiring a successful banker for the position. Commercial Club Marks Another Period in Its Eventful Career.

ORGANIZATION IS IN SPLENDID SHAPE

Promise of Omaha.

More than one hundred members of the Commercial club gathered for the ninth annual meeting and banquet of that organisation in the dining rooms of the club last night. The occasion was one of self-congratulation. All official reports were most flattering, the trend of the sentiments of the different speakers was unanimously optimistic, and an atmosphere of sanguinity and promise for the year 1902 prevaded the applause which was accorded every speech others. and report showed the general good feeling. An elaborate dinner of ten courses was served, the tables being decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers.

Pickens as Toastmaster When Toastmaster C. H. Pickens arcse to speak he was greeted with loud applause. He said in part:

He said in part:

It is not my intention to go into lengthy detail with reference to what has been accomplished by the Commercial club during the year just closed. I do, however, wish to call your particular attention to one or two important measures that have occupied more or less of the time of your executive committee, the foremost of which, to my mind, should not only continue to receive the united effort of this club, but also that of the commercial interests of this commonwealth. I refer to the question of national irrigation, which means more to the American people today than any measure now before our congress. The reclaiming by irrigation of hundreds and thousands of acres of arid lands throughout the west in territory tributary to Omaha that today cannot be sold for more than $1.25 per acre for the purposes of stockraising, and by irrigation converted into prosperous farms, cannot fall to add materially to the wealth and general prosperity of our city and state. Therefore I hope that your president and your executive committee, just elected, will see to it that this very important question is constantly kept before them, freely discussed, and that they keep in touch with our representatives at Washington.

After the hearty applause which followed this speech had subsided, Mr. Pickens introduced the incoming president of the club, J. F. Carpenter, who responded a

I am glad that we can bring to you the good news that our finances are in good condition, very much better than they were one year ago tonight, due to the careful and conservative action of your officers of the last year. The membership has grown some, but not nearly as much as it should have, and I hope that during the coming year more efficient work may be done by all of us in securing new members.

We have had during the last year many discussions and passed many resolutions upon the subject of national irrigation. And it does not need any remarks to an audience of Omaha business men to explain the good that we would derive were our national government to take such action regarding irrigation as this club has recommended to it.

It means the bringing west of the Mis-tion regarding irrigation as this club has recommended to it.

It means the bringing west of the Missouri river thousands, yea, hundreds of thousands of families. It means business for the railroads, both in the getting of these people there, the supplying of them with their needs and the transporting of their products to market. It means busineeds for the jobber, for they will consume of all our wares.

Let us urge the government to take such action as shall be necessary to build and maintain reservoirs and dams for the storing of waters, canals and ditches for the carrying of the same where it can be used in the way suggested. While I feel myself incapable of discussing this question at length I believe I can comprehend the necessity of our taking an active and progressive interest in the same.

During the civil war, he said, there was a committee which reported upon its responsibility the facts which were needed for the senate and for the country.
